The individual who rails on me behind my back is very seldom my enemy; the person who comes to me and tells me what he says, is. The first I'll pardon; the latter forever is tabu—let his name be anathema. He is one who magnifies idle nothings and vacuous vaporings until they become noxious gases. The man who talks gossip is a fool; but the one who repeats it is a rogue.—So Says ELBERT HUBBARD.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE IS REPRIMANDED BY KAISER

Heir to Throne Gets a Jacking Up and His Position is Repudiated Semi-Officially.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—A public and semi-official rebuke has been administered to Crown Prince Frederick William through an inspired telegram from Berlin, published in the Cologne Gazette today, and which fully confirms the report that Emperor William reprimanded his son for having openly demonstrated his approval of the attacks on the government's Moroccan policy and the bellicose utterances in the reichstag Thursday.

For a similar instance of public censure for the crown prince one must go back to 1863, when Crown Prince Frederick was rebuked for criticisms of Chancellor Bismarck's policy in Ashmad at Danzig. The report to the Cologne Gazette says:

"We believe it to be the right and duty of the heir to the throne to take an interest in politics. He cannot be reproached for forming his own opinion, even if it is not consonant with the imperial policy. We further do not desire that the crown prince be prevented from expressing his opinion in a fitting manner and place; not, however, in the way chosen in the reichstag, the effect of which we consider extremely grave.

"It goes without question that the episode and the press comments thereupon were reported to the emperor and the absence of the crown prince at Friday's sitting was due to the emperor, to whom Thursday's events and the considerations involved therein cannot be agreeable."

The crown prince will return to Danzig this evening.

ITALY MAKES COUNTER CHARGES OF CRUELTIES AGAINST ARABS

ARAB CHIEFS LEAVING CASTLE AFTER CONFERENCE WITH NEW ITALIAN GOVERNOR OF TRIPOLI. FROM THE SPHERE

Cable despatches from Rome to the Italian Embassy at Washington explain that the alleged atrocities of Italian soldiers were in reprisal for the awful Arab barbarities. On one occasion a wounded Italian soldier, who had been left alone for a moment by his comrades, had his throat cut by a woman who crept stealthily upon him through dead and wounded.

$20,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE AT ARCHER PRINTING PLANT

Blaze Originates in Floor from Contact With Steam Pipe--Chief Loss from Smoke and Water.

Twenty thousand dollars is the estimate made today by Manager John A. Toole of the damage resulting from a fire in the plant of the Archer Printing company, on Sixth street, shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night.

The blaze originated in the floor of the second story at the rear end of the building, evidently from wood contact with a big pipe which carried live steam to the upper floor. The heaviest damage is from smoke and water and the loss is fully covered by insurance. Adjusters will take up the work of settling the loss early in the week and officials hope to have the plant in operation again within a few days.

Battled Against Smoke.

In fighting the blaze the firemen were forced to contend with smoke so dense that for a time it was impossible to get into the second story of the building at all, and streams of water were poured in from the windows at either side of the structure. Some firemen declare it the worst fire for smoky conditions they have fought in years.

The blaze was discovered about 10 o'clock by E. M. Evans, foreman of the composing room, who was at work on the first floor of the building. It had evidently been burning for some time, though the night shift of workmen had left the building but half an hour before and there was then no evidence of the blaze.

The fire started in a small room formerly used as an electrotyping department, the floor of which is covered with iron. Immediately below it is a steel ceiling, and these conditions allowed a considerable spread of the fire before it was discovered and an alarm turned in by telephone. Engine companies 1, 3 and 6 attacked the blaze and while the fire was under control by 11 o'clock, it was not until 2 o'clock this morning that the blaze was completely extinguished and the engines left the scene.

Where Damage Was Heaviest.

The fire burned over a considerable area in the rear portion of the second story, and the heaviest damage is from smoke and water to several thousand dollars worth of fine paper stock and a big consignment of completed work which was awaiting delivery. The paper and stock will be an almost total loss, as is also the greater portion of the completed work.

Torrents of water streamed down through the ceiling and into the first story, where the presses are located, until water covered the floor to a depth of four inches, and it was necessary to chop holes in the floor to let it escape. The machinery was thoroughly drenched, and workmen set about as early as possible covering it with oil to prevent further damage from rusting. The loss on machinery will not be heavy, though much of it will be out of commission for a considerable time.

The Archer concern is one of the largest printing establishments in the city, and it has been doing an extensive business, employing a total of about fifty operatives, working in two shifts.

Composing Room Escapes.

The composing room of the establishment escaped damage and a portion of the force of printers was at work there today as usual, though the presses cannot be operated until effects of the fire and flood can be removed.

The Archer concern is a stock company, and the larger stockholders include the Weil, the Freiburger and the Rothschild interests, though others have small holdings in it. John A. Toole is manager and C. D. Tillo is superintendent.

AFTER BAD SCARE DYNASTY GETS A GLEAM OF HOPE

General Li, Head of Revolutionists, is Willing to Negotiate for Peaceful Ending of Civil War.

Pekin, Nov. 11.—6:40 p. m. — The throne and government alternated between hope and despair today. This morning a telegram was received from Yuan Shi Kai in which he stated that he was unable to come to Pekin and expressed a pessimistic view of the situation. A second message coming several hours later, struck a more cheerful note.

Gloom settled deeper over the official family when the first message was read, for they had in mind yesterday's announcement of the Chinese papers that Yuan Shi Kai had been invited by Gen. Li Yuen Heng, the leader of the revolutionists, to become president of the republic of China pending the assemblage of a parliament.

It seemed as though the last prop of the throne had given way, for the expectation that Gen. Chang Shao-Tsen, who as the real commander of the twentieth division of the imperial troops holds the key to the situation in the north, might come to Pekin and renew his allegiance to the government, rested upon the assumption that he would meet in conference Yuan Shi-Kai and Hsi Liang, former viceroy of Manchuria. Yuan's second telegram, however, was a cheering surprise.

It informed the foreign board that the negotiations with Gen. Li Yuen Heng had taken a turn for the better and that Gen. Li had shown signs of becoming less irreconcilable and possibly would agree to a peaceful compromise in order to avert further bloodshed. Yuan added that Li's colleagues differed on matters of policy and that trouble might arise among them.

The president of the foreign board rushed to the quarters of Prince Chiang, the acting premier, with the latest dispatch and Ching lost no time in conveying the tidings to the throne.

ROBBERS CAUSE PANIC IN AMOY.

Amoy, China, Nov. 11.—Attacks by robbers in different quarters threw the city into a panic today. The authorities self constituted dealth with the situation as best they could. The water patrol captured a piratical junk, its crew of sixteen men await decapitation. The inland junk traffic proceeded more freely today but coast navigation has been wholly suspended. Taotai Chang assumed office today. A conference of officials with representatives of the conservative and radical elements was held to determine a course of action. The officials and conservatives proposed establishing a temporary independence of the city and the adoption of a neutral attitude toward the revolution. The radicals however, favored surrendering the city to the revolutionists and this policy probably will prevail.

Chang Chow, a city with a population estimated as high as 1,000,000, situated 24 miles west by north of Amoy reports that the rebels announced that the city will be occupied Nov. 20. The people are fleeing from the place fearing a repetition of the experiences of the Tai Ping rebellion. Foreigners are in no danger.

Reports from Foo Chow state that the fighting there ceased last evening when the Manchus surrendered. The viceroy is dead and the Tartar general is severely wounded.

IMPERIALISTS HOLD NANKING.

Nanking, Nov. 11.—The imperialists have regained the upper hand in Nanking and the dragon flag again floats over Kiang Yin fort.

During the night the imperial gunboats shelled the revolutionary camp and this morning the troops found that the rebel position three miles outside the south gate had been evacuated. It is believed yesterday's slaughter and failures of supplies and ammunition to arrive discouraged the rebels.

CHILD DROWNS IN EIGHT INCHES OF WATER.

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 11.—Coroner Gillespie is today investigating the death of two-year-old Cecil Stavens, son of Charles Stavens, who was found drowned in a stream of water less than eight inches in depth yesterday.

The child and his pet dog had wandered away from home about one hour before the body was found. The barking of the dog first notified the child's parents that an accident had occurred.

SIMPLICITY IN DRESS IS URGED

Wife of DePauw President Asks College Women to Set Standard.

NO SILK STOCKINGS

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 11.—The college woman should set the standard for simplicity of dress was the argument of Mrs. McConnell, wife of President Francis John McConnell, of De Pauw university, at a meeting of the Young Women's Christian association today. She endeavored to show the young women students the fallacy of wearing silk stockings and other similar luxuries to school.

From observations Mrs. McConnell has learned that the tendency at De Pauw as well as in other schools is toward extravagance in dress, even among the girls who cannot afford it. She endeavored to show how such a standard would create snobbishness and inequality among the women, which above all things ought to be avoided in a Christian institution.

Mrs. McConnell admires the old fashioned type of girl—one who can wash dishes, put a room in order and make beds, as well as being able to paint or sing. She argued that the cultured woman, the one who gets the most out of her college training, will be able to solve domestic problems much better than the girl who lays so much stress on dress.

DIVORCE FEE IN ADVANCE.

Indianapolis, Ind., No. 11.—They that are weary of matrimony, make far more diferential obeisance to the law when the bill of complaint is filed than when the bill of costs is presented after the decree of the court is of record, proclaimed Deputy County Clerk Richard Holman today as he assessed each new plaintiff in a divorce action $3 in advance for filing fees. The sum is to be refunded to the plaintiff if the costs of the case are taxed against the defendant.

PAY CUT; PREACHER RESIGNS.

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 11.—Rev. E. Howard Brown, formerly pastor of the Friends church here, has resigned his pastorate in Marshalltown, Iowa, because the congregation voted to reduce his salary from $1,000 to $800. A further demand was made that the pastor credit the church with his fees in weddings, funerals and the like. Rev. Mr. Brown has a wife and six children.

CAR SERVICE PARALYZED BY BREAK IN POWER LINE

Street Railway and Interurban Traffic in Fort Wayne Tied Up Near Two Hours by Accident.

For almost two hours today street railway traffic in Fort Wayne was utterly paralyzed as the result of a break in the high tension power line. In the interim not a wheel was turning either on the city lines, the Bluffton division of the interurban or the Lafayette division from Peru, eastward to this city.

It was a new variety in the assortment of troubles with which officials of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company have been assailed during the past three or four weeks. With the accident which put first one and then the other of the street railway power turbines at the Spy Run avenue station out of commission, the company hurriedly constructed a high-tension line three miles in length from Peru, southward, to connect its lines with the substation of the Indiana Union Traction company, and for a week the interurban cars from Peru eastward and the city cars in Fort Wayne have been operated by electric power supplied from the Anderson station of the Indiana Union company.

Break Near Boyd Park.

At 10 o'clock today the high tension line which carried this current to Fort Wayne broke down near Boyd Park, west of Wabash, and as a result every car in this city, as well as the Bluffton and the Huntington interurban divisions came to a sudden stop. They were strung along the streets at many points, unable to turn a wheel. Passengers in them waited with patience for a time, expecting the cars to start at any moment, but finally grew discouraged, climbed out and continued their journeys afoot.

Some time was required to locate the source of the trouble and linemen were hurried out to repair it as quickly as possible, but it was not until the lapse of one hour and forty minutes that the current came on and cars started again. Earlier in the day a delay of fifteen minutes had occurred through failure of the power. At 11:40 o'clock the cars were running again and street railway operatives were hoping against further accident.

During the interim Toledo and Chicago, Ohio Electric and Fort Wayne and Springfield interurban cars were operated only to the city limits, where they connect with the lines of the local system. Each of these roads had cars "dead" inside the city when the high tension went down and cut off the power. A number of them were at the interurban station unable to move.

Officials today expressed the belief that one of the engines at the Spy Run station would be gotten into operation tomorrow.

U. S. ARMY ENGINEERS TO OPEN FORT WAYNE OFFICE

Have Been Directed to Get Additional Canal Data--Move Favorable for the Big Project.

Directed to secure additional data bearing upon the proposed lake-to-lake barge canal, representatives of the United States army engineering corps are preparing to open an office in Fort Wayne. Engineer J. F. Nash, of the Cleveland office, arrived in the city last night, and today was looking up suitable office quarters. Mr. Nash left the city at noon on his return to Cleveland.

Following closely upon the visit of the national waterways commission to Fort Wayne, and clearly in advance of its report upon the project, the action of the engineering corps in looking up additional data at once is taken here to indicate the positive belief of the officers that the permanent survey will be ordered for the big canal to connect Toledo with Lake Michigan by way of the Maumee river and Fort Wayne. In fact, Colonel John Millis, who is in charge of the Cleveland office of the army engineers, remained in Fort Wayne one day longer than did the members of the commission, and devoted his time to some additional investigations of river conditions here.

While none of the Fort Wayne friends of the canal have been permitted to see the reports which Col. Millis and Col. George A. Zinn, of Chicago, made to the commission regarding the practicability of the canal project, subsequent developments indicate that these reports must have been of a most favorable character. Congressman Alexander, also, plainly conveyed the belief, during his visit here, that the permanent survey would be ordered. The sending of the engineering corps to Fort Wayne for further investigation, and the opening of office quarters here at this time is regarded as another positive step forward toward the construction of the canal.

TRIAL OF POLLE BEGINS MONDAY

Benton County Farmer to Face Jury for Death of Farm Hand.

TO PLEAD INSANITY

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 11.—John W. Poole, the Benton county farmer charged with the murder of Joseph Kemper, a farm employe whose body was buried on the Poole farm will be placed on trial in the circuit court here Monday, on an indictment for murder in the first degree. Poole admits killing Kemper and burying his body, but he says the killing was accidental. Poole's plea will be insanity, and he will also seek to convince the jury that he did not kill Kemper intentionally.

Poole has been in the county jail here since June 20, when his case was sent here on change of venue. Kemper's body was dug up on May 2 on Poole's farm. Poole's son, Emery, was instrumental in causing the investigation which led to the finding of Kemper's body and Poole's arrest.

SATURDAY LULL IN M'NAMARA CASE

Attorneys Put in Day at Hard Work on the Evidence.

LONG GRILL AHEAD

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 11.—Hearing of a civil suit by Judge Walter Bordwell, supplanted the McNamara murder trial at today's brief session of court.

Relieved of the tedium of jury-getting, opposing counsel toiled steadily most of the day at getting into shape the enormous amount of evidence which must be offered to established the guilt of James B. McNamara. Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, for the defense, spent most of the morning talking with his clients.

This conference is becoming customary on Saturdays' the prisoners going over all the evidence of the week with some one of their attorneys and learning of the plans for the week to come insofar as they are outlined.

McManigal's Testimony.

Ortie E. McManigal was taken to the office of District Attorney John D. Fredericks where he spends much time. Inferences emanated today from the office of the district attorney that McManigal's story as told on the witness stand, will contain many details not included in the statement heretofore published as his so-called "confession," and McManigal said as much himself. Days and probably weeks, it was estimated today, will be taken to present evidence intended to show that the Times explosion came from dynamite exploded with criminal intent, and the effort to show that a crime was committed usually a simple matter, promises to furnish many angles and much legal warfare.

Much expert testimony will be presented on this point by both sides, the defense's position being that gasoline caused the explosion, and that McNamara was not responsible for it.

Aged Juror is an Athlete.

The three sworn jurors and the six talesmen in the jury box rose early today, headed by Juror Robert Bain, the seventy-year-old carpenter. Bain generally arises before any one else. Today he followed his usual program of a shower bath and a run around the outer edge of the big empty court room set aside as a juror's lounging room. The outside squares of concrete flooring made a track of about twenty laps to the mile and Bain does ten of these on mornings when he is feeling good. He diets as carefully as an athlete.

RUSSELL ESCAPES FROM PRISON.

Fellow Who Shot Officer Noble Gets Away From Ohio Authorities.

William Russell, who was with Frank Crandall at Bellevue, O., when the latter shot and killed H. J. Noble, captain of the Nickel Plate railroad police force, escaped from the Columbus penitentiary and the police here have been asked to look for him. He was serving a life sentence for second degree murder. Both of them were in Fort Wayne the day before they met and killed the officer.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 11.—Fred Theme a wealthy brewer of this city, is in a serious condition today as the result of a gunshot wound accidentally inflicted by his partner, Frank Wagner, while the two were hunting rabbits yesterday. Theme was walking a considerable distance ahead of Wagner, when the latter shot at a rabbit. Nearly all of the charge of shot entered Theme's right leg. This is the first hunting accident of the season reported here.

L TRAINS COLLIDE IN FOG.

New York, Nov. 11.—A fog that delayed the arrival of daylight nearly two hours this morning was responsible for a rear end collision on the Brooklyn elevated railroad in which ten persons were injured. A west end train crashed into the rear of a Bay Ridge train, which was standing at the Twenty-fifth street station on the Fifth avenue line. One of the injured had to be taken to a hospital. The accident delayed traffic for more than an hour.

WORKMAN AT BASS FOUNDRY KILLED BY FALLING CRANE

Justin L. Evard Crushed When Accident Occurs and Dies Soon Afterward at Hope Hospital.

Justin L. Evard, fifty-four years old and living at 1327 McCulloch street, was caught between a heavy crane and a car at the Bass Foundry and Machine company's plant just before noon today and sustained injuries from which he died at Hope hospital a couple of hours later. He was in charge of a crew that was transferring a heavy casting from one car to another in which the crane was being used and one of the guy ropes broke allowing the crane to topple over.

The full weight fell upon the right chest and shoulder crushing the body badly. Evard was unconscious when he was released by the other workmen. He was rushed to the hospital and physicians worked hard with him in an effort to save his life but the chest walls were crushed in the shoulder broken and the ribs fractured.

Evard had been employed at the plant for a number of years and was a foreman over a gang of laborers in one of the yards. He is married and has a family of children all of whom are grown. Little hope of saving his life was entertained from the first but heroic

GENERAL STRIKE OF THE DRIVERS

Grave Threat of Trouble in New York Over City Teamster's Strike.

CITY IS SUFFERING

New York, Nov. 11.—The most dreded of all labor troubles, a general teamsters strike, threatens New York unless the city speedily settes its differences with the several thousand laborers in the street cleaning department. The strike of the cart men who collect the city's ashes and garbage, extended to the street sweepers today and tonight the department store drivers and others will meet to consider quitting work in sympathy with the city employes.

City Suffering Greatly.

Meanwhile the city is suffering from a prodigious accumulation of rubbish and garbage. Ordinarily nine thousand cartloads are removed every day. The strike since last Wednesday has permitted rubbish of all kinds to pile up until today it is a menace to health. Many apartment house janitors have dumped their accumulations on the street making some thoroughfares almost impassable with garbage and ashes ten feet high. The street cleaning department began work today with several hundred strike breakers, but the men were green, and under the constant annoyance of the strikers and their friends, they made little headway. The men who took the strikers places were guarded by nearly 5,000 policemen and every member of the reserve was on duty today in anticipation of more riots.

One Death Results.

Already these disturbances have cost the life of one strike breaking driver and sent several others to the hospitals. The attacks generally come from house tops and by the time the police climb up to the places from which missiles come the throwers have disappeared. The department has commissioned several detective agencies to hire 5,200 strike breakers and the men have been advertised for over a radius of 400 miles from the city, thus far only a few hundred have been supplied and many of these quit when they found the dangers they must encounter.

WILL URGE VOTES FOR WOMEN.

Delegates to Labor Federation Will Introduce Resolution.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—Wm. J. Pfleger, of this city, who was elected a delegate to the American Federation of Labor from the state federation at the Evansville meeting recently, will introduce a resolution that the A. F. of L. constitution be amended so as to give women who represent the Woman's Union Label league the right to vote on all questions in central or state organization. Pfleger's resolution will be in accordance with action taken by the state federation at the Evansville meeting. He expected to leave today for Atlanta, where the A. F. of L. meeting begins next week.

PAYS FOR PEACH HE STOLE LONG AGO.

Washington, Ind., Nov. 11.—Charles H. Jones, a business man, has received a letter from a conscience stricken person who forwarded a dime in payment for a peach stolen from in front of Mr. Jones' store. The letter was unsigned, but the envelope bore the postmark of Seattle, Wash., and was as follows:

"Dear Mr. Jones—Been to Gypsy Smith's meeting. Inclosed find ten cents to pay for a peach which I filched in front of your store several years ago."

NOT MANY OF 'EM GOT AWAY

State School Cleans Up Prizes at Indiana Apple Show.

TOTAL OF 15 AWARDS

Allen county apples, grown upon the farm of the Indiana school for feeble-minded youth, north of Fort Wayne, made a tremendous "killing" at the Indiana apple show at Indianapolis this week, capturing a total of fifteen awards, which included two silver trophy cups and a cash prize of $200.

When it was seen that the institution's exhibit was certain to carry off the lion's share of the prizes at the show, given at Tomlinson hall under the direction of the Indiana Horticultural society, there was a terrific protest from apple-growers in other sections of the state, who demanded that state institutions be barred from competition against private growers. For the present fair, however, the officers declined to rule the state school out.

Will Show, Anyway.

There is a belief that state institutions, will be barred another year though Supt. Albert E. Carroll, of the state school, announced that if the institution were not allowed to compete for prizes, it would be very glad to make a display of its fruit merely for exhibition purposes in the future. Here is a list of the prizes captured by the Indiana school for its apple exhibit:

One box class—Grimes Golden, first prize.

Tray class—Chenango, first; Fallawater, first; Jonathan, first; Rambo, second.

Plate class—Ben Davis, third; Jonathan, third; Northwestern Greening, first; Rambo, first; Rhode Island Greening, first; Stark, third.

Special Premiums.

Best three boxes, all different varieties, first prize. This carries with it the Pratt Scalecide company's silver trophy cup.

Grand sweepstakes—Best box, any variety, first prize, $200 in cash. This carries with it the Chicago silver trophy cup.

The Indiana school orchards have been brought to a high state of excellence and productiveness through expert care during the past few years and the result is especially gratifying to Superintendent Carroll and his staff of assistants in the work.

COL. C. G. THOMPSON DEAD.

Widely Known Indiana Veteran of Civil War is No More.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 11.—Col. Chester G. Thompson, who commanded the Seventy-second Indiana volunteers in the Civil war, died here today at the age of seventy-nine years. He was at one time commander of the Loyal Legion of Indiana, and also a trustee of the Indiana boys' school at Plainfield. He founded the children's home in this city and was a leading citizen.

Colonel Thompson made many gifts to Wabash college of which he was one of the early graduates. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon in this city.

GOES TO PRISON FOR ROBBERY.

Former Minneapolis Politician Was Leader of Band.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 11.—Fred A. Briggs, former Minneapolis politician, cigar salesman and man about town, was found guilty of highway robbery by a jury which returned its verdict in the criminal court here today.

Briggs, it was charged in the trial was companion of the late Jerry McCarthy, Minnesota-Iowa outlaw and ex-convict, and of Peter Juhl, who recently shot and killed Detective Frazer, of the St. Paul police force.

Briggs, it has been charged was the "brains" of the triumvirate in a campaign of crime.

STATE WITNESS BECOMES WEAK

Stenographer in Trial of Alleged Gary Boodler Hurts Case.

HAS NEW STATEMENT

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 11. More dictagraph records of what took place in T. B. Dean's room in a hotel at Gary while Dean was seeking a heating franchise, were introduced today in the trial of C. A. Williston, city engineer of Gary, charged with accepting a bribe of $2,000 from Dean.

The records were read by Myron Himmelblau, a stenographer of Chicago, who, under the name of J. J. Jones, worked for Dean in Gary and made notes at the receiving end of the dictagraph wires. A great crowd, eager to examine the apparatus, and hear how it was operated, filled the court room.

Dean reiterated that the $2,000 he alleged he paid Williston, was for the latter's "influence" and not for an option on land.

Stenographer M. Himmelblau was again put through a severe cross-examination by the defense. Himmelblau was forced into admissions which are thought to be damaging to the state, the most important of these being a statement tha he did not know T. B. Dean, the state's witness in the case, although some time ago he made an affidavit that he was personally acquainted with the man before he came to Gary.

According to Himmelblau, Dean did not tell him that he was to take the records of the conversations until after negotiations for the alleged bribe had been under way for some time. The first conversation which he took over the dictagraph, he said, was between Dean and Commissioner of Public Works Nyloff, early in May. The Dean-Williston conversation, the witness swore, took place in July and related to the payment by Dean of $2,000 to Williston for the consummation of a supposed real estate deal.

WILL HAVE A SYMPOSIUM.

The Men's club of the First Presbyterian church will have a symposium on the proposed monetary system next Tuesday evening and Charles H. Worden will read a paper upon the subject.

MOTHER IN JAIL FOR KIDNAPING.

Paris, Ill., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Naomi Taylor was placed in jail here today after having been returned from Linton by Chief of Police Steps and Sheriff Blackman. With her was Beulah, her twelve-year-old daughter, for whose kidnaping she will stand trial in the near future. Ten years ago the woman allowed her infant child to be legally adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Roberts, of this city. Recently she enticed the little girl from school and carried her to Linton, Ind. It is alleged she was not a proper person to have the custody of the girl, and a warrant, charging kidnaping, was sworn out by the foster parents.

OFFICERS SEARCH; LADY WAITS.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 11.—Officers are today searching for Ole Oleson, of West Terre Haute, while Mamy Skelton, who was to have become his bride last night has shut herself away from visitors. The bride to be has gone to the parsonage where the ceremony was to take place and was awaiting the arrival of Oleson. In the meantime while the groom was donning his wedding clothes at his home, officers with capias writs appeared. They were not quick enough for Oleson, however, who escaped. The bridal couple had planned a trip to Seattle, Wash., for their honeymoon.

TAFT ON LAST LEG OF TOUR.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 11.—On the last day of his long tour President Taft reached Knoxville early this morning. He will be the chief figure in a round of entertainments for four hours, then will leave for Washington to reach the capital Sunday morning. His stops this afternoon will include Johnson City and Bristol, and in the latter city tonight he will have cast Tennessee game for dinner.

NEGRO ESCAPES MOB.

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 11.—Slipping through a cordon set about him by a mob last night, Lee Armisted, the negro who fatally shot Town Marshal Yates and a convict guard yesterday at Plant City, escaped a probable ending by lynching. Search for the black continues.

DISSOLUTION BY ORDER OF COURT

Teaming Firm Must Quit or Members Will Go to Jail.

BEAVER IS IN AGAIN

Although the firm of Walda & Beaver has not monopolized any one line of manufacture it was put right in the going with the tobacco trust and other industrial octopi when Judge J. Frank Mungovan, of the city court, ordered a dissolution.

The firm is composed of Theodore Walda and Louis Beaver and the immediate cause of the order of dissolution was that they came into questionable possession of about half a ton of coal and were jailed last night by Wabash officers. Each of them was fined $5 and costs and jail sentences of five days were appended and suspended on condition that the partners split up.

Their stories about the coal were conflicting. Both said they bought it, but the judge opined that they stole it from a Wabash car. The firm is engaged in hauling ashes, tin cans, dirt, garbage and anything else it can get to haul. Beaver has been in court half a dozen times and has escaped severe punishment because he has a family. The judge thinks that their association in business is a menace to other people's property and if they are caught together both will be whisked off to jail without formalities.

The Other Cases.

It was shown that Duncan McFarland, who Friday night accused Lew J. French of impersonating a city detective, was so drunk when he made the accusation that he didn't know what he was doing and French was acquitted.

Conductor C. B. Mills, of the traction lines, who bumped Patrolman Crawley with his car, plead guilty to assault and battery, was given a good lecture and allowed to go.

Dude Dews is another coal thief for whom the judge could not work up any sympathy, so he fined him $1 and costs. He is working every day, has only his wife to support and when he picked up some coal on his way home Friday night he was arrested.

DECATUR NEWS.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 11.—In the midst of attractive surroundings at the home of Mrs. Harve Smith, Mrs. William Winness, a bride of a month, was given a shower by Mrs. Smith and Miss Nellie Winness. The company was greatly enjoyed. Progressive games, in which prizes were won by Miss Agnes Krick, Mrs. Grover Huffman and Mrs. J. C. Cole, contributed much toward the evening's pleasure. The guest list included Mesdames Henry Winness, David Stohler, Dallas Butler, Orval Harruff, Grove Huffman, Fred Schafer, Misses Agnes Krick, Nellie, Jessie and Anna Winness and Mayme Kitson.

Little Georgie Parrish, son of Orden Parrish, playfully set himself on fire Thursday with matches, not knowing that there was danger in the pretty flames. The fire was put out before the child was fatally burned and already he is on the road to recovery. A physician from Monroe has charge of the child.

Mrs. Vic Hendricks and Mrs. Fred Tabler, of Monroe, were shoppers in the city this morning.

E. Fritzinger and Chas. Patton have returned from a business trip to Fort Wayne.

START ALL OVER IN LIQUOR CASES

Issues Will Be Made Up in Fair Blind Tiger Cases Next Week.

COURT WILL ADJOURN

A new start will be taken next week in the cases against Oliver Steward and the men associated with him in the fair ground liquor cases, when Judge Marryman comes on Monday to take jurisdiction and start the work of making up the issues.

All of the motions in the cases made with a view of quashing the affidavits and search warrant will be argued again and an entirely new start taken in the matter. Steward took a change of venue and, although Judge O'Rourke has ruled on two motions, after lengthy arguments, the same questions that were involved will be given another hearing. These involve the rights of Prosecutor Albert E. Thomas to administer an oath on a search warrant affidavit and the return made by the sheriff on which Judge O'Rourke sustained the state's attorney.

Stoichi Case to Jury.

Arguments were finished at noon today in the trial of Endria Stoichi, charged with conspiracy to defraud the First National bank, and the instructions were given to the jury as soon as the court convened for the afternoon. The case has been on hearing several weeks.

Will Plead Guilty.

Harry Baker, who made one break for liberty while his picture was being taken and who later drank a cup full of disinfectant at the county jail, agreed today to plead guilty to a charge of grand larceny and he will be sentenced to from two to fourteen years in Jeffersonville reformatory. He will probably be taken away Monday as the sheriff is anxious to get rid of him.

Meyers Hearing December 8.

Today was the last of the December term of the circuit court and the case of Charles Meyers, charged with a criminal assault upon an aged woman, went over until Dec. 8. It was to have been heard today, but the court was busy with another case.

DWELLINGS TO BE BUILT.

$75,000 in Permits Have Been Issued Since November 1.

Building permits to the amount of $75,000 have been issued by the building inspector since Nov. 1 and all of them were secured for the purpose of building residences. There is no big building of any description included in the list and the largest estimate is on a $12,000 house to be erected on Forest Park boulevard.

LOCAL FORECAST.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 11.—Forecast for Fort Wayne and vicinity for thirty-six hours ending 7 p. m. Sunday, November 12: Rain or snow and colder tonight; Sunday snow and colder with cold wave.

GENERAL FORECAST.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Indiana—Rain in south, rain or snow in north portion and colder tonight; Sunday probably snow and colder, cold wave.

Ohio—Rain tonight, colder in north and west portions; Sunday rain turning to snow, much colder, cold wave.

Lower Michigan—Rain turning to snow tonight and snow Sunday; much colder with a cold wave.

Illinois—Rain tonight turning to snow flurries Sunday; severe cold wave, high northwest winds.

Summary of Weather Conditions.

The western cold wave has advanced eastward but little during the last 24 hours, but has spread southward and now covers the country from the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas westward to the Pacific; at Denver the temperature fell from 66 degrees yesterday to 2 degrees this morning; over Montana and the British Northwest temperatures remain from 10 to 20 degrees below zero. Unusually high temperatures prevail throughout the Mississippi valley and the lake region this morning.

A low pressure area which is central over Iowa this morning has prevented the eastward drift of the cold wave; this, however, will now move rapidly eastward, and will be followed by rain or snow in this section and much colder weather with a cold wave by Sunday.

PLAN TO PROBE OTHER DEATHS

Bodies of Mrs. Quinn's Former Husbands to Be Exhumed.

THE VERMILYA CASE

Chicago, Nov. 11.—A conference will be held today between States Attorney Wayman and Lieut. James Mooney, of the Kensington police district, for the purpose of deciding to what extent they will carry the investigation regarding the deaths of John McDonald, at Kalamazoo, Mich., and Warren Thorpe, at Jackson, Mich., former husbands of Mrs. Jane Quinn, held to the grand jury yesterday charged with the murder of her third husband, John Quinn.

Reports were expected from detectives sent to the Michigan cities to make investigations. It was announced that Lieut. Mooney would ask Mr. Wayman to request the Michigan authorities to assist in the investigations. Mrs. Quinn spent her first night in jail last night in a cell adjoining the one occupied by Mrs. Louise Vermilya, accused of the murder of Arthur Bissonette.

NEW EVIDENCE IS FOUND.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 11.—New evidence has come into the possession of the officials investigating the deaths by poison of which Mrs. Louise Vermilya is suspected, will in all probability result in the arrest of another person today. The plans of the officials leaked out after the official announcement that poison had been found in the viscera of two more victims had been made. It was said that the suspect slept last night under police surveillance although she probably was not aware of it.

A meeting between Coroner Hoffman, Chief of Police McWeeny, Captain Harding and a representative of the states attorney's office is scheduled to take place in the coroner's office today and the arrest will probably follow.

BAKER IS SENTENCED.

Harry Baker entered a plea of guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the circuit court this afternoon and was given a sentence of from one to fourteen years in the state reformatory.

Baker is the youth who made an attempt to escape after his arrest and later tried to commit suicide at the county jail by drinking a cup of disinfecting fluid.

ENDORSE CHAMP CLARK.

Dodge City, Kans., Nov. 11.—Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives, was endorsed for the nomination for president in 1912 by the democratic congressional district convention here this afternoon. Mr. Clark who was the principal speaker at the convention was cheered lustily.

CITY BREVITIES.

Mrs. D. Hopwood, of Boone street, underwent a surgical operation involving the jaw bone Thursday morning, performed by Dr. Griebel.

Miss Hildred Gruber, the little daughter of A. J. Gruber, of The Sentinel advertising staff, is confined to her home at 306 West Creighton avenue, with a severe attack of diphtheria.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY

The members of the T. U. M. club were entertained yesterday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock by Mrs. Henry May, of 1821 Gay street. Games and refreshments were the entertainment.

Mrs. Guy Williams was the hostess for a meeting of the West End Embroidery club yesterday afternoon. This was the hostess' birthday anniversary and many tokens of friendship were bestowed upon her by the club. There was a guessing contest won by Mrs. Frazer and Mrs. Imbody. Mrs. E. K. Abery will be the next hostess.

Chrysanthemum Flower Show.

The Flick Floral company are holding their annual chrysanthemum show this week and music by Young's orchestra this evening will be an added feature of attraction. The display is not confined entirely to chrysanthemums though they are the showiest part of the exhibit. The arrangement of blooming plants and cut flowers is very artistic and is attracting many visitors.

Jamey—O'Rourke.

Miss Alice O'Rourke, of Hanna street, and Mr. Grover Jamey were married Wednesday morning in St. Patrick's church, at 9 o'clock, by Rev. J. F. Delaney. Miss Marie Carpenter and Mr. George Jamey were the bridesmaid and groomsman. The bride was gowned in white satin with pearl trimmings and she wore a white beaver hat trimmed with plumes. A bouquet of white chrysanthemums was carried by the bride. Miss Carpenter wore a yellow silk mull gown made over satin messaline and her white hat was trimmed in yellow while a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums made a pretty finishing touch to her costume. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride and an informal reception was held in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Jamey will make their home in South Whitley. Both bride and groom are excellent young people with many friends interested in their nuptials.

BELLS TOLLED; WORE MOURNING

Rockford People Sorrowed Because Lorimer Held His Seat.

TESTIMONY IS GIVEN

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Fred A. Sterling, editor of a newspaper at Rockford, Ills., who had testified that he heard that "High prices" were being paid for votes to secure the election of Wm. Lorimer as United States senator in May, 1909, was cross-examined before the senatorial investigating committee today. Attorney Haney, council for Mr. Lorimer, sought to show that Sterling was opposed to Lorimer because of a desire to promote Gov. Deneen's prospects for the sensatorship.

Referring to an anti-Lorimer meeting at Rockford, one of a series of meetings held after the senate, following the first Lorimer investigation, voted to sustain the senator in his seat, Attorney Haney asked Sterling:

"Did a minister make the remark that he had just come from one funeral to attend another," meaning he regarded Lorimer as politically dead. Sterling answered yes and told of this and similar speeches and said resolutions were adopted denouncing both Lorimer and Cullom.

"Were arrangements made to have the church bells toll 46 times just as the meeting adjourned, to indicate the number of votes cast for Lorimer retaining his seat?"

"I don't know about the arrangements, but I believe the bell did toll."

"You knew that the ushers distributed mourning badges?"

"Yes."

"Weren't the people at the meeting asked to wear the badges thirty days?"

"They were."

WOODBURN NEWS.

Woodburn, Ind., Nov. 11.—C. C. Cramer, of Fort Wayne, who owns a farm here, was at the place the latter part of last week looking after the tiling of the farm. There is considerable improving being done on this farm. Otto Keller is working the place for Mr. Cramer.

Wm. Gernhardt is carrying a broken arm in a sling, as a result of his team getting frightened at a locomotive on the switch yards Wednesday evening.

C. W. Stadler and wife and two younger children left on Wednesday for Peru where they will visit for some time with the parents of Mrs. Stadler.

Moses Stucky has announced an auction sale for December 12. Mr. Stucky has purchased the Frank Wilson property in town and will move here soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Rumbaugh and Miss Pearl Applegate were Hicksville visitors Saturday.

Rev. P. H. Walter is holding a series of revival meetings at the Edgerton charge.

A. E. Augspurger is painting at Williams for Andrew Fuelling.

Miss Emma Mann, of Antwerp, niece of Mrs. H. N. Shockey, has been here visiting at the present week.

C. A. Lindemuth was honored this week with a call from the Grabill State bank to assist in the auditing of their books, to which place he went on Tuesday.

Miss Martha Augspurger was an Antwerp visitor Thursday.

Friday evening a number of the interested men about town met for the purpose of organizing the much-talked-of gas company for Woodburn. Stock was subscribed to the amount of $6,500 and the company is now assured and Woodburn will have lights.

OVER 150 SLEUTHS IN WABASH COUNTY

Secretary of County Detective Association Reports Rapid Growth.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 11.—Elmer Vrooman, of this city, secretary of the Wabash County Detective association, reported a membership of 174 for the society. This is the largest number that has ever been attained and reflects decided credit upon Mr. Vrooman who has been instrumental in the success of the society.

Last Ferbruary the association had sixty members and since that time has gradually extended until it now includes farmers in every section of the county and many lawyers and doctors. Thirty-eight of the members reside in this city.

There is a misconception abroad concerning the purposes of the society. Though essentially formed for the protection of the members against crimes, it also has educational and social features which are of value to every farmer and citizen. An example of the purpose of the society is the short course which Purdue will give here the latter part of December and which was secured through the efforts of the association.

The fact that the membership has so greatly increased of late is a strong indication that the residents of this county appreciate the value of the society.

FAMILY CIRCLE BROKEN.

Prominent Man of Huntington County Dies After Long Illness.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 11.—Harman W. Stults, a citizen of prominence in Huntington county for many years, died Friday afternoon at 12:55 at his home, 606 Henry street, ending an affliction with which he had been a sufferer nearly forty years. The end came quietly. He had been in a coma most of the time since last Tuesday, when he was operated upon to give temporary relief from acute suffering. Early Friday he rallied sufficiently to recognize his wife and then lapsed nto the finela sleep.

This death of Mr. Stults breaks a family circle heretofore unshattered. Mr. and Mrs. Stults had been married nearly fifty-three years. On the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary two years ago last March, all the children and the many grandchildren were present. In his last hours the family members were again reunited to await the end, the children residing elsewhere having arrived several days ago to attend his bedside.

MAY OWN NEW HOME.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 11.—From present indications the Bluffton Elks lodge may own a fine home within a few months. At the regular session of the order Thursday night a new proposition was talked over in connection with the proposed new club rooms, which may mean the order taking over a fine property in the city.

Although the location of the property or the name of the owner cannot be made public at the present time the deal may be closed within a few weeks. The lodge was very favorably impressed with the permanent home idea and this has been talked of at several previous times.

POLICE NAB JEWEL THIEF.

Syrian Crook Masquerades as Peddler—Woman Calls Officers.

Elkhart, Ind., Nov 11.—Prompt action of the police department resulted in the apprehension of a clever sneak-thief, shortly after the noon hour yesterday.

Mrs. Ella Stout, 225 Harrison street, telephoned to the police at 12:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon and stated that she had been robbed of four rings during a temporary absence from the living room of her home. Suspicion pointed to a peddler who had just visited the house and displayed his line of merchandise.

Officer Wooley, motorcycle policeman, was detailed on the case and within fifteen minutes had the thief landed safely in jail. A thorough search of his person was made and one of the rings, an opal set with chip diamonds and valued by the owner at about $25 was found.

The thief stated that his name was A. Sayad. He is a Syrian and is able to speak but little English. When asked to the disposition of the other rings he broke down and wept.

RUN DOWN BY MOTOR CAR.

Bluffton, Ind., Nov. 11.—The four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Marks, living on Sivey street, south side, was painfully hurt while walking with his mother Thursday afternoon. While crossing a street the lad attempted to cross in front of an approaching automobile with the result that he was knocked down by the machine, despite every effort of the driver to avoid striking him. While the youngster's injuries are not serious they are quite painful.

WILL BUILD ADDITION.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 11.—Plans have been prepared for another addition to the buildings occupied by the D. J. Dalton foundry, on West Market street. The additon will be on the west side of the present building and will be used as an office. D. J. Dalton, of Chicago who is the head of the company, was in Warsaw on Friday arranging for the work and attending to other business matters of the company.

PROMINENT FARMER DIES.

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 11.—Gabriel Kitterman, prominent Washington township farmer, died late Friday afternoon at his home five miles north of Hartford City, after an illness of some duration. He had been bedfast only two days. Mrs. Kitterman died three years ago. The two sons and a daughter who survive are: Mrs. Frank Nelson, Solomon Kitterman and Harvey Kitterman.

DRIVES AUTO INTO DITCH.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 11.—Dr. M. H. Fisher, of Markle, had a narrow escape from serious injury late Thursday en route along the Markle road, several miles southeast of this city. He was driving his auto and to escape striking a rig of Luke Wiles, while on the steep hill east of the W. W. Sutton home, he turned his machine down a side embankment. The auto did not turn over and by staying with the car Dr. Fisher was no more than badly shaken up.

COUNTY MEETING TONIGHT.

Ligonier, Ind., Nov. 11.—The Odd Fellows of Noble county will gather in this city tonight for the first of a series of county meetings. Several hundred members of the various lodges will be present for the occasion, and the local men have prepared a program that will entertain all. The Albion and Kendallville degree teams will perform special initiatory work on several candidates.

AUTO CRANK BREAKS WRIST.

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 11.—Walter Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Fleming, of north High street, met with a very painful accident when he attempted to crank an automobile with the crank lever down. The crank pushed back on his arm, dislocating the wrist and breaking one of the bones. Drs. Clapper and Dodds reduced the fracture.

GRIP EPIDEMIC IN CITY.

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 11.—Local doctors report a grip epidemic. Hundreds of residents are suffering from the malady which the physicians say is due to unsettled weather conditions. The medical men advise patients to use care in doctoring for relief, claiming that grip is but a forerunner of pneumonia and if permitted to get a deep hold may cause serious results.

BOYS IN HUSKING BEE.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 11.—Seventy students of the Winona College of Agriculture gathered at the Funk farm, near this city, Thursday afternoon and participated in a genuine old-fashioned husking bee. The faculty of the college offered several prizes to the boys who made the best records, and as results, some exceptionally rapid work was carried out.

HONOR GRAND OFFICERS.

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 11.—J. C. Loehner and Mrs. Mary Beidler, state officers of the Pythian Sisters, were honored by the local lodge members Thursday night, when a reception was held for the visitors. The function was attended by scarcely half of the members as rain and threatening thunder storms kept the women lodge workers within their homes.

BUYS MICHIGAN PAPER.

Kendallville, Ind., Nov. 11.—George W. Baxter, Sr., until recently one of the publishers of The News-Sun, of this city, has purchased The Dowagiac Daily Herald and the weekly Herald-Republican, of Dowagiac, Mich. He will take charge of both publications next week.

ANTWERP NEWS.

Antwerp, Ohio, Nov. 11.—The election here Tuesday passed off very quietly, a good deal of "gum shoe work" was done and resulted in the defeat of the republican mayor. No interest was taken by the candidates on either side; they did not get out and work as is usually the case on election day, and no money was used on either side. The floater was expected to use his own judgment if he cared enough to vote. It was the cleanest election pulled off in this county in years.

James A. Brown has again become a resident of Monroeville, having moved into his property on Summit street this week.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held at the M. E. church on that day at 2:30 in the afternoon. Rev. E. E. Campbell, of the Lutheran church, will deliver the address.

It has been reported that William and Chas. Smith, who own the land in Jackson township, where a number of oil wells were drilled a few years ago, will erect several derricks, install new machinery and pump some of the wells. It is generally believed that there is oil there in paying quantities and the fact that some oil leases are still being held not far from here would indicate that there is some foundation for the belief.

Walter Richards, O. P. Marquardt, Cleve Bauserman, Frank Crabill, H. F. Parnin, John and James Adams, Gottlieb Luenberger, John Richards, Wm. R. Allegar, Fred and Bernard Savio formed a jolly crowd of "Red Men" who attended lodge at Convoy Monday evening, where they witnessed initiatory work and were guests at a banquet later.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.

The chairman of the progressive republican campaign committee has sent out an appeal which goes to every state for adoption of the primary system in choosing delegates to the next national republican convention. While the purpose of this is obvious as a means of getting delegates for LaFollette or whomsoever the progressives put forward as their presidential candidate, underlying it is a principle of political action that should be brought uppermost. The progressives realize that with the machinery of federal officialdom in its hands the regular republican organization will enjoy the immemorial advantage of being able to pick whole state delegations for Taft that with the opportunity of free choice by the party masses would in a good many cases be broken. The same is true of the democratic party, though in less degree because of the want of official machinery such as the republicans enjoy. But the principle of the intent is admirable. There is no more reason why a candidate for president should not represent the choice of a majority expressed by the popular means of a primary to choose delegates than that any candidate for a minor office should not be selected by that method. In many of the states the primary system of nominations has been established with great thoroughness and approved results. It should work out as satisfactorily in the nomination of presidential candidates. Such a reform coupled with a change of the constitution providing that the electoral college be abolished and [illegible] votes for the presidency cast direct would be a notable and popular advance in government by the people. Three times in the history of the country it has happened that the president chosen by the electoral college was defeated in the popular vote by his unsuccessful opponent. But whether such a change of the constitution would be thought advisable or not, there is no reason at all why some modification of the primary system should not be applied to the selection of presidential candidates. In several states this is already provided for. It ought to be in all of them.

An eminent physician of Indianapolis declared in a public address a day or two ago that there are fifty thousand cases of tuberculosis in Indiana; that one out of every fifty persons who might be casually passed on the streets of the capital was a victim of some form of tubercular disease; that for every life taken in Indiana by smallpox, the very name of which strikes terror, fifty perished by the great white plague. There is doubtless no exaggeration in this; nor is there anything new in the statement. Tuberculosis is the most deadly foe of the human race. Yet it is less feared and less wrought against than almost any other scourge of humanity. The irony of the situation is that it is a disease readily preventable and taken in time in most cases curable. Fresh air, abundant sunshine, wholesome and nourishing food and salutary exercise are the allies that resist the invsion and rout the occupation of the deadly tubercle bacillus. It is one of the maladies in which self treatment is not only practicable but most efficacious. Yet it gets little thought in the general mind.

The crown prince of Germany seems to have kicked up a very interesting row by becoming a partisan of the opposition to the chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg. His action is broadly interpreted as announcement of his yearning for war and may have serious consequences at home as well as abroad. Meanwhile, let it be remembered that his imperial dad has not journeyed so many years from the period of youthful heat for conflict that got him the title of war lord. He is older and tamer, as the heir apparent doubtless will be by the time he is called upon to mount the throne of the German empire. Still, he has some capacity for mischief. The chancellor's policy in dealing with the Moroccan issue is unpopular enough to send a powerful faction of adherents to his views trouping after the ardent prince. That is, provided there is not something like a woodshed interview between the young man and his father.

There will be no arrest and correction of the crime of beating wives and neglecting children so long as the law maintains the present system of dealing with this class of offenses. Merely to deprive such an offender for a period of his liberty and let him loaf well fed in jail will do no good. The rather does it encourage the delinquency. Good hard bone labor under duress is what these scamps need. The state should provide means to keep them at work in such wise as to get the most out of their earning capacity and support their families upon what remains above the cost of maintaining the prisoners. Rigorous treatment of this sort will go far to reform the offenders. Besides it will be a thorough guarantee of support for the families of men who will not work or who, working, spend their money for drink and leave their families to starve. Toil is a great corrective of a variety of maladies.

The butchery of Chinese in Nanking by the imperial soldiers is a foretaste of what civil war in China may come generally to mean. The capture of Peking, with its Manchu hordes, would be celebrated by such a saturnalia of bloodshed as the Manchu excesses at Nanking and other places are calculated to provoke.

Another little movement with a meaning all its own contemplates a well greased and sharply inclined pair of skids for the use of Mr. Murphy in a sorrowful leave-taking of Tammany hall and the democratic organization in New York.

The dynastic crowd is remaining in Peking because there is no place to which to flee that is safer. Otherwise, it is the reasonable inference there would soon be a moving day for the dynasty.

WASTING SCHOOL HOUSES.

(Duluth Herald.)

More money is being made in business nowadays by devices that increase efficiency and make for economic production than in almost any other way. The profession of "business doctor" has become a fixed and permanent factor in business industry. There are men who make it their business to overhaul industrial plants in order to point out how, without additional expense, the production can be cheapened and enlarged and profits correspondingly increased.

It is time the public began to apply these modern methods to its own business. There is no more excuse for wasting the efficiency of the plant of public business than there is for wasting the efficiency of a factory. The proprietor of a factory can not ignore such wastes, because his capital is limited and competition forces him to keep abreast of the times. The only reason public business is able to stand waste of this sort is that it is not capitalized, and depends for its existence upon taxes drawn from the people in such ways that supply seems all but unlimited.

The school plants of the country, for instance, are in use about 20 per cent of the time they could be used. The 80 per cent is pure waste. If a manufacturer used only 20 per cent of the potentiality of his plant, he would go bankrupt very soon unless he had a very large supply of capital to draw upon, and bankruptcy would come as soon as the supply was consumed.

The public schools of city and country should be social centers. Politics has become a profession and a very evil one largely because the people have let it drift into private hands. Opening the schools to the people for public discussion of public business—which is politics—would restore the business of politics to the people.

President Charles R. Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin said the other day: "The schoolhouse and the town hall are the property of the community. At every center they should be available to the largest number of people for the greatest number of hours. If these buildings are available men from all walks of life in every part of the state and nation who have a message to give, may freely bring their offering to the community."

Progress is being made in this state in the consolidation of schools, replacing half a dozen one-room schoolhouses with an inferior grade of teaching talent by a single large schoolhouse well equipped and well supplied with competent teachers. That is not the end of the process. These consolidated schools should be community centers, should be unlocked to neighborhood clubs, and for the discussion of everything that is of public interest and importance, from politics to music and from art and literature to homecrofting and back yard gardening.

Only by such means can the community utilize to its fullest possible extent the potentialities of its expensive school plant.

This can be brought about in two ways; either by the action of the school board on its own motion, or by the organization of neighborhood clubs to demand the use of the school buildings for public purposes. The latter way is the better way because it will give the school board the support of a public demand and the assurance that if they throw open the schoolhouses they will be used in a way that will benefit the community.

FADING LABELS.

(Kansas City Times.)

"I have fought for twenty-five years," said Governor Harmon of Ohio yesterday, "to free Cincinnati from the sway of Republicanism, and am delighted to find that the voters have awakened."

Pardonable words, perhaps, from a prospective candidate, but not representing in any degree the feeling of the voters who made possible the defeat of the Cox ticket in Cincinnati. They were not trying to overthrow Republicanism or to introduce Democracy. What they were fighting against was the corrupt organization dominated by Cox. What they were fighting for was the success of decent government as represented by a high minded and courageous young district attorney, Henry T. Hunt, who was candidate for mayor on the ticket that happened to be labeled "Democratic."

American cities, happily, are coming more and more to feel that they don't care what the party label is in municipal elections so long as they get the sort of government they want.

LATE MARRIAGE DIVORCE CAUSE

Listed With Other Modern Developments as a Reason.

ST. PAUL MAN'S VIEW

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 11.—On four closely interwoven conditions which have developed in recent years in American life, Professor A. E. Jenks, of the department of sociology of the University of Minnesota, places much of the blame for the growth of the divorce evil to a point where for every seven marriage licenses issued in Hennepin county in the district court year of 1911 one divorce was granted.

Commenting on the divorce record of the Hennepin county district court for the year ended September 1, computation of figures for which has just been completed, Professor Jenks turned to a general discussion of the divorce question. The four chief reasons for its growth he held to be:—

Late marriages.
Women wage earners.
Independence of women.
High cost of living.

Two other causes, not so new, he named as false standards of family life and lack of appreciation of the fundamental principle of marriage.

The court records show an increase in the number of divorces granted in the court year of 1911 of 27 per cent. and of only 4 per cent in the number of marriage licenses issued.

There were 460 divorces in the court year of 1909-10 and 586 divorces in 1910-11. In the same periods there were 3,566 marriages and 3,714 marriages respectfully. Three-fourths of the divorces were default cases in which the person sued made no response.

Professor Jenks believes the increased number of divorces in Minneapolis and the country generally due to about the same general causes.

The most important, he holds, are late marriages, false standards and the independence of women, coupled with the high cost of living.

"Men and women don't marry as soon as they are grown up as our parents and grandparents did," said Professor Jenks. "Now most persons wait until they have formed set habits at home, and then they find they are hard to break after marriage. Marriage is a much easier to compromise when the compromise throughout, but it is so married persons begin before their habits are set. The girl may be used to different and possibly better things than the husband can afford to give her. She may not like to compromise. In many cases the man may have formed expensive habits, and he doesn't like to compromise. The result of failure to compromise is only too often a poorly provided home and separation.

"These late marriages also result in a greater independence for women. Woman's independence is growing, and very often her mentality and her balance ro not keep pace with her advancement in independence. When it does not keep pace there is a crash.

"The girl who is a wage earner until she is thirty years old is more likely to want better things when married and be less likely to economize than a girl who has been a wage earner but has married early. The former wage earner becomes dissatisfied if the income of her husband is not large, and trouble often follows.

"I do not refer to woman suffrage in any way when I speak of the growing independence of women as a divorce cause, but there are many women who are working hard and are showing great activity outside the home when they have not the proper balance. Some of our club women are doing a great work. Those who are doing the work have a fine balance necessary to do public work and keep the home intact. I think some of the strongest women of this kind are in Minneapolis. Disaster follows, however, when a woman without mental development and balance tries to go beyond the home. Too often it would tax the ability to solve the problems inside the home.

"The high cost of living has no doubt led to many divorces, and I think that if we could get at the facts at the beginning of many of these Minneapolis cases we would find the high cost at the bottom. The high cost often brings the husband into disfavor, and the wife's decision to work to get the things he cannot get is the first step in breaking the spirit of compromise."

False standards, Professor Jenks thinks, is one of the most disastrous things that can enter into family life, and he is bitter against the boldness with which some persons flaunt their domestic troubles where they can affect the younger generations.

"Persons who think they have artistic temperaments and are nervous and restless," he says, "often are married three or four times. They tell everybody about it and about the causes for divorces. As though these things are not sufficient, many of our modern plays, stories and books have a divorce for their central theme. The result is that a young married woman thinks she is abused when she isn't appreciated and the divorce follows.

"Children are the greatest of preventives for divorce if the children are loved. They are the real consideration and when the thought of the children occupies the place in married life that it should there is no trouble. The man who doesn't want to rent a house to families with children does not stop to think he would soon have no renters at all if there were no children. That spirit is but another false standard. Minneapolis has not had an enviable record in the last year according to the figures, but the city is not growing worse nor is the country. We need a readjustment of standards and then we will be all right. The readjustment is gradually taking place."

DOG WALKS 287 MILES BACK HOME

Stolen Canine "Foots It" from Evansville to Chicago.

CANNOT LOSE "REX"

Chicago, Nov. 11.—It's a walk of 287 miles from Evansville, Ind., to Chicago, and there aren't any sign posts on the way that a dog can read, but this is the trip that John Cummings, janitor of a flat building, says his dog Rex completed.

Rex disappeared two months ago and hadn't been seen at the Cummings residence since until he appeared gaunt and footsore, but with wagging tail and happy eyes. His effusive greetings to the members of the Cummings family left no doubt in their minds that he had worn himself thin just to get back to his old home again.

He took up his duties where he left them off when he went away, and alley cats left his neighborhood and late pedestrians heard the growl that told that the Cummings watchdog was again on the job.

Mr. Cummings insists that there isn't any doubt that the dog traveled from southern Indiana to Chicago, because he recently received information that the dog had been sent to that place.

When the animal first disappeared Mr. Cummings thought the dog catchers had captured him. A hurried trip to the dog pound was made, but no trace of the pet could be found. Then his master received information that a former owner of the dog had him. The man denied this report when Mr. Cummings asked about it. Then another tip came to the effect that the dog had been sent to Evansville.

Anyway, Rex has returned, and if he could talk he would tell a long story of his travels, if his starved body and worn feet are any indications of the length of his journey.

"He won't lack for anything to eat from now on," the happy janitor said, and I'd like to see any one else get that dog from me."

Men Who Helped to Make America

Pike, of Pike's Peak.

THE man who discovered and gave his name to Pike's Peak in Colorado hailed from New Jersey. He was born in Lamberton, February 5, 1779, and his full name, with its Yankee sound, was Zebulon Montgomery Pike, of Allamatunk, as the town was known at that time.

Pike's father was also known as Zebulon, and the younger Pike followed in his father's footsteps and became a soldier, filing his first services in what was then the Western frontier.

When the Louisiana purchase was made, and the exploration of the new territory became the adventurous work of the period, Pike was sent out by the government with a force of twenty men to trace the head waters of the Mississippi.

GENERAL PIKE.

He left St. Louis August 9, 1805, in a sail boat provisioned for four months. In the midst of hardships and perils, Pike and his men accomplished their purpose within two months. Upon his return, he was again sent out, [illegible] to explore the interior of the Louisiana territory.

Here he displayed great heroism and self sacrifice, and in the course of his journey discovered the great mountain to which his name was given. Reaching Rio Del Norte, Pike found himself in Spanish territory. He was seized by the Spaniards and arrested.

Upon his release and return, he was praised for his zeal, perseverance and intelligence and rose rapidly in the army.

He conducted subsequent explorations of value to the new country. In the second war with England he was killed on April 27, 1813, by a terrific explosion. He lived long enough to learn that the engagement in which he met his death had resulted in the enemy's surrender.

SOLOISTS IN THE ORATORIO, "THE HOLY CITY," AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH SUNDAY EVENING.

MISS ELIZABETH B. WALTS, Contralto.

G. A. LEHMAN, Baritone.

MRS. J. D. RAUCH, Soprano.

The second part of the great sacred oratorio, "The Holy City," will be rendered Sunday evening at the First M. E. church by the regular chorus choir of the church, consisting of thirty voices, and a quartet of soloists: Mrs. J. D. Rauch, soprano; Miss Elizabeth B. Walts, contralto; Edward J. Allen, tenor; G. A. Lehman, baritone.

The first part of the oratorio was given last Sunday evening and the church was crowded to the doors, many being unable to gain admission. The entire oratorio, parts one and two, will be given on Sunday evening, November 19. Undoubtedly the rendition of the second part tomorrow evening will attract a crowded auditorium.

The oratorio is one of the most beautiful of the sacred compositions and the leading parts being taken by such skilled soloists its rendition is sure to please. The director is O. E. Richard, who has long been in that capacity at the First church and is among the best in the city. The organist is Mrs. O. E. Richard, who has few superiors, a sweet player and skilled.

Mrs. Rauch, the soprano, although a resident of this city for a comparatively short time, has become prominent in musical circles, as she was at her former home, Logansport, where she was leading soloist in one of the churches. She possesses unusual ability in the interpretation of sacred music, combining with it a charm of manner that adds greatly to her effectiveness as a soloist.

Miss Walts is a graduate of the Indianapolis Conservatory of Music and has had the exceptional advantage of two years of voice study under Prof. Louis Frederick Haslanger, of New York, during his connection with the school. An earnest student and possessing a sweet voice, she combines with them a thoroughness in detail that makes hearing her a real pleasure. She is one of the leading singers of Fort Wayne.

Mr. Lehman, the baritone, is at present the chairman of the music committee at the Earlham college, near Richmond, which he is attending as student. He is a talented young man and has a baritone voice of unusual pleasing qualities. He has been heard in a number of the cities of the state. Sunday evening will mark his first appearance in this city.

Mr. Allen, the tenor, resides at Chicago. He is a singer who has attained prominence, his voice being full and rich. His part is one of the prominent ones in the oratorio and Mr. Richard, the director, is to be congratulated on having secured the services of Mr. Allen.

GAVE FINE CONCERT PROGRAM:

Local Talent and Mr. Davis, of Muncie, Heard at Wayne St. M. E. Church.

An exceptionally good concert of local talent with the assistance of Paul Hyde Davis, tenor singer of Muncie, was given in the Wayne Street M. E. church, last evening. John B. Archer, had charge of the music and contributed to the program four times by organ numbers that were expressive of his good taste in registration and skill in execution. Of his selections, all of which were well played, two numbers by Gounod, "Sing, Smile, Slumber," and the "Funeral March of a Marionette," and a capriccio by Lamaigre were particularly beautiful and both times Mr. Archer responded to applause. The rest of the program was vocal, with Miss Emil Verweire as accompanist. Of the singers Paul Hyde Davis, of Muncie, made a distinctly favorable impression. He has a sweet and pure quality of tenor that runs high with apparent ease and he sings intelligently and with musical feeling. Miss Lucy Bash, a soprano with a clear, sweet voice of lovely quality; Miss Ethel Doud, who has a rich, full toned mezzo voice of wide range; Miss Florence Lang, whose studies have developed an appreciable artistic conception of what she sings as well as her fine contralto, and Earl Thompson, a young baritone with a voice of beautiful timbre, gave the rest of an excellent program that was remarkable for a non-professional performance and was an indication of the progressive and really scholarly plane on which many students and teachers of music in this city stand. The entire program was exceedingly well rendered and applause was given generously at the close of each number. Miss Bash and Miss Doud sang difficult arias from operas with surprising flexibility and accuracy of tone. Their modesty and sweetness of manner contributed to the charm of their singing. Miss Lang was dramatic in Elgar's "Pipes of Pan" and she sang nothing more beautifully or expressive than Moore's "Bendemeer's Stream." Mr. Thompson sang three Schubert songs, of which "Impatience" was in all ways the best. Miss Verweire gave able and artistic assistance at the piano.

LUTHERAN CITY LEAGUE.

Arranging for Instructive Lecture Early in December.

What will no doubt prove one among the best lectures ever delivered in the city, instructive in its character, will be the lecture on "The Yellowstone National Park" given by H. W. Miles under the auspices of the Lutheran City league at the Emmaus hall early in December. Mr. Miles is the general manager of the Wylie Camping company and is now filling a two weeks engagement at the Madison Square Garden, New York. He goes from there to Buffalo and Boston and then comes to Fort Wayne for a three days' stay, two of which will be given to the city league.

The lecture gives a description of a 40-mile trip through this wonderland of America and is illustrated with several thousand feet of motion picture films and hundreds of colored plates, all showing views obtained during the trip. This will be the first time this splendid array of views has been shown in Fort Wayne and arrangements for attending the lecture should be made early.

SMITH AEROPLANE DISMANTLED.

Aviator is Considering Contract for Exhibition in South.

The Art Smith aeroplane is no longer an attraction at the Driving park, as Smith dismantled the machine Friday, preparatory to storing it, and today is busy taking down the hangar and cleaning up the camp, which hundreds of Fort Wayne people have visited in the past few weeks. Smith has been in communication with a Chicago booking agency, which wants to book him on a southern route during the winter, but as yet has not signed any agreement with them. The terms offered by the agency were unsatisfactory and since Smith has communicated this fact to them he has received word to change the contract to suit himself and that an agreement may be reached. Whether he will sign the contract though, is rather doubtful. He has expressed the fear that his aeroplane will not stand the strain of many exhibitions, owing to the fact that it has been broken so many times.

"There's a Reason"

SOCIETY

Young girls, who are so busy in school that they only take a peep into society in holidays and on Saturdays, found Miss Jane Meriwether's tea this afternoon the prettiest and merriest affair they have attended in a long time. Miss Jane's invitations were extended pretty generally to her young friends and the rooms presented the same attractive appearance and charm that guests at her mother's receptions the past three days found to contribute to their enjoyment. Young's orchestra played a lively selection of pretty numbers and delicious refreshments tempted the guests to the diningroom. Miss Marguerite Gross presided at the table and Miss Margareth Wilding and Miss Helen Watt assisted her. In the livingroom were Miss Virginia Randall, Miss Margaret Runyan and Miss Cecile Bradshaw, who visited with the guests and ushered them to the refreshment room. Miss Meriwether was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. James R. Meriwether and the hours were 3 to 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Griffiths, of California avenue, who have recently come to Fort Wayne to live, entertained a company of friends last evening at an old fashioned taffy pulling. Mrs. J. R. Gardner, of Norwood, O., was the honor guest. Games were played and an excellent supper was served all of which contributed to the pleasure of the guests.

Miss Emma Jacobs and John M. Jacobs have returned from Dayton, O., where they spent several days, on account of the death of their sister and her husband, Dr. and Mrs. Weaver whose death occurred within a few hours of each other. Dr. and Mrs. Weaver had been visiting here and were taken ill on their way home. They were prominent citizens of Dayton.

A number of ladies and gentlemen gathered at the home of Mrs. F. W. Freese last evening to give a surprise party on C. M. Mills. Mr. and Mrs. Mills were invited to the Freese home by a clever ruse and no surprise was ever more successfully executed. There had been many things prepared in the way of entertainment, including a cake with candles placed on top in the form of an interrogation point. Ice cream had the letter M. molded in each serving and to top off the celebration Mr. Mills was presented with a handsome leather chair. Everyone enjoyed a merry time.

A surprise party on Thursday evening was in honor of Leo Schlink, of 327 Brandriff street. The day was the young man's seventeenth natal anniversary and the young folks gathered enjoyed a game of progressive pedro and a luncheon in addition to the fun of the surprise. There were present Misses Bernadette Hayes, Georgiana Kirchner, Edith Klutz, Edna Miller, Sarah Salon, Celesta Schlink, Grace Crabbs and Messrs. Ed Kuyoth, M. Brozier, Earl Melton, Edward Castle, William Miller, Harry McKeon, Carl Pape, John Brown, Herman Schlink, Elmer Shoenline, Mr. Ebner and all enjoyed a pleasant time.

Mrs. G. O. Feustel, of Westminster place, gave a beautiful children's party this afternoon for her daughter, Thelma Margaret, who had a birthday anniversary. Everything was pink about this party beginning with the roses in Miss Thelma's cheeks and ending in the baskets of candy and pretty favors the children received. There was a cake with candles, a pink pie with ribbons that were pulled and had funny toys at the ends, cake and ice cream all of the same coloring. The children enjoyed games and a fine time in every way. Mrs. Feusiel was assisted in serving by Miss Florence Wells. The guests were Loretta Angela and Mary Catherine Gilmartin, Agnes Ann and Helen Carroll, Clementine Parnin, Dorothy Collins, Ruth Feustel, Doris Walsh, Ellen Marie Wolf, Mildred and Dorothy Garmire, Ruth Walsh, Marie Oddon, Marie Lidy, Helen Miller, Helen Vordermark, Mary Catherine Eckert.

ASK HELP FOR HOPE HOSPITAL

An effort is being made by friends of Hope hospital to secure supplies of provisions from the farmers and gardeners living near by to relieve the hospital of the necessity of purchasing these articles.

It is believed that there are many farmers who would be glad to contribute to this purpose.

The position of Hope hospital is somewhat different from that of either St. Joseph or the Lutheran hospital. Each of these has back of it a large denomination to aid it in carrying on its noble work. Hope hospital, however, is entirely dependent upon the free will offerings of the people at large and to meet the great expense involved it looks to its friends in this community for support.

Residents of the city contribute thousand of dollars yearly by a charity ball, and by gifts of money and supplies, yet each year there is a considerable deficit.

Were a large portion of the necessary supplies, such as vegetables of all kinds, fruits, (fresh and canned), poultry, eggs, butter, etc., contributed, the financial burden would be greatly relieved.

Farmers and gardeners have good crops of all kinds this year. We believe that they are interested in the welfare of Hope hospital and will cheerfully contribute of their crops, now that their attention has been called to this matter.

Three times each week the gardeners are on the market with just the articles that the hospital needs. Take the unsold portion of your load, or a part of it at least, to the hospital as your contribution to its support. It will require but a few moments of your time, and these gifts week by week will go a long way toward making the institution self supporting.

Give your name and address to the matron, as later on the list of all those who have contributed will be published.

Hope hospital is well deserving of the support of every person living in Allen county. Contributions of money are always welcome and needed, and just at this time the contributions of vegetables, fruit, poultry, etc., will be exceedingly welcome and helpful.

Share your bounties with Hope hospital.

In behalf of the Woman's Committee of Hope Hospital,

ANNA A. LOWRY, Chairman.

FRECKLED GIRLS

FRECKLES, TAN AND BROWN MOTH reign supreme here. SOUTHERN GIRLS live in a broiling sun the year 'round and have the finest complexions on earth. For generations they have used BLEACH CREAM. You buy and use tons of cold cream. WILSON'S FRECKLE CREAM MADE SOUTHERN BEAUTY FAMOUS. IT WILL DO THE SAME FOR YOU. Two jars at most (they are large) will bleach off the worst case of Freckles, Tan or Brown Moth and leave your complexion as fair as that of a babe, then one or two applications a week will keep you fair. The Cream is white, fragrant, harmless, fine. Will not make hair grow. I have just received a supply from the makers, Wilson Freckle Cream Co., Charleston, South Carolina. Sizes 50c and $1.00. Come in, see and try a jar, or send me the price and I will mail it to you. I will give you back your money if it fails. Sold by Dreier Drug Co.

The Secret of Keeping The Skin Wrinkle-Free

(From American Family Journal)

The great secret of keeping the face smooth, wrinkle-free and refined in texture is to use an effective astringent when the skin shows a tendency to become loose or the pores to enlarge. The best thing of the kind is a simple solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch-hazel. Used as a wash lotion this promptly tightens the skin, which of course smooths out the lines and wrinkles and reduces too-large pores.

Large pores, by the way, are responsible for blackheads, being so easily clogged with dirt and grime. The lotion referred to is therefore an effectual blackhead preventive. It is also valuable in cases of sagging cheeks and chin, the astringent action of course serving to "draw in" the folds and obliterate the creases. Saxolite, now being sold by druggists generally in this country, any woman can make this lotion herself.

The St. Cecelia Circle of the Kings' Daughters will hold their annual sale of fancy articles and cooking in the Wayne Street M. E. Church Parlors Thursday, November 16th, 4 to 9 o'clock. Cafeteria supper served by the ladies and society.

Genoa Ramekins.

From a stale loaf cut slices an inch or more in thickness and trim off the crusts. Fit them in buttered patty pans or in a baking dish. For four slices, make a custard with one pint of milk, two eggs and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. At intervals baste the bread with this until it has absorbed as much as possible. Over it spread a layer of grated cheese, a half inch or more in thickness. Stand in a moderate oven until the custard is set and the cheese melted and slightly browned.

Cold Prune Pudding.

Pick over a half pound of nice prunes, wash well in warm water, drain and soak over night in sufficient cold water to cover; cook in a double boiler until very soft, sweetening to taste when two-thirds done. Set aside until cool enough to handle, then remove the pits. Measure the syrup adding water, if necessary, to make one pint. To this add one-half of a cupful of fine tapioca, soak for ten minutes, then cook in the double boiler until clear. Add the well beaten yolks of three eggs, cook for a moment longer, take from the fire, add the prunes, cut fine and turn into a deep buttered dish. Whip the whites of the eggs to firm meringue with three tablespoonfuls of sifted powdered sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Heap over the pudding, dust thickly with powdered sugar and place in a moderate oven long enough to brown. Set aside and serve very cold.

FEMININE CHAT AND CHATTER.

Why will the conscientious woman take the trouble of writing out a list of what she wants before she goes out shopping? In nine cases out of ten the list is left behind, and she is much more inconvenienced because she thought she had it to refer to than if she had trusted her memory in the first instance. Perhaps she is certain she brought it and turns out everything in her bag in a vain search for it, scattering her keys and her small change over the floor.

Or, supposing she actually manages to take it, it has been scribbled in such a hurry she is not able to read it and the shopman waits patiently while she puzzles over a long word, finally deciding it must be something quite different. One enterprising housekeeper when she goes out marketing associates each intended purchase with a member of the family. Thus: "Why must I think of Ben? Oh, I recollect, because we want beets, and he hates them." This puts a flavor of sentiment into homely business. Another method is to construct a word out of the initial letters of the articles required. Rice, eggs, sugar and tea spell "rest," which the brain will certainly demand after such mental gymnastics.

The origin of fascination remains a secret. Why is one girl at a school adored by the rest, in many cases as good or better, as pretty or prettier, than she is? Possibly the siren is somewhat elusive, even fickle, incapable of returning in full the devotion she receives. Her power has made her like the man of whom Goldsmith wrote:

"He threw off his friends like a huntsman his peck.
For he knew when he liked he could whistle them back."

But this does not imply she is selfish, since no utterly selfish person ever held affection long. The human tendency to follow must be considered in these cases of unaccountable witchery, of veritable magnetism. If a commonplace being is glorified and put on a pedestal by one disciple, he is very likely to attract further worshipers. Should a young woman be lucky enough to acquire a reputation for breaking hearts, young men will be ready enough to allow her to perform this operation on them. As the warrior in ancient times found some satisfaction in dying by the sword of the great Aeneas, a sort of splendid shame exists in falling where many have fallen. Only a few have the capacity to judge for themselves of spiritual or physical excellences. Beauty to be appreciated by the multitude requires booming, and even the tender and mysterious sentiment of love may be caught by advertisement.

Womens Club Work in Ft. Wayne.

The League and Its Leaders in Twenty Years of Achievement

If at any representative gathering of the Woman's league of this city the question should be put, "Has the league been worth while?" there would doubtless be an unanimous consent. Even the woman the least familiar with the actual accomplishment of the league since its beginning in 1892 would probably feel that the affiliation of her particular study club with the league had in a way been of personal benefit to her; that she had acquired more mental poise or a clearer idea of one or more subjects. Club culture was the general idea of the league in its starting out, but the broad minded women who first proposed a union of study clubs of Fort Wayne, foresaw the opportunities that the strength of such a union might present and dreamed of possibilities for improving, not merely themselves, but also their community.

Early Days.

There was no literary club in the city numbering over thirty-five members at the time several women of the Saturday club began to consider the uniting of all the similar clubs engaged in art, music or literary study, into a league. A meeting was called at the Wayne hotel of representatives of these clubs. Mrs. Alice P. Dreyer was chosen as chairman and Mrs. Ellen R. Bursley as secretary of the meeting. That was in December, 1892. A list of the clubs that responded to the call for representatives will bring to the minds of members still living many pleasant memories. Of the eleven clubs represented at that meeting, nearly twenty years ago, are five that are still actively engaged in league work. They are the Woman's Reading, the Saturday, the Duodecimo and the Shakespeare clubs and the Morning Musical society. The other six who formed the early union, the Unity, the Wit and Wisdom, the Wednesday the Seven and the T. M. C. C. clubs, are disbanded entirely and members still living have become identified with other clubs.

An Eventful Period.

During the five years following its organization the league made rapid progress and executed big things. There has never been a more eventful period in the history of the organization in a similar length of time. The city seemed then, as it does now, ready for an uprising in civic spirit; ready to grasp and hold to a big thing and put it through. The four meetings held yearly by the league were crowded with work. There were departments of municipal government, of education and of social science. An historic committee was appointed to see about collecting books and papers relating to early Fort Wayne. There were formed in connection with the league co-operative committees and good citizenship minor leagues. Art and music were encouraged in every way. The public was led to take more notice of art and music matters and many women, at least, if not men, learned to view pictures with a more discriminating eye and to value music for its own sake and not merely because of the performer. Exhibits of pictures by students of the Art league and by artists of the state were shown. The Morning Musical society, numbering even in those days over two hundred members, worked hand in hand with the league and gave it its strongest financial support. It may be noted in connection of these two organizations of women, united in effort, that the Morning Musical society sprang into life before the Woman's league, by Miss Jane Ninde, at her home, and that there has never been a time in its history when the society has not prospered or when it has not stood for the advancement of musical art. For years no meeting of the Woman's Club league was considered completed without a musical program furnished by the Morning Musical society.

Papers and discussions concerning a public library, civic federation, sanitation, incorporation and the building of a club house were characteristic of each meeting and of many gatherings of appointed committees. So rapidly grew the league and so vigorous was its spirit that it soon desired to be an incorporated body and in 1894 became such, under the name of the Woman's Club league of Fort Wayne.

Interest in Civic Affairs.

In the early days of the club women there was a petition sent to the board of safety to appoint a police matron and another for a covered patrol wagon. Then the league bent its efforts towards having a woman elected as member of the school board. It is not necessary to go into detail concerning these ambitions of this body of women. Existing facts speak for themselves. No woman in this city ever got any closer to being elected on the school board than having two votes from the common council, Mrs. A. D. Guild, now living in Indianapolis, was the candidate at the time. After the failure the league shelved the matter and the dust is still collecting on it. On the other hand, nearly every effort of the league made was successful. But of all noteworthy things of those first five years, nothing was so important or so lasting in results as the establishment of the public library. In 1893 Mrs. Charles R. Dryer, who now lives in Terre Haute, and who was the first president of the league, asked Mrs. D. N. Foster to present the matter of a public library to the members. That was the beginning of league effort toward the enlargement of the free library and reading room that existed through the private generosity of Mrs. Emerine J. Hamilton.

Mrs. Foster succeeded Mrs. Dryer in the presidency of the league and during her administration a public library was opened in Fort Wayne. The handsome building with its thousands of books of which this city is justly proud, stands as a monument to the determination and effort of a small number of women.

In the sketch of the history of the league which was published at the close of the first five years of its work and of whom the presidents were successively, Mrs. Dryer, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Bursley and Mrs. George Felts, who served two years, the reader is impressed with the farsightedness of those in office. The individual club was lost sight of in the united effort to make the league a power and of use in the community. That partly accounted for its rapid growth and development. During Mrs. Felt's administration, the work was divided into four departments, namely, art, education, household economics and civic improvement. This came about because of the increased membership resulting from the addition of new study clubs and a larger membership of those already in the organization. Time needed to carry on all work that was deemed expedient, demanded a division of actual labor and effort. These four departments were separate working sections and they naturally served to bring the numerous clubs into a closer and more sympathetic relation. Each department had an appointed chairman. At this time there were more than four hundred women who were members of the league.

Entertainment Courses.

Perhaps one of the best examples of wide vision manifested in the early days of the club union movement here was the recognized need of having frequently a new element introduced. It was appreciated that it was easy to fall into a rut. So as a matter of inspiration as well as a means of culture, speakers from out of the city were employed to come here and talk to the league. Among those early speakers was Hannibal Williams, of New York, who gave a dramatic reading of "Julius Caesar." Then Mrs. Virginia C. Meredith, of Cambridge City, was invited to speak before the league. Audiences at these entertainments were at first kept within the membership of the league. That idea soon expanded, however, into something for the people. A Mrs. Jennings, of Toledo, O., was considered an attraction. Her work at that time was lecturing on Emerson. Before arrangements were completed Mrs. Ella Moore, of Chicago, was heard here on the subject of university extension lecture courses, and she won the preference. The first plan was abandoned and a course of university lectures taken in preference. With the exception of two years the league has annually conducted a lecture course since the early beginning. One season there was a course of free lectures given in the assembly room of the court house. The list of attractions has been noteworthy and included many important and even famous speakers, such as Mrs. May Wright Sewall, George Kennan, F. Hopkinson Smith, Robert Burdette, Leland T. Powers, Dr. DeWitt Talmage, Gen. John B. Gordon, George Riddle, Rabbi Wise, Jacob Riis, Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Frances Squire Potter and many others. Sometimes these lecture courses have been successful financially and sometimes they have been viewed with public indifference. At present the league, with Mrs. C. M. Dawson, as president, is conducting a course of dramatic readings and interpretations of six famous novels. Prof. S. M. Clark, of Chicago university, is giving these entertainments.

Further Accomplishment.

After the division of the league into four departments of work, many smaller things were undertaken and many of them were successfully completed. The late Mrs. C. B. Woodworth was a promoter of many efforts that tended in the main toward the civic spirit and the "city beautiful." Mrs. Woodworth served over two years as at first she finished a year of office held by Mrs. Frances M. Robertson, who resigned because of pressure of other work. Two traveling libraries were formed to circulate in the outskirts of the city, a work which Miss Merica Hoagland, who was one of the presidents of the league, was active in having done. Over one hundred pictures were purchased by the league and placed in the public schools. Waste paper boxes were placed on public streets. Flower and vegetable seeds were distributed to public school children and prizes offered to those who grew the finest examples and displayed them at a flower festival held in the fall. A number of things were done which were temporary as there seemed a need. A night school was held for a while, evening classes in cooking were conducted, an arts and crafts association flourished for a time, lectures and demonstrations on domestic science proved fairly popular and the league co-operated with the county commissioners in establishing a rest room at the court house.

Reorganization.

This widening of its circle of influence grew yearly. Mrs. W. E. Griffiths, who served as president for two years, found many new interests pressing for attention and Mrs. Walter Olds, who came here from Chicago with several years' experience as president of the Arche club, of that city, saw many new avenues of work and their possibilities. After Mrs. Olds, Mrs. I. N. Taylor became the highest official and during her administration the need of reorganization became so pressing that it was brought about. The name of Woman's Club league did not permit of the admittance of any organization not a study club. Reorganization resulted in 1908 and the name became the Woman's league. There were created two new departments of work, the industrial and the philanthropic. Almost immediately there became affiliated with the league the following organizations: The Young Woman's Christian association, the Needlework guild, the Visiting Nurse league, the Hebrew Benevolent association, the Willing Workers' Aid society, the Relief union, the Woman's Christian Temperance union and the Associated Charities.

These organizations became identified with the league, its membership was greatly augmented and its power to achieve was increased.

Impetus in Public Affairs.

The league had been generous in gifts. A number of years ago, when the league had in its mind's eye a club house of its own, a gift of $250 was made to the School of Art. The league then held its meetings in the building of the organization and continued to for some time. Other gifts were one hundred dollars to the Y. W. C. A. fund, fifty dollars to the Playground association and many smaller gifts for different purposes.

This desire to make the influence of the league felt in ways of public service has been equally characteristic of these later years of its existence. The difference now is in the scope of the organization. During Mrs. O. N. Guldlin's administration the Playground movement received its hardest push, one that landed the movement on firm ground. While this movement was not entirely the work of the league and co-operation in later months came substantially from the city and individuals, there's no denying that the Woman's league mothered the effort or that Mrs. Samuel R. Taylor gave the most time and actual expenditure of nervous force and energy towards its accomplishment.

It would be possible to write individually of each and every one of the twelve presidents of the league, telling of her work and finding much to praise and nothing to condemn, were that the object of this article. But it is not. Its purpose is merely to give a general idea of what the Woman's league has accomplished in its twenty years' work.

Novelties for the Motoring Outfit

The up-to-date motoring outfit is a very smart affair. The huge enveloping wrap with very little shape which was worn when motoring first added to the problem of feminine dress has given place to a smart coat moulded on the newest lines, and tailored to perfection, while the accompanying millinery is as becoming as it is practical.

The luxurious coats made for wear over elaborate frocks and slipping off and left in the electric brougham when attending social functions are not only carried out in rich sables, chinchilla or ermine, but they are also enriched with costly embroideries. Sable, of course, is only for the few, and the same is true in a less degree of chinchilla or ermine.

Among the more practical motoring coats there are perfect tailored garments in soft tweeds and homespuns, made with panel effects back and front, Raglan shoulders and huge pockets with flaps to button over, and occasionally there are coats belted across the back. These materials are just the thing for the open car. They give warmth and the appearance of it without being heavy, and, made up with linings of fur, such as muskquash or squirrel, they make ideal garments for motoring.

The colors, too, are admirably subdued. The browns and grays are subtly blended and there are autumn greens striped with some attractive contrast. Where a fur collar is not a feature of the coat a high collar of the material, which may be buttoned closely around the throat, is essential.

In millinery bonnets of every shape imaginable are to be seen, while footwear for the car includes boots to the knee, smartly shaped, and finished with linings of soft fur. The advent of the motor has brought back an old favorite, the gauntlet glove, without which no motoring toilette is complete. Like the boots, the gloves have linings of fur.

Leather coats for the car are also very attractive, and for the woman who drives her own machine there are coats specially built, with long apron fronts, buttoning at the side over the ordinary single-breasted front, to give complete protection against strong winds. These coats are very comfortable, and are smartly designed, with separate yoke extending as a panel down the sleeves to the cuffs.

The "Harem" veil is another novelty. This veil is practical and becoming, and it can be adjusted to any size of hat. It is brought round the head and deftly eased at the sides with adjustable slides made of elastic and covered in rosette fashion with the material, and it can be dropped over the face if desired when in the open car.

FORT WAYNE HAD THREE OF THE FIRST FOUR PITCHERS IN 1911

Charley Alberts Led the Central League Last Season and Hardin and Ed Pfeffer Gave Compton a Chase for Honors

Charley Alberts was the leading pitcher of the Central league for the season of 1911, and Fort Wayne had three of the four first hurlers on the circuit. Ed Pfeffer was third and G. Washington Harden was fourth, with Jack Compton sandwiched in second place.

Official averages of the league have just been issued by Secretay Robert F. Schnelle and they set out that Alberts won sixteen out of the twenty full games that he pitched. Although it is not generally known an effort was made to trade him in the early part of the year and the choice finally narrowed down between him and Harry Corns and the latter was let go.

Alberts struck his gait the latter part of the year and was the most dependable man on the local staff and if he had gotten a good start the pennant would probably have been hoisted here next year instead of at Dayton.

All told Alberts took part in twenty-seven games and was taken out seven times during the year. The records do not show how many times he was sent to the relief of the other hurlers. He gave sixty-eight bases on balls and struck out eighty-four batsmen and hit fourteen of them.

Compton won twenty-two games and lost six, for a percentage of 786 against .800 for Alberts. He had better control and gave only forty-three passes and struck out 140. Pfeffer won sixteen out of twenty-one games and took part in twenty-three. He struck out 108 batsmen and gave fifty-two passes.

George Wash. Harden held the strike-out record of the league and he took part in thirty-seven games, as many as any other pitcher on the Carson circuit. During his time on the mound he whiffed 172 batsmen, which is ten more than Buck Sterzer breezed in an equal number of combats.

Harden, Summers, Goldrick, Jones, Hale and Lindsay lead in the number of games as each of them was in thirty-seven conflicts during the season, which closed last September. Goldrick was the champion wild man of the league, as he issued 101 passes, hit eleven batters and made four wild pitches.

Ed Rodgers, of the Zanesville club, pitched 301 innings, taking the lead in this department with Whitey Donk second. He pitched 283 and Ed Smith pitched 252.

Charley Alberts, Bemis and Pattison pitched a no-hit game each and Pattison lost his. Harder, Stemmel, Goldrick, Jones and Valliere, each pitched a no-hit game and Compton and Stremmel each pitched four two-hit battles.

The records are as follows:

Frank Warrender, who finished the season in Fort Wayne, made only one error in fifty games and led the outfielders in fielding, with Phil Geier second and Wickland third. Roy Keener fielded .969, two points better than Curley Blount and Casey had a record of .959. Young was first among the Fort Wayne gardeners, with ten errors and an average of .946.

Klum led the first basemen and Bill Clancy was fifth in the list and Eddie Wheeler at the bottom. Vinkgritt was third among the second basemen, having been nosed out by Sandy Murray who beat him seven points. Blake was at the top of the list, but he played in only half the games.

At third McLafferty fielded .937 and beat Casey two points. Jack Pendry was the leading third gacker, while Ned Crowder led the shortstops with only twenty-six errors in 550 chances. Justice was seventh and is given credit for 139 games. He took part in every one played by the local club.

Dicky Holmes was the best fielding catcher, with Bill Bailey second and Jack Onslow eighth. The records show, however, that Onslow was the most valuable catcher in the league as he had 178 assists to his credit, showing that he was picking men off the bases with more regularity than any backstop on the circuit.

Pfeffer went through the season without a fielding error and Ed Rogers had only one in forty-two games and that was made on the local grounds.

LOST DOUBLE BY COUPLE OF PINS

Connolly Runs High Scores in Games at St. Patrick's Lyceum.

LYCEUM WINS OUT

Connolly made two double-century marks in the series between the Athletics and the Lyceum A. A. at St. Patrick's alleyes and finished just two pins shy of a 200 average. The Lyceum five took the series hands down, winning three straight.

Bracht and Frank Mills split the honors on the losing team, the former capturing the best individual mark with 193 while the latter picked off the average. The winners made an average of 824 for the three games and the men bowled in good form. Tiernan was second in the chase for the honors.

Centlivre cut loose at the Elks temple alleys in the final game of his three with the Ears and tabbed 235, going through the entire game without a break. This easily landed the high individual score and average for him. His club also beat the Hides two in three. Billy Williams was the star bowler on the winning club.

At Emmaus church alleys there was decided improvement in the work of the beginners and the Athletics and Vets played a series in which there was a very small margin in favor of the latter. The Vets won two of the three games and Lapp was high man for his club. Will Doehrman bowled 181 for high on the winning side and captured the average with 170.

Although there was little difference in the general result of the games at St. Mary's alleys the Recruits managed to take two in three from the Apps. Woehnker led the winners in individual work and average and by finishing with a score of 190 after a bad start Lauer beat his team mates on the shoe club.

At the Brunswick alleys the second league players were the stars and the Crestos got only one game out of three from the Magnolias although they bowled an average of 858. Rieg was not on hand to start and was out of the opener.

King was in great form and got 624 pins in his three games and started with 233, which looked good for high, but Draker tied it in the second game. Miller took the high average for the Crestos and tied with Scherer for the big individual score. Scoring was low in the first league games and the series went to the Colonial theater.

CONDENSED NEWS FROM FIELD OF SPORT

The Panhandle foot ball team, of Dayton, has six brothers named Nesser in the lineup and they aggregate over 1,100 pounds.

At the Yale ticket office it has been officially announced that applications have been made for 18,000 tickets for the Yale-Harvard game.

Robertson, pitcher from the Tidewater outlaw league is said to have something on Vean Gregg and he has been offered a salary of $750 a month by the Giants. A dozen clubs were after him and the bidding was high.

Until Jake Stahl makes up his mind to give up his place in a small bank to take the management of the Boston Americans under Jimmy McAleer, the metropolitan dailies will continue to run bulletins about him.

Frank Baker would rather be home on the farm than mingle with the stage folks. But "Good Night" is not going to be idle this winter and will make much money in some other line of endeavor. Baker has consented to act as a salesman for a big department store in Philadelphia. Baker is pulling down a large pile of kopees for his new venture.

That the maximum salary limit for new players be made $125 per month, instead of $100, has been asked by the Keokuk club, according to an announcement by M. E. Justice, president of the Central association. Circular letters have been sent out to all the clubs asking their position regarding the change.

The board of education of the city of Sparta, Wis., last night issued an order forbidding the playing of basketball by girls' teams in the high schools, the point being that public exhibitions by girls' teams are not conducive to good morals. The board is also considering forbidding football among the high school boys.

Joe Tinker, the Cub shortstop, who is now playing at a Spokane vaudeville theater, aspires to be a manager and would not be averse to succeeding Clarke Griffith at Cincinnati. But Tinker fears that his hopes will not be realized, as he is confident that President Murphy will effectually block any trade that might lead to his becoming manager of the Reds.

Jim Flynn, Pueblo fireman-fighter, is one who does not believe Jack Johnson means it when he says he is going to retire. Jim believes the big black's fondness for money and display will lure him back into the ring the first time there is a chance to grab off a neat piece of coin. But he does not think, at the same time, that Johnson is going to be in any hurry about it. Neither does he think that promoters anywhere in the world but Australia will be willing to offer him anything better than a moderate amount of money for performing.

VET OWNER WILL LOOK FOR DEALS

Needs Pitchers and Will Try to Swap for Them at San Antonio.

EIGHT MEN ON LIST

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Vice President Wehner, of the Vets, will leave for San Antonio, Texas, Sunday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Wehner and their daughter, to attend the meeting of the National Association of Minor Leagues. He will make the trip a hunt for pitchers, and will have plenty of ammunition with which to secure a flinger or two if the right opportunities present themselves.

The Vets are overstocked with players for whom they have no room, and Mr. Wehner will make an effort to swap them off for some pitchers, the kind of players Punch Knoll needs worst.

The Vets have eight players they are ready to trade for a couple of good pitchers, although the club officials favor hanging onto two of the eight until spring, if possible. Shortstop Mike Cavanaugh, Second Baseman Frank Rhoton, Catchers Tim O'Brien and Heinie Tieman, Pitchers Jimmy Wacker and Johnny Fisher and Outfielders Mike Donovan and John Dell are the players the Vets stand ready to exchange for some promising pitching material. Dell and Donovan will not be included in any deals if it is possible to retain them, however.

The officials figure Cavanaugh, Rhoton, Fisher, Wacker, O'Brien and Tieman will do them little good, and that they might as well trade them for players who will. None are up to the class Manager Knoll demands of his players, while O'Brien and Rhoton at least could not be induced to report here again, even if they were retained.

O'Brien and Tieman are the only catchers now on the Dayton reserve list, but there are some deals under way which will fill out that department with good men before spring. Cavanaugh did not show Central league class last season, and neither did Fisher or Wacker. Dell and Donovan are both promising outfield material. While it is almost as good as settled that Knoll, DeHaven and Wiekland will be the gardeners next year, the management is in favor of retaining the two extra men to protect them against accidents to one of the other three.

Mr. Wehner has a line on a couple of good pitchers reserved by clubs who are in need of players for other positions. He is going to the San Antonio meeting more for the purpose of making deals for these hurlers than anything else, and it would be no surprise if he brings back the releases of some good box men with him.

President Redelle is tied up with some other important duties and will be unable to make the trip, but with Mr. Wehner on the ground Dayton will be represented by a shrewd business man who has come to the front in base ball matters with rapid strides the last two years.

The trip will be marked by good times all the way from St. Louis to San Antonio. Little Rock, Ark., Austin, Texas, and other cities along the route are preparing to give the convention delegates and visitors a royal time.

WILL HAVE HARD TEAM TO DEFEAT

Friars Stand to Lose Out on Good Record on Home Field.

MARION TOUGH TEAM

In the game against Marion at League park tomorrow afternoon the Friar football team stands to lose out on the record of no defeats on the home field for the reason that it will stack against one of the toughest teams booked in the fall schedule.

This, of course, is taken from the form displayed against the other clubs it has met in its history. There is the possibility that none of the others are in the same class with the Friars and that the Marion eleven stood out in sharp contrast because of the inferior playing strength of its opponents.

Be this as it may the Friars are primed for a hard tussle and they have been working hard this week on some new offensive play in the hope that they can cross the Marion line. Inability to score is the greatest drawback.

Fort Wayne football enthusiasts are slowly awakening to the fact that they have in our midst a football team that is entitled to consideration among the independents in this part of the country. The best of the lot has not been able to do more than keep the Friars from back of its goal posts and this is not bad for a club made up of independent players who are not subject to the same training rules that prevail in the colleges.

Another element to be considered is that the men will be thrown on their own resources. Coach Hutzell will not be on the field, but he has been gradually turning his work over to the leaders with the result that they are ready to begin where he left off and not much will be lost in the way of instruction. His play will be greatly missed, but there are some fast men to take the place he vacated and the men are full of confidence. The line-up for tomorrow is:

BOY ON RAMPAGE.

Humpy Skinner Runs Amuck With a Wheelbarrow.

HE CLEARS THE SIDEWALKS.

Wild Chase After a Companion Results In Serious Damage to All Who Got In the Way—After Committing Many Assaults He Fails to Do Errand.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.]

IT was a new experience in the life of Humpy Skinner, aged fourteen. New experiences had been coming to him every day since he was old enough to realize that a licking always followed his breaking a pane of glass, but this was something out of the ordinary.

He had been sent with a wheelbarrow to get a bushel or so of sand for household purposes, and no sooner had he started out than he began to feel the consciousness of power. Pedestrians gave the wheelbarrow and the boy a wide berth. Both men and women knew that no more deadly combination existed, while younger and smaller folks had something yet to learn.

Up near the corner was an oldish man leaning against the fence as he

"TRIED TO CRIPPLE ME, DID YOU?"

surveyed a vacant house with a to rent sign on the door. He was wondering how many rooms the house contained, and whether it was haunted, when Humpy Skinner noticed him and tried an experiment. He shut his eyes tightly and tried to see how near he could come to the man's heels with his wheelbarrow. He had a distance of forty feet to go, and he managed matters so well that he ran the wheel plump against the leaning man and knocked his legs out from under him.

"By jingo, but what are you trying to do?" shouted the man as he struggled up.

Repelled by Wheelbarrow.

"I thought I would see how near I could graze you," was the calm reply.

"Oh, you did, eh? Then you willfully, deliberately and maliciously ran that infernal thing against my legs in the hope of crippling me for life, did you? Boy, lemme get hold of you once!"

But Humpy drew back with the wheelbarrow and stood ready to repel an assault, and the man rubbed his left leg and continued:

"Are you such a lunkhead that you don't know that a wheelbarrow is an infernal machine? You have no right running it on the sidewalk. Begone with it before I get my paws on you! The idea of turning a boy of your age loose to maim and cripple and slaughter!"

Humpy was suppressed for the moment and got his barrow in motion after two collisions with the fence and safely turned the next corner—that is, it was safety for him, but in turning he drove three pedestrians off the sidewalk, and one of them came near falling on the pavement and recovered himself to shout:

"Boy, why didn't they give you a package of dynamite and turn you loose? By George, but it's got so that a man's life isn't safe even on the roof of his own house."

Asked to Suck Eggs.

Two minutes later the Jackson boy came down the street on the opposite side. He had been to the grocery and had a dozen eggs and three bars of soap under his arm.

"Hello, Hump! Where you going?" he called.

"After sand."

"Come over and we'll suck some eggs."

It was a great temptation to Humpy He had sucked eggs before, and his Adam's apple worked up and down as he remembered how speedily and satisfactorily the yolks had slipped down his throat and brought complacency to him for an hour afterward. That was before he had ever started to run a wheelbarrow on the sidewalk, however. Now he somehow felt that egg sucking was a boyish trick and far beneath his dignity. He had seen that men and women were afraid of his barrow, and he wondered if boys would be—if Tim Jackson would be. The only way to find out was to make a test.

Chases the Jackson Boy.

While the eyes of the other boy were upon him in envious mood Humpy rose up, grasped the handles of the barrow and made a furious dash across the street. Had it been a runaway ice wagon Tim would have stepped behind the nearest shade tree. As it was, there was something so menacing about things that he turned and fled ere the barrow was within ten feet of him. Humpy uttered a warwhoop and pursued, and eggs and soap were scattered on the sidewalk.

No living man or boy can push a wheelbarrow very far in a straight line, no matter how slow his pace. When he comes to a run his course is like a rail fence. In going a block Humpy tickled the legs of half a dozen men, almost ran into three trees and scared a grocer's horse into a runaway, but his ardor didn't abate until he struck a fat man and brought him down with a great crash.

Talk From the Fat Man.

A cobbler ran out of his shop and seized the boy and the barrow until it could be ascertained whether the fat man had been killed on the spot or only crippled for life. It was two minutes before the question was decided. Then the fat man rose up and began to talk. He called Humpy Skinner about a hundred bad names. He threatened him with over 200 kinds of punishment. He abused his father and vowed he would never take his hat off to his mother, and the way he did rip that old wheelbarrow up the back put a new wabble in the wheel.

"I don't know what this is all about," said Humpy when the fat man had finally got out of breath.

"But you run him, ober mit do wheelbarrer!" exclaimed the cobbler.

"How could I help it? Haven't I a right to chase a boy with my own wheelbarrow?"

"Maybe so, but haf you some rights to run a fat man over?"

"But he got in the way. When he saw me coming, why didn't he climb a fence or dodge into a store?"

"Hear the cold blooded villain talk!" groaned the victim. "Why, boy, why—why"—

Dog Was Unsuspecting.

And then he swelled up again and grew red in the face and gasped for breath and could say no more. The cobbler went to pat him on the back and lead him into a sewing machine shop where new and secondhand machines were sold on the installment plan, and Humpy took advantage of the occasion to make his escape.

He was sobered up a little as he passed on, but only for a short time. He saw a large dog standing on the corner while its master was in the drug store to get something for a cold in the head. The dog was looking across the street at a red headed boy, who was washing a store window, and he hadn't the slightest idea that his life was in peril. No sooner had Humpy caught sight of the canine than he had a plan. It was to strike the dog fair in the middle with the wheel of his barrow and throw him thirty feet high, the same as if he had been caught on a cowcatcher.

Wild Stories Circulated.

It was a run of a hundred feet, with no one in the way, and Humpy got up steam to beat an express. The wheelbarrow wabbled about, but for the last ten feet it kept a straight course. The dog was still looking at the red headed boy and wondering if he ever stole harvest apples out of the country when all at once the wheel struck him. He went down instead of up, and Humpy and the barrow went over him.

Boy, dog and barrow were piled in a heap. The dog recovered himself first and bit the boy, and the barrow and Humpy's howls soon collected a crowd. Some of them said that a building had collapsed and killed seven men and others that a street car had run over a coal dealer, but the policeman who came running up soon straightened out things.

"I want this boy banged to a tree for trying to kill my dog," demanded the owner as the cold in his head grew better.

"I can't do that," replied the officer, "but if I ever catch him out with a wheelbarrow again he shall go to state prison! Boy, take your infernal machine and make for home!"

"Where's the sand, Humpy?" asked his mother as he came limping into the house.

In reply he burst into tears.

"Dear me, but what is the matter with you?"

MICHIGAN'S GOVERNOR AIDS CAUSE OF SUFFRAGISTS.

Declaring that he favors woman suffrage and predicting that women will be voting in every State in the Union in ten years, Governor Osborn gave the suffragists of the State of Michigan more encouragement than they have received from a State official in many years.

As a result of the Governor's statement telegrams from women are pouring into the Executive's office congratulating him.

TO AILING WOMEN

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Fort Wayne.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen and worse troubles quickly follow. This is often the true cause of bearing down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, langour, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that has cured thousands of such cases. You will get better as the kidneys get better and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Fort Wayne woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills:

Mrs. A. Brooks, 221 Lewis street, Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills for five years whenever I have been in need of a kidney medicine, procuring them from Meyer Bros. Co.'s Drug Store. This preparation has relieved me of backache and pains through my kidneys and has restored my strength and energy."

$3.50 Receipe Free, For Weak Men.

Send Name and Address Today---You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 2686 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

Dr. Hardman Specialist

I Cure Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases

Reduced Fees Until November 15

Experiment may mean DEATH. Then it is too late. If HEALTH—LIFE — HAPPINESS mean anything to you, you cannot afford to put off getting well. There is not a moment that you can afford to lose.

Whether or not you can afford to rent a cheaper house, buy a cheaper piece of property or a cheap suit of clothes remains with your own judgment but YOU KNOW and everybody else knows that no one can afford to take any chance with cheap treatment where health and happiness are at stake. Inexperience and cheap unscientific methods too often lead to the grave or what is even worse; to permanent physical disability which can only be cured by DEATH. Does it seem startling? Yet you know it to be a fact. Would you have a blacksmith try to fix your watch? Would you risk your life behind a locomotive that was run by a novice and who had no practical training? I think not. Would you even allow your wife or children to ride in a carriage drawn by unbroken or untrained horses? Certainly not. But do you think it more absurd than to trust your life and health to the inexperience of untrained doctors?

Think, and you will readily see the similarity of the situations.

The body the (storehouse of the soul) was loaned to us by AN ALL WISE CREATOR, and it is due HIM that we take a proper care of it—and if harm should come to it in the way of disease it is our duty to see that every possible means be utilized to fit it for the use that HE has intended.

Do you not think that it is time that you started on the road to health?

Do you not think that it is the part of wisdom to start with the best, instead of experiments with incompetent doctors; those who have made no special study of these chronic and deep-seated diseases? In other words do you want to begin with a failure?

It costs nothing to be sociable. Come, let me prove the advantages of my modern methods.

Every man that does less than he should do at his desk, in the shop or on the farm, is weak in some way. I have found that the man who cannot accomplish all that he hopes or expects to is often the silent sufferer from some hidden Chronic or Pelvic disease that is slowly but surely undermining his health, usually affecting one or more of the important nerve centers of the body, and as surely unfitting him for competing with his fellow men who are strong and healthy.

These neglected or unknown conditions are usually diseases of the pelvic organs, which reflexly act on the organs of digestion, of elimination and the nervous system, which in turn has its influence on the brain. I have made a study of the nervous system and have perfected methods that will CURE Pelvic Diseases. I will give you a searching and thorough examination and explain to you the true nature of your trouble.

Hundreds of people in and about Fort Wayne who have taken advantage of my treatment are now satisfied and are enjoying the blessings of health. Many of these I have cured after they had vainly sought relief at the famous health resorts and spent much hard-earned cash in their efforts to get well.

Every day competition is getting more keen and the natural and inevitable result is that the weak must fall behind and watch those who are strong and healthy forge to the front.

I have spent years in the study and treatment of Pelvic, Nervous and Chronic Diseases and have perfected methods which will not only positively and permanently cure these chronic and deep-seated diseases, but will restore to a normal and healthy condition the broken-down and devitalized organs.

Think it over and consider if you can afford as a matter of business to neglect yourself and risk FAILURE because you are handicapped by disease.

Many a man has been forced to abandon a successful career because of some PELVIC or CHRONIC disease, which has insidiously wrecked his nervous system and unfitted him for performing the duties which he otherwise would have been able to perform.

It makes no difference how long you have been afflicted, if I accept your case I will positively cure you.

I have made it an invariable rule to accept no cases for treatment that I cannot cure. While this, of course, compels me to refuse to treat quite a good many cases which come to me, it has established a confidence in the public that when I accept a case for treatment I will accomplish a cure. This is the reason my business has grown to such remarkable proportions; that I have, beyond question, the largest business of my kind in the state, and hundreds of satisfied patients whom I have cured are ample evidence of my ability to successfully treat these chronic and deep-seated diseases in which the ordinary methods have failed. I HAVE NO TIME TO WASTE ON INCURABLE DISEASES.

I Repeat, No Man Can Afford to Run the Risk of Failure Because of Being Handicapped by Disease—Read This.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 9, 1909.

Dr. W. E. Hardman:

Dear Sir: On May 14th, 1908, I came to your office for treatment for a trouble I had suffered with for several months in such a way that I became almost unable to attend to my work; in fact, I could hardly walk more than a square or so without having to stop and rest. I can now say that I consider myself well and am able to attend to my work in an entirely satisfactory way. If my experience will be of any benefit to any sufferer I am glad to add my word of gratitude for your treatment.

(Signed.) AUGUST ZOLLINGER,
701 East Washington St., Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 10, 1910.

Dr. W. E. Hardman, Fort Wayne, Ind.:

Dear Doctor—On October 29th I called on you for treatment for a Fistula, Stricture and Prostatic inflammation with which I had suffered for over ten 10) years to such an extent that it was almost impossible for me to attend to my business.

I have treated with you only a little over three (3) months and I can truthfully say that I consider myself practically a well man, although you stated when I began treatment that it would take several months to cure me. I have spent many times what you asked me for a complete cure, and have heretofore received absolutely no benefit whatever, and I consider that the price you asked me, and the money I paid you, the cheapest investment that I have ever made in my life.

Sincerely yours,
E. L. WATSON,
Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 10, 1910.

State of Indiana, Allen County:

Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public, the within named affiant, Dr. W. E. Hardman, who deposeth and saith upon oath that the above letters of endorsement are bona fide and true copies of letters on file in his office and that the originals are duly signed by the parties writing them, and that he agrees to forfeit one hundred ($100.00) if it can be shown that they are not what as represented to be.

WM. SWAYNE. (Seal.)
Notary Public.

These letters are taken at random from among the many which I have on file at my office, and everybody who is interested in obtaining a cure is welcome to call and examine the same. I have letters from some of the best people in and about Fort Wayne who are glad to show their appreciation of my services and their gratitude to me for having cured them.

BLOOD POISON—Only the most advanced methods are used by me in the treatment of Blood Poison and kindred diseases.

I use serum and vegetable drugs, and by their use I am able to rid the body of the poisons in about half of the time necessary by the old methods. Besides mercury and mineral poisons often ruin a man and leave him in a decidedly worse condition than before he began the treatment.

ECZEMA and other skin diseases are quickly and permanently cured.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and nearly all nervous diseases are the direct result of Chronic or imperfectly treated PELVIC DISEASES, such as VARICOCELE, PILES, FISTULA, STRICTURE, etc. I not only remove the cause, but many years of experience in the treatment of nervous and pelvic diseases enable me by special methods to revitalize the entire nervous system and to restore to perfect health nearly all sufferers from NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and VITAL WEAKNESS.

PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT—This may result from a number of causes. The constant jarring and vibration of trains and trolley cars are a very potent cause. Bicycle riding and the use of riding implements on the farm are factors in producing this disease. In fact, the causes are so many and varied that fully 75 per cent of all adults are afflicted to a greater or less extent by this disease. The disease is so little understood, and as one of the principal symptoms is a pain in the back, it is usually called kidney trouble, and treated with local applications or sedatives, which can do no possible good whatever. I reduce the enlargement and have been able to cure about 90 per cent of all cases.

VARICOCELE—I cure Varicocele in a few days' or weeks' time without the use of the knife.

STRICTURE—I readily remove stricture by my solvent method without the use of instruments.

PILES, FISTULA, ETC., cured without detention from business and without the use of the knife.

RUPTURES—I cure ruptures in a few treatments without the use of the knife and without pain or detention from business.

Fully one-half of these cases that are operated upon result in partial or complete failure. One hundred per cent of those I have treated have proven successful.

Think of it, can you afford to run the risk of an operation when a more successful method may be had? And without the consequent suffering and detention in the hospital, and at the same time you are able to go about your usual work.

The wonderful growth of my business and the unprecedented success I have had in treating those chronic and deep-seated diseases is due to a number of causes.

Clean advertising and clean business methods naturally bring to me an intelligent and self-respecting class of people.

I have always made it a rule never to put into my advertising anything that might be deemed vulgar or offensive by the most critical.

I have made it a point never to accept any case for treatment that I thought incurable.

I always give everyone a thorough and systematic examination and endeavor to find the exact condition before I begin treatment. I then treat the diseases instead of the symptoms.

I treat only a few diseases and endeavor to thoroughly understand every one of them, instead of attempting to treat several hundred, which naturally would make it impossible to give more than a superficial study to each one.

Is it any wonder then why I have been so phenomenally successful?

As to my responsibility, ask the banks or look me up in the commercial agencies.

All I ask is a fair chance and I will give you the cure you have paid others for.

OVERTIME RULE AT ELECTRIC WORKS

Some Departments in Operation Thirteen Hours Per Day.

PENNSY SHOPS TAKE ON MORE MEN

Car Repair Work is Being Pushed Along—News of the Rail.

While business with some of the industries in Fort Wayne is lagging and not up to the standard of former years, the Fort Wayne Electric works has all the working force can handle. For two or three weeks the laboratory, the fan motor and the instrument and meter departments have been compelled to run thirteen hours per day three days in the week and often they are in operation all day and all night. The receipt of orders for factory products are so numerous that it is not likely that conditions in the operating department will be changed much until the big addition has been finished and equipped. Every available foot of floor space in the factory is now occupied with machines and benches and the working force is the largest in the history of the plant, facts which may be taken as evidence of the wonderful growth of the business of the concern.

PUSHING CAR WORK.

Pennsylvania Getting Ready for Big Business.

The car department of the Pennsylvania shops is very busy at present. Passenger cars are being repaired, repainted and made ready for business next summer and every freight car that can be made serviceable is being pushed through the shops as rapidly as possible. These will be in demand if the expected increase in the freight movement materializes. Passenger and freight car repairmen and some laborers are wanted at the shops and men are being hired there daily now.

ENGINEER SWEENY BETTER.

Engineer Louis Sweeny, who was stricken with paralysis one evening about four weeks ago while on his way home from work and was for some days supposed to be fatally attacked, is so far recovered as to be able to stand up and use his left arm, which until a week ago was helpless. He gives promise of speedy recovery. Mr. Sweeny has presided at the throttle of the switch engine known as the "house engine" for fifteen years. During his absence from the cab, Engineer Charles Lehr has charge of the throttle.

RE-ELECTED OLD OFFICERS.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Volunteer Firemen's company of the Fort Wayne Electric company Thursday night, which was also the annual meeting, the old officers were re-elected almost to a man. The new roster is as follows: President, William Melching; vice president, Cash Lutz; secretary, Gus Rogge; treasurer, Fred Duryea; member of board of management, Chief William Wortel; auditing committee, Nelson Bucher, R. R. Bartell and William Ehrman.

SHOPS CLOSED TODAY.

The minimum working time was the rule at the Wabash shops during the week just closed and the shops were not running today. As a result the output was quite very great, there being only three engines which received general repairs. They were Nos. 1899, a Buffalo division freight; 105 and 513, switch engines, the former from the Peru yards and the latter from the Detroit yards.

HAMMERS SHUT DOWN.

Three of the big steam hammers at the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop are out of commission today. The boilers which furnish them steam are being tested and will not be ready for business until Monday. The men affected are James Trythall, Samuel Dunbar and Owen Barry and their heaters and helpers.

THE INJURED AT LIMA.

A telephonic message from the hospital at Lima this morning conveyed the intelligence that Engineer Hombolz and Brakeman Hostetler are making good progress towards recovery and Fireman Zelt was holding his own. The latter is in a critical condition, however his wounds being much more severe than those of the other men.

TURNED OUT FOURTEEN ENGINES.

Among the repaired engines turned out of the Pennsylvania shops during the week just closing were Nos. 7061, 7104, 7140, 7304, 7376, 7393, 7423, 7451, 9067, 9100, 9385, 9390 and 9963.

Y. M. C. A. MEETING MONDAY.

The regular meeting of the Railroad Y. M. C. A. will be held at the rooms next Monday evening.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Daniel Davis, Irvin Toy and Earl Malone, of the Bass shops, will go to Rome City tonight to do a little fishing.

Pipefitter J. H. Waldman, of the Pennsylvania, and his wife have gone to Chicago for a visit with friends.

Fred Starke, a retired Pennsylvania blacksmith, went to Chicago this morning to spend a month with his daughter.

George L. Smith, a construction man for the Fort Wayne Electric works, left for Vincennes, Ind., this afternoon, to install some electrical machinery.

Charles Kronmiller, S. Entradacher and Nicholas Snyder, of the Pennsylvania shops, went to the country today to hunt quail and rabbits a few days.

C. A. Dorffler, E. F. W. Hambrock, Nicholas Miller, A. Prange, Pearl Biegler, J. R. Carpenter and G. W. Lang, Pennsylvania shopmen, are sick and off duty.

Division Storekeeper C. P. Cherry, of the Pennsylvania, has returned from a business trip east. He visited Columbus, Pittsburg and other places and was gone a week.

John J. Teeters, traveling passenger agent of the C., B. & Q., has completed a vacation and resumed his duties on the road. Mr. Teeters has headquarters in Fort Wayne.

Frank L. Coleman, for a quarter of a century employed in the Allegheny shops of the Pennsylvania, is dead. A number of Fort Wayne shopmen knew him, through their visits to Allegheny or working in the shops in that city.

C. Kelley, Isaac Hoffman and W. A. Cook took employment with Foreman G. A. Szink, at the Pennsylvania shops this morning. Several other men have promised to report for work Monday.

Charles Doehrman, inspector of wheels at the Bass foundry for the Pennsylvania company, will go to Decatur this evening to visit over Sunday. Mrs. Doehrman has been there a week and will return home with her husband.

H. A. Philley, clerk at the Pennsylvania road foreman's office, is off duty today to assist in entertaining his daughter, Miss Virginia Philley, a member of the "Deep Purple" theatrical company, who arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning.

Dr. E. A. Crull was called to Lima Thursday night to see Herman Zelt, the Pennsylvania fireman who was scalded in the boiler explosion two weeks ago. Dr. Crull says Mr. Zelt is in a critical condition with the chances of death and recovery about equal.

Treasurer C. A. Dunkelburg, of S. F. Bowser & Company, and his wife left today over the Pennsylvania for the west, on a trip that will extend over a period of four weeks. They will visit points in Colorado, California and Mexico. Mr. Dunkelburg to look after business and Mrs. Dunkelburg for pleasure.

Unless there is a change in the present sentiment among the members of the Central Passenger association, which held its meeting in Chicago this week, there will be no holiday rates on the lines running through Fort Wayne. The association concluded that the two-cent per mile rate in many of the states was sufficient and no reduction need be made.

To Flake Off An Old Complexion

(From Life and Beauty.)

A woman need never cease to have a young-looking complexion if she will adopt the mercolized wax habit. The wax actually takes off the old complexion, with all its imperfections, and the newer and livelier skin, which then appears, bears that rare beauty and irresistible loveliness that only a youthful skin can possess. The skin is indeed youthful, in reality as well as in appearance. The natural process of tissue-change, which slows up with the passing of the years, and in most conditions of ill-health, is hastened along by this mercolized wax treatment. Faded, yellowish or blotchy surface skin is flaked off in powder-like particles, a little each day, causing no inconvenience.

Mercolized wax, now procurable at any drug store, is the only known substance that accomplishes such results. It is applied at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning.

PREPARING THANKSGIVING DINNERS FOR THE COUNTRY'S POOR.

As Thanksgiving Day approaches charitable institutions in all the large cities of the country are making preparations to feed the thousands of hungry poor. Turkeys without number and a bountiful supply of other good things that help bring good cheer and happiness are given to the needy. Especially is this true of New York, where the Bowery Mission and other institutions keep the "open door." It's a great day for the "kiddies," too, and they apparently get as much fun in parading the streets in grotesque attire as they do in "filling in" on the good things to eat.

PLURAL AND SINGULAR.

We'll begin with a box, and the plural is boxes,
But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.
Then one fowl is goose, but two are called geese,
Yet the plural of mouse should never be meese.
You may find a lone mouse or a whole lot of mice,
But the plural of house is houses, not hice.
If the plural of man is always called men,
Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?
The cow in the plural may be cows or kine,
But a bow if repeated is never called bine,
And the plural of vow is vows, not vine.
And if I speak of a foot and if you show me your feet
And I give you a boot would a pair be called beet?
If one is a tooth and a whole set are teeth
Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?
If the singular's this and the plural is these Shouldn't the plural of kiss be nicknamed kese?
Then one may be that and three would be those,
Yet hat in the plural would never be hose,
And the plural of cat is cats, not cose.
We speak of a brother and also of brethren;
But, though we say mother, we never say methren.
Then masculine pronouns are he, his and him,
But imagine the feminine she, shis and shim!
So the English, I think, you all will agree,
Is the most wonderful language you ever did see.

Add ragged gray whiskers, and you have the fellow whose picture in the comic papers is labeled "Si." His wife was with him, very much so, for they held each other hand in hand with a tight clutch. They were waiting for the tide of traffic to thin out enough to let them across. But every time they attempted it a trolley car seemed to bear down on them. Several times they were stumped back to the curb, and they became convinced that the motormen were trying to mangle them under the wheels.

Not Libelous.

"I would like to know, senator, whether this is a libelous article?" one of the Washington correspondents asked Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi.

"What did you say about the man?" asked the Mississippi solon, running his eye down the page of manuscript devoted to the shortcomings of a brother senator who has gained for himself a rather generous share of unpopularity.

"Why, I guess the worst thing I said about him was that he is a cross between a buzzard and a hyena," replied the newspaper man.

FORT WAYNE LODGE OF PERFECTION TO CELEBRATE ITS 25TH ANNIVERSARY

First of the Scottish Rite Bodies in Fort Wayne Was Instituted a Quarter of a Century Ago, and the Anniversary Will Be Observed in a Notable Banquet Gathering at the Scottish Rite Cathedral on the Evening of Monday, November 20—Event to Be Followed by Convocation.

Sixteen of the Thirty Charter Members Survive, and Have Been Named, With Members of the First Class, as a Reception Committee — Barton Smith, Sovereign Grand Commander, Governor Marshall and Dr. C. B. Stemen to Speak at Banquet, With William Geake Presiding as Toastmaster.

FORT WAYNE Lodge of Perfection, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, will on Monday evening, Nov. 20, celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary with a notable banquet gathering at the Scottish Rite cathedral in this city. The occasion will be signalized by the presence of Barton Smith, 33d degree, most puissant sovereign grand commander of the rite for the Northern Masonic jurisdiction, who will be one of the speakers at the banquet.

Another speaker will be Thomas R. Marshall, 33d degree, governor of Indiana, who was a member of the first class upon whom the grades were conferred in Fort Wayne Lodge of Perfection, and who still retains his affiliation with the local Scottish Rite bodies, and also Dr. Christian B. Stemen, 33d degree, one of the living charter members of the organization. William Geake, 33d degree, thrice potent master of Fort Wayne Lodge of Perfection since its organization, and one of the most eminent members of the Masonic fraternity in the United States will be toastmaster at the banquet.

Will Bring Big Gathering.

The anniversary celebration will precede the annual fall convocation of the Scottish Rite bodies in Fort Wayne, and it is expected to bring together not only a very large gathering of the Scottish Rite membership in Northern Indiana, but to be made notable, also, by the conferring of the various grades upon one of the largest classes of candidates the Fort Wayne Scottish Rite bodies have ever known. Officers of the rite say that petitions are being received in large numbers not only from members of the Masonic fraternity in Fort Wayne, but from over the entire territory under the jurisdiction of the Scottish Rite bodies in this city.

Music for the anniversary banquet will be supplied by Schlatter's orchestra and by the Scottish Rite Cathedral choir, under the direction of John B. Archer, 32 degree, organist and choirmaster. The cathedral choir includes Ronald Dawson, 32d degree; D. Burns Douglass, 32d degree; E. M. Hulse, 32d degree; H. G. Keegan, 32d degree; G. M. Leslie, 32d degree; J. B. Crankshaw, 32d degree; Howard Van Sweringen, 32d degree; F. E. Stouder, 33d degree; B. Von Sweringen, 32d degree; E. F. Yarnelle, 32d degree; Charles W. Lang, 16th degree, and Charles H. Worden, 32d degree. The musical program follows:

Marching Song ..... Archer
Scottish Rite Choir.
Song ..... "Brother Masons"
F. E. Stouder, 33d degree.
Song ..... Selected
E. F. Yarnelle, 32d degree.
Chorus ..... "Rockin' in de Win'"
Scottish Rite Choir.

FORT WAYNE LODGE OF PERFECTION—PAST AND PRESENT.

(By William Geake.)

The present Scottish Rite bodies of Fort Wayne, of which we are so justly proud, are the answer to an invasion of jurisdiction by a clandestine body, known as Cerneau Scottish Rite Masons, headed by one Colonel Frambes, of Columbus, Ohio. In the early part of 1886 Colonel Frambes commenced peddling his wares to the unwary, making great promises to those well meaning but misguided brethren, who were duped by his misrepresentations.

In order to preserve the fair name of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite body for the Northern Masonic jurisdiction of the United States of America, which body having jurisdiction in Indiana since 1867, a meeting was called by a few of the members of said organization to counteract the evil influence of Colonel Frambes and to disseminate true information to those less informed, and to prevent, if possible, any discord in our great Masonic family, realizing that an injury to one is the concern of all.

With Illustrious Brother Sam B. Sweet, 33d degree, acting as chairman, it was decided to organize a Lodge of Perfection. A petition was circulated among the Scottish Rite Masons of Fort Wayne and immediate vicinity requesting a dispensation to establish a Lodge of Perfection, to be known as Fort Wayne Lodge of Perfection. A subsequent meeting was held at the Masonic Temple December 22, 1886. The first four officers elected and named in the dispensation were Wm. Geake, T. P. M.; Chauncey B. Oakley, D. G. M.; Alfred D. Cressler, S. W., and Quincey B. Hossler, J. W. The dispensation was granted under date of March 12, 1887, and chartered September 19, 1888.

The Charter Members.

The names of the charter members were as follows: Sam B. Sweet, George W. Pixley, Ferdinand F. Boltz, Wm. Geake, William W. Rockhill, Christian B. Stemen, Joseph L. Gruber, Charles A. Munson, John Lillie, Alfred D. Cressler, Ronald T. McDonald, Allen Zollars, Chauncey B. Oakley, James R. Gregg, Joseph W. Bell, N. S. Leuheim, Quincey B. Hossler, John F. Wing, Joseph C. Williard, James R. Bobo, Jacob J. Todd, Louis C. Davenport, Elmore Y. Sturgis, Robt. B. Allison, Alfred Hattersley, Robt. C. Bell, Caleb W. McMeans, James Rogers, George Loag, John Humphrey. All of the above named brethren were 32d degree Masons with the exception of Brother Williard, he being a 14 degree.

The first convocation U. D. was held October 26, 1887, when the ineffable degrees were conferred on forty-three candidates. Thus a legitimate body came into existence in Fort Wayne, which has prospered beyond the most sanguine expectations, and to the credit of those who had been misled by false misrepresentation and had joined the spurious body, be it said that nearly all withdrew and became loyal and true brethren of our present rite, thereby demonstrating their fealty to lawful and constitutional authority.

Fourteen Have Passed Away.

Of the thirty zealous brethren who organized the Lodge of Perfection, twenty-five years ago, fourteen of that number have gone to their reward, viz: Chauncey B. Oakley, N. S. Leuheim, Sam B. Sweet, James S. Gregg, Chas. A. Munson, Quincey A. Hossler, Ronald T. McDonald, Allen Zollars, Jas. R. Bobo, Robt. B. Allison, Jacob J. Todd, Robt. C. Bell, Geo. Loag and John Humphrey.

From that devoted band of thirty charter members has grown an organization numbering between fifteen and sixteen hundred members, with the finest building, devoted exclusively to Scottish Rite Masonry, in the world, and having all of the different bodies of the rite from the 4th to the 32d degrees, inclusive, splendidly located in their own building and a prosperous band of Scottish Rite Masons.

Charter members are Ferd F. Boltz, George W. Pixley, William Geake, John Lillie, L. C. Davenport, Alfred D. Cressler, Joseph C. Williard, W. W. Rockhill, Dr. C. B. Stemen, Joseph W. Bell, John F. Wing, Joseph L. Gruber, James Rogers, Dr. E. Y. Sturgis and Caleb W. McMeans.

E. F. Liebman as vice chairman heads the membership of the first class, October 26, 1887, on the reception committee. Others are Edward L. Craw, John S. Glenn, Levi Griffith, Edward O'Rourke, George W. North, H. W. Mordhurst, George H. Loesch, John W. Hayden, Ed. D. Rogers, John Shaw Stevens, Charles A. Wilding, Hugh M. Diehl, DeMott C. Gardner, James M. Henry, John D. Olds, M. S. Mahurin, Thomas R. Marshall, Charles Lomas, W. F. Heath, Charles E. Read, W. H. Shambaugh, James B. Williams and G. Will Wilson.

The arrangement committee for the anniversary celebration is composed of William Geake, 33d deg.; Frank E. Stouder, 33d deg.; Charles E. Read, 32d deg.; Albert E. Carroll, 32d deg.; Charles D. Tillo, 32d deg., and Harry L. Askew, 32d deg.

CONVOCATION FOLLOWS.

Large Classes in Prospect for Scottish Rite Degrees.

The work of the regular fall convocation of the Scottish Rite will immediately follow the anniversary celebration, Fort Wayne Lodge of Perfection beginnings its work from the 4th to the 14th degrees on Tuesday, Nov. 21, at 2 o'clock, and concluding in the evening with what promises to be one of the largest classes ever gathered to receive the degrees in this city.

Wednesday morning Darius council, Princes of Jerusalem, will take up its work at 9 o'clock, conferring the 15th and 16th grades. Emanuel chapter of Rose Croix will work on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conferring the 17th and 18th grades.

Wednesday evening and Thursday will be devoted to the work of Fort Wayne Sovereign Consistory, giving the grades from 19 to 21 Wednesday evening, and the remainder of the grades up to and including the 32d on Thursday. At the forthcoming convocation, also, the 29th degree, or Knight of Saint Andrew, will be exemplified in full for the first time in this city. The convocation banquet will be served Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock.

PICTURE SHOWS DETRIMENTAL.

Houston (Tex.) High School Superintendent Addresses Parents.

Houston, Texas, Nov. 11.—Society and high school work do not mix in the belief of P. W. Horn, superintendent of the Houston high school. Also picture shows and dancing should not enter the life of the high school student, according to the superintendent, who in a recent issue of the official school paper gives a frank talk to the parents.

The superintendent adds that should the outside attractions, such as picture shows, dancing, society, music and elocution, be worth more to the boy or girl, they should be withdrawn from high school. The two cannot go hand in hand, says he.

In reference to picture shows the superintendent says: "I do not believe it possible for a fourteen-year-old boy, who goes to moving picture shows from five to seven nights a week, to do well in his school work."

The superintendent concludes that the child should be kept at home and entertained by either their school books of the right kind from the library of the Y. M. C. A., or the public library.

COW SAVES HER FROM A COW.

Woman Being Trampled Is Helped from an Unexpected Quarter.

Kansas City, Nov. 11.—A cow took sides against its own kind in an encounter between Mrs. Kate Vermillion, of Old Fibler, and another cow. The friendly cow probably saved Mrs. Vermillion from being gored to death. As it is she was injured dangerously.

Mrs. Vermillion, wife of J. L. Vermillion, a farmer, had gone to a pasture to gather persimmons, and had started home when she saw a cow running toward her. She picked up a stick to drive the animal away, but it became more infuriated, and knocked her down and was trampling and goring her when the second cow came up. The latter, whether from enmity toward the first or affection toward Mrs. Vermillion, promptly attacked the first cow, while Mrs. Vermillion crawled out of the way.

She was taken to her home and is in a dangerous condition. She is forty-four years old.

During the decade from 1900 to 1910 it is estimated that 210,000 Greeks emigrated to this country.

DANIEL BOONE'S MARK ON STONE

Missouri Man Finds an Interesting Relic of Pioneer Days.

BEARS DATE OF 1790

New York, Nov. 11.—Avaunt the six score years exposed to the elements, but still as perfect as the day its pioneer engraver carved his name on it, a granite stone bearing the marks of Daniel Boone has just been discovered on the farm of W. L. Martin, near here.

The stone bears this inscription:

D. Boone, 1790.

Mrs. John Van Brunt, chairman of the Santa Fe Trail committee of the Kansas City chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, who made the recent motor trip across Missouri's central route highway, and to whom much credit should go for her work in interesting Missourians in the new state highway, has the portion of the stone bearing Boone's writing in her possession. She is retaining it until arrangements now pending can be completed for the purchase of twenty acres of ground where the stone was found. There a monument of Boone will be erected and a tavern built, so that tourists may stop and, after being refreshed, enjoy a rest under the shade of the forest trees near by.

It is a quaint story, this finding of a real marker made by the old pathfinder. The place where it was found is an interesting part of Missouri. Millersburg is on the old Boone's Lick road, about midway between Columbia and Fulton. In 1804 two sons of Daniel Boone, Daniel Morgan Boone and Nathan Boone, made salt at a famous salt lick in the wilderness of Central Missouri. Down the river to St. Louis they floated the salt in hollow logs. In two years the traffic in salt made a settlement at Boone's Lick and soon afterward Old Franklin, twelve miles away, was founded. The necessity for a highway between Old Franklin and St. Louis resulted in Boone's Lick road. It extended 150 miles west from St. Louis to Old Franklin.

William Frost, a farmer, was walking along Boone's Lick road early this summer. As he passed the Martin place the woodland pasture appealed to him. Sleep overtook him as he sat beneath one of the trees. In a dream he saw a mighty hunter bowing to him. He awoke and saw before him a stone projecting about three feet above the ground. There were marks upon it. Mr. Frost brushed away the dirt that had collected upon the stone and there outlined was the inscription.

Mr. Frost immediately called in old settlers who knew of Boone's life in Missouri and they confirmed Boone's signature. One peculiar thing about the inscription was the way Boone mad the figure 9. It is reversed and crudely executed on the stone.

When the Kansas City state highway party passed through Millersburg they were shown the stone. It was decided to cut off the part bearing the inscription. This was done and the stone was given to Judge Harry G. Kyle, in charge of the party. There is no doubt, say those who have seen the stone, that it was marked by Daniel Boone.

The Rayo Lamp

The Lamp That Saves The Eyes

Children naturally never think of possible strain on their eyesight when poring over a fascinating book.

It is up to you to see they do not ruin their young eyes these long evenings by reading under a poor light.

The Rayo Lamp is an insurance against eye troubles, alike for young and old.

The Rayo is a low-priced lamp, but it is constructed on the soundest scientific principles, and there is not a better lamp made at any price.

It is easy on the eye because its light is so soft and white and widely diffused. And a Rayo Lamp never flickers.

Easily lighted without removing shade or chimney; easy to clean and rewick. Solid brass throughout, with handsome nickel finish; also in many other styles and finishes.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of the

TOO TOUGH FOR WORKING GIRLS

Smart Set Dances Unfit for New York Public Hals is Ruling.

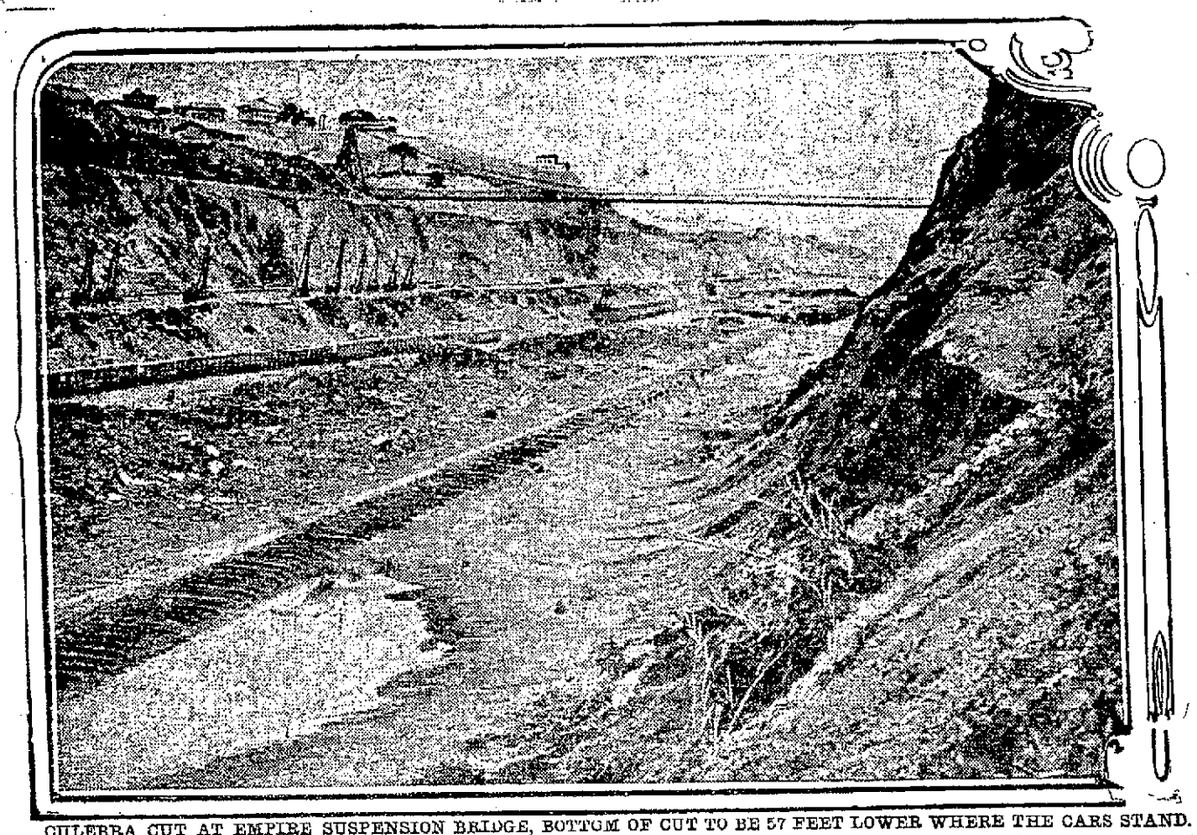
SAYS MORALITY BOAR

Millersburg, Mo., Nov. 11.—Standing "Bunny Bug," the "Grizzly Bear" and the "Turkey Trot." In spite of Newport's enthusiasm over these dances, the committee on amusements and vacation resources of working girls, of which Mrs. Gilbert J. Jones, Mrs. Edgerton Winthrop and Mrs. George McAneny are prominent members, decided at a meeting that they must be eliminated from ball programs if the morals of New York are to be saved. A committeee was appointed to visit dance halls and charge the proprietors permitting them with disorderly conduct.

"There is a veritable epidemic of rough dancing in the dance halls," said Mrs. Israels, who is a member of the Committee, "and we have decided that it must be checked. Of course, when the newspapers chronicle that Mrs. ——, of Newport, introduced and danced the 'Grizzly Bear' at her ball and that the most famous of all Russian dancers introduced the 'Turkey Trot' to his company, and in every vaudeville performance some 'team' introduces another of these dances as the smartest thing on the boards, it is only to be expected that young persons seeking to be socially correct and dancing at the Terrace garden, the Murray Hill lyceum and other family resorts should imitate. But unfortunately, the imitation has become such a fad and so bad in its moral influence that we think the most strenuous measures will have to be taken immediately to stop its spread and favor."

The committee will keep a calendar of all the balls of the season, and two or more of the committee will visit each dance hall and report upon the conduct of the dancers. If the "tough" dances or the "moonlight" dance halls (those where the light is almost extinguished) continue, the visiting committee will report to the bureau of licenses, which will take the matter up and revoke the license.

FAMOUS CULEBRA CUT, PANAMA CANAL—U. S. CAPITOL, DOME AND ALL, COULD BE BURIED HERE



CULEBRA CUT AT EMPIRE SUSPENSION BRIDGE, BOTTOM OF CUT TO BE 57 FEET LOWER WHERE THE CARS STAND.

The photograph herewith shows how the famous Culebra Cut looks to-day. The cut is ten miles long and deep enough to receive the United States Capitol, dome and all. Deepening of the cut and widening of the lower reaches has progressed satisfactorily with less interruption or interference on account of slides than at any time since trouble with them began. The slides have caused no increase in the total estimated cost of Culebra Cut. The Cucaracha slide covered 47.1 acres and the Culebra slide 46.6 acres.

GATUN UPPER LOCKS, LOOKING NORTH, SHOWING PROGRESS OF CONSTRUCTION OF UPPER GUARD GATES IN THE EAST CHAMBER

The above photograph shows a portion of the Panama Canal in construction and gives a very fair idea of the progress made in building the monster locks. Congress has already provided $238,561,136 for this gigantic undertaking. The total appropriations made by Congress leave $81,639,531 of the estimated cost of the canal yet to be appropriated.

Hate Will Never Save the World

Dr. Edward A. Steiner, of Grinnell College, Iowa, Speaks on "The Spirit of Brotherhood"—New Race is Being Born Answering the Cry for Fellowship.

Dr. Edward A. Steiner, who occupies the chair of sociology at Grinnell college, Iowa, in an address before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall, Chicago, on "The Spirit of Brotherhood," declared that the success of this nation and the hope of the civilized world lie in the destruction of race prejudice and class distinction.

"This is an age of transition, or social unrest," he said. "There is unrest in China, smouldering revolution in Russia, political disturbances in Austria-Hungary and even in this country there is a spirit of unrest under the surface. There are two great factors in the struggle of the people of this nation for brotherhood. The first is the desire for economical justice, and the other is the longing to turn the world over to men.

"Today in the womb of humanity a new race is being born—the Human race. One of the first great factors in bringing about this race was the discovery of this country by Columbus and it has advanced with the arrival of each new "Columbus" through the gates of Ellis island. Then there was the great lesson taught by Lincoln that no matter where or how low a man is born, he has a chance in this country to win the reward and the respect of his fellow men. Today this is the greatest chance that the world and the United States is offering to mankind.

"Let us satisfy the cry of our brother for fellowship, for the right relation, for brotherhood." There are currents in this country that will have to be checked. There is a strong current tending to exclude others and another to seclude ourselves in classes. But under all the cry for a new race is ever present.

"In this country there is the great American trait of unrest, to change in the hope of bettering one's condition. No average American ever dies where he was born.

'Give these people who are coming to help us make this new race, our brothers, the hope of a better tomorrow. Have reverence for the poor, not because he is poor, but for the human that is in him—for life rather than property. It is strange to me that the American is the fairest of all men among those of his kind and the unfairest among those of another kind.

'We shall never save this world by hate, by pressing it behind the bars, or God would have sent down a sword to smite us. There is no other way but to have the passion eternal for the human kind. Forget hate and in its place put peace, the love of God and good will for all on earth."

BIBLE STORIES FOR THE YOUNG

Senator Beveridge, in his book entitled "The Bible as Good Reading," tells us that "the Bible is by far the most admirable compendium of the best short stories to be found in the literature of the world." As mothers and teachers it it our privilege to tell these stories to the children of today. The good story teller is born, but there are certain rules the observance of which will help any one to become a very fair story teller.

A thorough knowledge of the story is one of the first essentials. You think you know the story of Daniel in the lion's den, but a careful perusal of the Bible narrative will show you how little you really do know of it, after all. You are familiar with the main facts, of course, but many of the little details that give the story life and interest have escaped your mind. In preparing the story, take your Bible and read it over carefully two or three times. Look up all the points in regard to the geography of the country and the laws and customs of the people which are not yet clear to you, also any words or expressions which you do not understand. Having studied carefully the facts and details, close the Bible and tell the story to yourself. Don't try to memorize it, but tell it simply and naturally.

Second, use the Bible language freely. While the story should not be memorized, the beautiful expressions of the Bible should not be lost. If you are familiar with the Bible language, you can scarcely tell the story any other way. Never mind whether the child understands all the words, just so he gets the idea. The Oriental language and imagery of the Bible are fascinating to the child. He loves such expressions as "True, O King." A little girl, in telling of Jacob's long courtship of Rachel, never forgot the expression, "and it seemed but a few days, so great was his love for her." Although only nine years old, she could feel the beauty of that phrase.

Very small children can perceive the beauty and majesty of Christ's words. A primary teacher, telling an incident in the life of Christ, thought that the biblical language was beyond the comprehension of the children, so she translated Christ's words into plain, everyday English. Immediately a little hand went up and a voice said: "Miss Smith, that wasn't what Jesus said. He said—" Then the little five-year-old maiden repeated in a sweet, clear tone the beautiful words of Jesus. My friend said afterward, "I felt rebuked, and I vowed to myself that never again would I be guilty of giving the children ordinary, commonplace words of my own, when I could give them the beautiful words of the Savior."

Tell the story accurately. You have no right to change the Bible narrative. Last year I heard a primary teacher telling the story of the wise men. She told the children that after the wise men had seen the baby Jesus they went back to Herod, and she even told what they said to him. Where she got her information I do not know, but certainly not out of the Bible. It is not necessary to tell everything recorded in the Bible. Some of it is not suited to the innocent mind of the child, and other parts are beyond his comprehension: but what we do tell should not be garbled. Let us give the child nothing which he will have to unlearn as he grows older.—Ex.

Journeying and Praying:

Ezra's Journey to Jerusalem.

International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, November 19, 1911. By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts.

Lesson Text—Ezra 8:15-36. Golden Text—Ezra 8:22: "The hand of our God is upon all of them for good that seek him."

(From the Christian Herald.)

A most interesting caravan has formed in the vicinity of Babylon by the river side at Ahava (Rawlinson suggests that it is the modern Hit on the Euphrates river.) Ezra, the noted Jewish priest and scholar, is the leader of the caravan. Seventeen hundred people have rallied to his standard. A journey of nearly a thousand miles is before them, from Babylon to Jerusalem. It was a dangerous way across the Syrian desert, which was infested with robbers. We notice the absence of a military escort, and wonder at the omission; for beside personal property there is treasure of gold and silver to be carried, amounting to between four and five millions of dollars. The caravan has rested at Anava for three days at the command of Ezra. Ezra's first review of the caravan was not satisfactory, because he found there no Levites, or religious teachers. They were necessary, because the expedition was for the purpose of instructing in God's law the dwellers in Jerusalem; so Ezra halted the caravan while he sent to Babylon for teachers. About fifty priests and Levites came, bringing with them two hundred and twenty Nethinim. The days of waiting at Ahava were days of fasting and prayer that God would be their shield and defense all along their dangerous journey. Artaxerxes, the king, would have given them a band of soldiers, but Ezra said, "I was ashamed to ask of the king a band of soldiers and horsemen to help against the enemy in the way, because we had spoken unto the king saying, 'The hand of our God is upon all them that seek him for good, but his power and his wrath is against all them that forsake him."

Trust and Effort.

But in the spirit of "Trust in God and keep your powder dry," Ezra for safety divided the gold and silver into twelve portions and delivered it into the keeping of twelve of the chief priests, telling them to account for it when they should reach Jerusalem. Even while men are trusting God, God wants them to do all they can to help themselves. That is why he gives men both strength and wisdom.

Packed among the treasures of Ezra were the "rolls." The rolls which Ezra had, contained the law of God, and he had planned the expedition to Jerusalem for the purpose of teaching the people about God's laws and how to worship him in the great temple they had built to the honor of his name.

The day of starting came and on and on they went for four months, from March to July, when they arrived safely in Jerusalem. Ezra was a kind and wise leader, for he told the twelve priests to rest three days before they should deliver the silver and the gold which he had put into their keeping. Then it was weighed and not an ounce was missing. It is most interesting for us to be told in Ezra, chapter seven, just how this amount of treasure was gathered together. Strange as it may seem, it was gathered by a decree of the king, "a heathen king," we would say, at least he was not a worshipper of the living God, but he seemed desirous that his Hebrew captive subjects should be true to their God, and there was evidently a feeling on his part that he might thus propitiate God, and make his own kingdom safer; for said he: "Let it be done exactly for the house of the God of heaven, for why should there be wrath against the realm of the king and his sons?" (Ezra 7:23.)

The Caravan of Life.

How vast is the caravan of souls thus passing along the journey of life! We see it is divided into two parts; one carries the banner, "In God we trust;" the other, "We can take care of ourselves."

In the first section, the faces are peaceful. Often we hear the sounds of song and of prayer, and there is sweet converse with one another, and incidents are given to illustrate the loving providence of God. One said: "A little boy asked his mother to let him lead his little sister out on the green grass. She had just begun to run alone, and could not step over anything that lay in the way. His mother told him he might lead out the little girl, but charged him not to let her fall. I found them at play, very happy, in the field. I said, 'You seem very happy, George. Is this your sister?' 'Yes, sir.' 'Can she walk alone?' 'Yes, sir, on smooth ground.' 'And how did she get over these stones?' 'Oh, sir, mother charged me to be careful that she did not fall, and so I put my hands under her arms, and lifted her up when she came to a stone, so that she need not hit her little foot against it.' 'That is right, George, and I want to tell you one thing. You now see how to understand that beautiful text, "He shall give his angels charge concerning thee, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone." God charges his angels to lead and lift good people over difficulties, just as you have lifted little Annie over these stones. Do you understand it now?' 'Oh, yes, sir; and I shall never forget it while I live."

Then another story was told by one who was journeying under the banner of Trust: "Some years ago there was a poor child left alone at the death of his parents in a distant island of the ocean. His father and mother were killed in a cruel war. Now see how God takes care of his creatures. The boy was very sad and wept much because he was an orphan. An impulse came to him from God, we cannot doubt, to leave the island and go to America. There he found kind friends who taught him to read and write, and who took great pains to teach him about God and about Jesus Christ. He became a true Christian. He wanted to go back to his island to tell his people about Jesus, but just as he had received his education and was ready to go, he was taken sick and died. His name was Henry Obookiah. By means of his life and death, good men became interested in his countrymen, and missionaries were sent there, churches were built, the bible was translated, and thousands were taught to read it and learn about God. The people destroyed their foolish idols, and they became a Christian nation."

Though we fail indeed,
You, I, a score of such weak workers, He Fails never. If he cannot work by us
He will work over us.
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Great is the treasure carried by those who are in the Trust section of life's caravan, for they carry with them the unsearchable riches of Christ. Hear the prayer of Christ for all who bear this treasure: "Holly Father, keep them in thy name. * * * While I was with them, I kept them in thy name, which thou hast given me, and I guarded them. * * * But now I come to thee. * * * I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil one. * * * Sanctify them in the truth." (John 17: 11-27.)

We will glance across at the caravan carrying the banner, "We trust in ourselves." They are not marching in an orderly manner; their ranks are broken and irregular, and not infrequently we see some fall by the wayside. As we look at them we are reminded of a story we recently read of a man and wife who were on their way to Alaska in a large covered wagon. Meeting a miner, they made inquiries about the way. "You'd better not go on," said he, "the bottom's all out of the trail." "We'll take the risk," they said as they continued along through the slush. The miner stood watching them, and in less than ten minutes he saw the ice give way under them, and they were precipitated into a lake. He heard their drowning cries for help, but he could give them none.

"We'll take the risk," is the password one hears all through life among those who think they can get on without God in the world. A little boy refused to say his morning prayers on the ground that "any boy could take care of himself in the daytime if God would take care of him at night."

Let none lose sight of the treasure, more precious than gold and silver, which God has intrusted to their keeping, for an account of it will be required some day, at the end of the journey, which is the end of life, in that temple not made with hands, which is eternal in the heavens. Let no one deceive himself by saying "If I choose to take care of myself, I will set aside my responsibility to God." Not so, for the riches which are in Christ have already been paid for in the coin of his own blood. We must all render an individual account.

The Hand of Blessing.

As we read the Golden Text: "The hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him," we seem to feel the gentle touch of love resting upon us. We can not forget it if we would. We would not forget it if we could.

In the nine heavens are eight Paradises.
Where is the ninth one? In the human breast.
Only the blessed dwell in the Paradises,
But blessedness dwells in the human breast.
Given to thee are those eight Paradises
When thou the ninth one hast within thy breast.
—Oriental.

HER BOY.

The picture tells its own sad story—the irate father and the broken-hearted mother, to whom we are all wont to extend some word of comfort. The Psalmist says, "Be of good courage and He will strengthen your heart." The story is told of one mother, whose son was given over to dissipation and drink, who sought relief through a steadfast adherence to prayer, in faith and thanksgiving: 'O God,' she prayed, 'I thank thee that the boy thou gavest me is thy child; that his soul is pure and holy, with no real desire to sin, and has love for thee only, in whose image and likeness he was created.' And mentally, to her son, she would say, 'Awake, thou that sleepest, and Christ shall give you life; sensual appetites have no influence over you; you are the child of God; your real desires are pure." Still he drank and, to all appearances was a drunken sot. Still she prayed, and acted out her faith, determined to believe in and trust God, in spite of appearances, and soon she was rewarded, for her son came to her one evening, and, on bended knee, said: "Mother, I am tired of being a beast; I purpose to be a man. I have been among the husks and swine long enough."

It is written, "Great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt."

HAD NO SALOONS FOR THE SLAVES

I was once addressing a colored audience in Richmond, Va., says Alphonso A. Hopkins, in "Profit and Loss in Man," when we were trying to carry that city "dry" in a local option contest. Upon the front seat, at my right, leaning his head against the wall on his left, sat an old negro, whose cheeks were wrinkled and whose wool was white. Something in his face attracted my special attention after a little, and I stopped and addressed myself directly to him.

"Uncle," I said, "you look like a very old man."

"'Deed, boss, I 'spect I is,' he answered.

"You must have been a slave before the war?" I continued, and promptly he made answer:

"'Yes, suh, I was.'

"Well, now, uncle," I asked, "when you were a slave, how much were you worth?" The question puzzled him, as I saw at once. "I don't mean," was my explanation, "how much property or money did you have, but how much did they sell you for?" He understood this, and he was glad to remember.

"'I sold as high as $2,000,' he said quickly, and with some pride.

"Indeed! then you must have been what they called a 'pretty lively nigger' in those days." He took no offense at this designation; he knew what it once meant.

"'Yess, boss,' he responded, 'I was.'

"Well, now, uncle," I went on, "when you were a slave and sold for $2,000, they didn't have any saloons for you, did they? They had prohibition of the saloon business for you then, sure, did they not?"

"'Deed, boss, that's a fact, suah enough!' he answered, earnestly.

How many northern people know that, under the old slave regime, it was a penal offense for any man to sell or to give liquor to the colored servant of another man? He knew it—this old uncle to whom I was addressing myself.

"Why," I asked him, "did they prohibit the saloon for you then? Was it because you were worth more to another man sober than drunk?" His face lighted up and grew suddenly younger; his old eyes gleamed.

"'Suah's you lib, dat's a fact!' he said, strongly.

"Well, now uncle," said I, "one more question. If there ever was a time when you were worth more to another man sober than drunk, wouldn't you always be worth more to yourself sober than drunk?"

I shall never forget the look on that old man's face as he heard this question. An absolutely new idea had entered his old brain. It was like a page of revelations. And I shall never forget the answer he shot back at me, as he straightened his arm out toward where I stood, and pointed at me his bony index finger.

"'Deed, boss,' he declared, and his words rang out clear and sharp through the silence, 'dat's a line shot, boss, suah's you lib!'"

Then the slave owner thought enough of his investment in the human form, of his cash capital in man, to make it a crime for anybody to sell or give liquor to his slave, both before and after the age of twenty-one. Now the white father, with like investment in flesh and blood, with equal money at stake and more humanity, plus all the love a father ought to feel for his offspring, will uphold a policy of license which means peril to the boy before he can reach majority, and ruin for him further on, with final utter loss of the capital invested and involved, not to speak of that other and greater value at stake—his soul.

Missing Men.

The flotsam and jetsam of the lake is cast upon the shore; none the less natural is it that the wreckage of the mighty human maelstrom which we call Chicago is to be found, battered and beaten, beyond hope of redemption, upon the city's water front.

"The port of missing men," one man called it. Not ten days since, there walked into the river at one of the docks, four men, who were hauled out by the police. One was the brother of President Harrison's law partner. One was the son of a millionaire brewer. One was the brother of a stock exchange operator. Still another was the brother of a Chicago police official.

The docks are packed with men of this caliber—men of education and refinement. The steamers occasionally employ them to move freight. Wharf rats, they call them. They drown by the dozen, but no one cares, for there are none to miss them.

"There are only two things that drive them here," says Mr. O. Burke, superintendent of the Graham and Morton Dock, "drink and women."

Occasionally the "rats" get too thick and the police make a raid. The saloons of Chicago turn them out faster than the steamship lines require. The supply is greater than the demand.—Ex.

Complaints from the Saloon.

The friends of the saloon keepers denounce their opponents for not treating the saloon business like any other. The best answer is that the business is not like any other business, and that the actions of the saloon keepers themselves conclusively prove this to be the case. It tends to produce criminality in the population at large, and law breaking among the saloon keepers themselves. When the liquor men are allowed to do as they wish they are sure to debauch not only the body social, but the body political also.—Theodore Roosevelt.

FATHER'S BIBLE.

Not long ago, while out making pastoral calls, following the usual custom of my ministry of reading and praying with my families, I said to the wife of one of my elders, "Will you please hand me a Bible?" In complying with my request the good lady said, "Doctor, this was my dear father's Bible. I can assure you I prize it very highly." There was in her tone a certain pathos which appealed to me very strongly. I made up my mind she had a reverence for the old book, says J. W. Campbell, in the Christian Intelligencer.

The book this good woman handed me was not an ornamental Bible. This book gave strong evidence of daily and long-continued use.

Upon opening it I was not only surprised but delighted to find the following inscription: "Daniel Rowley. From your friend, Cyrus W. Field, New York, January 1, 1849."

The giver of this book was a man of world-wide reputation, the man who laid the first trans-Atlantic telegraph cable.

Possibly in his busy life Mr. Field did not stop to ask what the influence of this Bible would be, but the influence of the book was marked. The recipient became a thoroughly consecrated man. His home was dedicated to God.

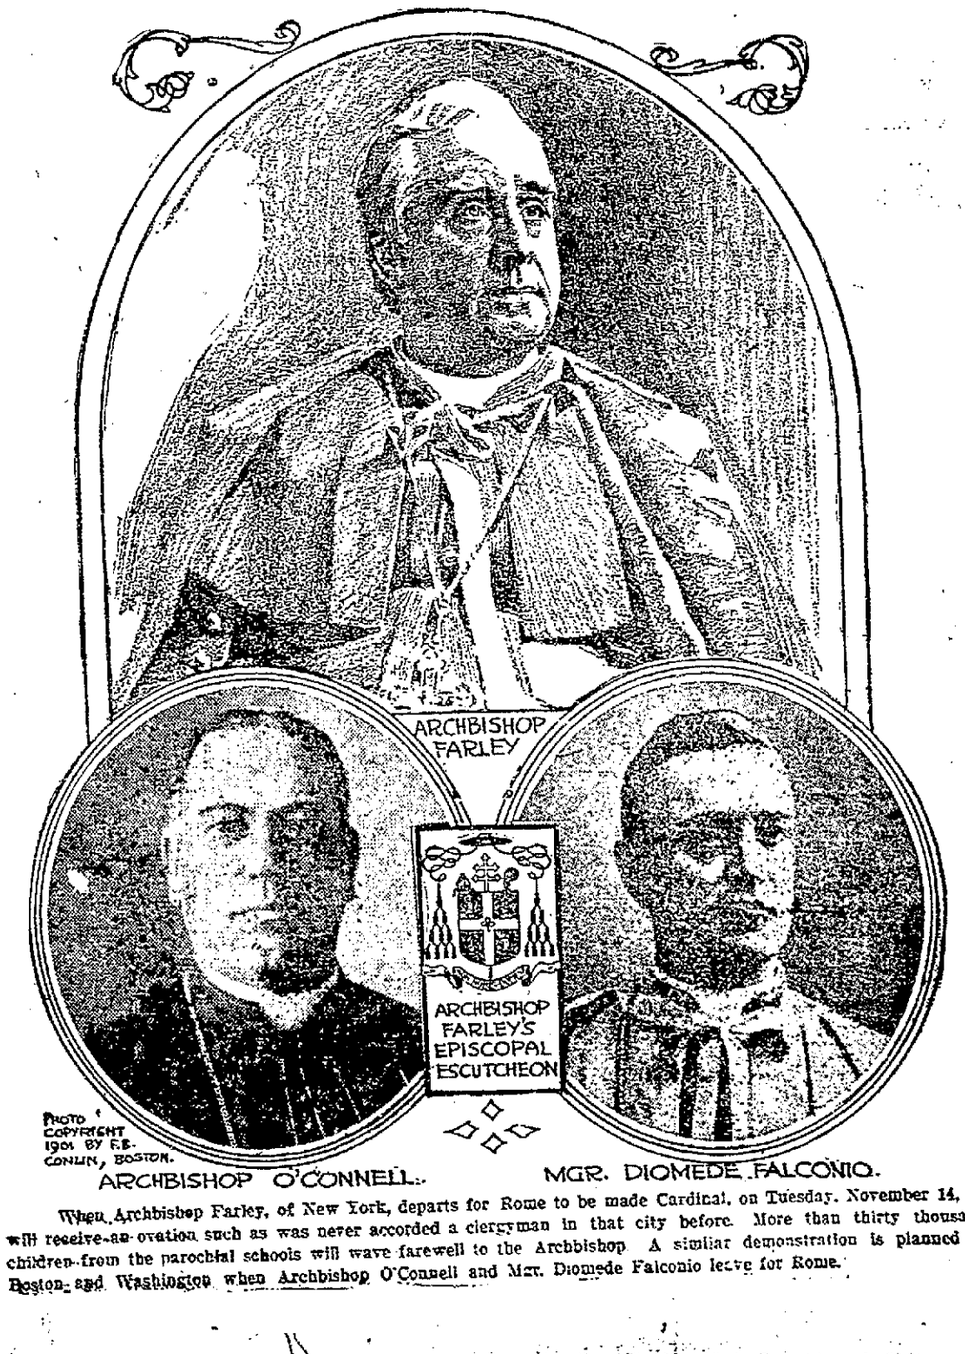
His daughter said, "Father had family worship morning and at night." Not only so; his family were always in their place at church. He was superintendent of two Sunday schools. The influence of the dear old Bible did not stop here—it has been like the "tree planted by the rivers of water," striking its roots down deep in the promises of God. Not only his children, but his grandchildren, have come into the church one by one. What is this, after all, but taking God at his word? "For the promise is unto you and to your children."

Seen by Its Friends.

Of all hard, harsh and truthful things said of the saloon, not one is more severe than the picture given of this institution by that western liquor journal, the Wholesalers' and Retailers' Review, published in San Francisco. In painting a word portrait of the American saloon, that liquor organ says:

"Any man who knows the saloons well can honestly say that most of them have forfeited their right to live. The model saloon exists chiefly in the minds of the editors of liquor journals, in the imaginations of a certain type of ministers, and in the mythical stories sometimes rehearsed at saloon men's campfires. Unfortunately, the average tippling house is a place of ill fame, a place of debauchery. With comparatively few exceptions our saloons are houses of drunkon men, profanity and obscenity of the vilest possible type."

PLAN OVATION FOR PRELATES WHO ARE TO BE MADE CARDINALS



ARCHBISHOP O'CONNELL. MGR. DIOMEDE FALCONIO.

When Archbishop Farley, of New York, departs for Rome to be made Cardinal, on Tuesday, November 14, he will receive an ovation such as was never accorded a clergyman in that city before. More than thirty thousand children from the parochial schools will wave farewell to the Archbishop. A similar demonstration is planned in Boston and Washington when Archbishop O'Connell and Mgr. Diomede Falconio leave for Rome.

BIG CHURCH FOR SPIRITUALISTS

Illinois Man Bequeathed $200,000 to Build Edifice.

HIS WILL IS UPHELD

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 11.—A church to be devoted to the cult of spiritualism and dissemination of the belief that mortals of this life may establish communication with those who have passed to another world, will soon be erected in Leroy, this county. The will of James T. Crumbaugh, of that place, a wealthy banker, provides $200,000 for such a purpose. The testament also sets aside $100,000 for a free library at Leroy.

The will has been attacked in the courts. Although an extraordinary document in many respects, the supreme court upheld it, and the relatives who were ignored were baffled at every turn. After many years of litigation the end has been reached, and the money is ready for the purpose intended by the eccentric testator. Prior to his death he selected these trustees, whom he directed to carry out the provisions of the will:—Wesley M. Owen and Yontz Bennett, of Bloomington; A. L. Coffey, of Leroy, Fred Horine, of Monarch and Clay West, of Arrowsmith.

It is probable that the estate, which is valued at nearly $500,000 and consists largely of rich farm land, will be left intact and the income used for the erection of the church and library and the annual maintenance. The income will be $12,000 to $15,000 a year. After the two edifices are completed it will be a problem what to do with the income each year. The will provides that the money must be used for the demonstration and instruction of the tenets of spiritualism, and the trustees have no great option.

The great possibilities of this fund have attracted the attention of Spiritualists all over the world, and they will no doubt present suggestions for the guidance of the trustees. It is said that some of the latter are not in sympathy with the cult and would like to see the money applied to other purposes. It is probable that the leaders of Spiritualism will take some action and appoint a board of trustees to co-operate with the trustees of the estate.

Mr. Chumbaugh was converted to spiritualism about ten years before his death and his mansion in Leroy was the scene of many seances. Mediums from all over the world made it their headquarters and followers of the cult from all over Illinois attended. In the main room of the house is a life size oil painting of a man which bears the mystic appellation of "Bright Eyes." This portrait is supposed to represent the only child of Crumbaugh, which died in infancy. It was the idea of Crumbaugh that this baby had become an adult in the spirit world and was constantly with him as an advisor. He would narrate to his friends how "Bright Eyes," by giving him specific directions in business deals, had enabled him to avoid loss and to make money. The fancy became so real to him that he summoned a portrait painter from Chicago and directed him to paint a life size picture of his spirit son, giving minute directions about his appearance. After weeks of effort by the artist the picture was completed to the satisfaction of the father. He would sit by hours in front of the painting and commune with the delineation. His faith in his son was real and could not be shaken by scoffers. He went to his grave happy in the thought that he would meet his son in the spirit world.

The remarkable fancies of the banker as exhibited by his faith in "Bright Eyes" and other eccentricities were seized upon by the relatives as proof that he was insane. The portrait was brought into court and exhibited to the jury. It was hoped to prove that spiritualists had worked upon his credulity and that he had been a victim in their hands. Everything possible was done to prove that the brain of the old man was effected and that the curious will was evidence of the truth of the complainants' assertions. The juries in the lower courts were inclined to believe that there was foundation for the protests of the relatives, but the supreme court held the will valid.

It is predicted that the announcement that the money is now available for the erection of the Spiritualist church in Leroy will be followed by a decision to make that place the headquarters of the cult and a campaign launched from that point for the dissemination of the principles of spiritualism. The National Spiritualism Association of the United States and Canada will probably take formal action in regard to the legacy. Leaders say that the growth of spiritualism has been extensive on both sides of the Atlantic. Much of the increase is attributed to camp meetings in tents, where the followers and mediums assemble once a year, many thousands visiting the camps to see the phenomena there produced.

The number of members of spiritualist socities is estimated at 200,000 in the United States and Canada, but the leaders assert that there are ten times that number who believe in spiritualism, but have not identified themselves formally with any organization. About 1,500 mediums are before the public, while perhaps 10,000 others exercise their gifts in their own homes or among intimate friends.

OSAGE ORANGE YIELDS RUBBER.

Chemist sFind Value in Fruit Long Thought Worthless.

Lawrence, Kan., Nov. 11.—The heretofore worthless osage orange, the hard, green fruit of the common roadside hedge, may prove an unexpected source of revenue to the farmers of the middle west.

Experiments made by Professor H. W. Emerson and C. L. Roese, at the University of Kansas, demonstrate that the fruit contains the elements of rubber.

"Our experiments have not gone so far as to show that the osage oranges may take the place of rubber now in use," Professor Emerson said. "There is no doubt that the elements of rubber are present in the orange and the material with which we are experimenting may entirely displace rubber, or it may be mixed with rubber to improve its quality."

To you---the music-hungry

You men with business-worn minds—you women tried by household duties—you children with fast-developing minds—music is for you! Tonight you may sit down and play any composition you like—the world's master musicians will guide you. A Pianola Piano will unlock the Gates of Music-land.

What Is a Player-Piano?

A Player-Piano is any piano with any player installed within it. But installing an engine in a carriage does not make a good automobile, and building a player within an ordinary piano does not make a good player-piano. A hand-played piano works for half an hour a day, for twenty years, let us say.

A player action allows anyone to play and a player-piano works for five hours a day during its life.

This is why ordinary pianos with player-actions built in them quickly wear out.

The Pianola—the original and most successful player, is not sold to piano makers—is not installed in ordinary pianos of any make, however good.

What Is a Pianola Piano?

The Pianola was first an outside, or cabinet player. All commercial player-actions are imitations of it. The Pianola is now built into five of America's most famous pianos—Steinway, Weber, Steck, Wheelock and Stuyvesant. Each of these pianos is especially strengthened and redesigned according to the specifications of our experts before the Pianola action is installed within it.

Thus a Pianola Piano is an especially built piano, made to withstand the strains which greatly increased use gives and, with the genuine Pianola action built within its case.

Such an instrument will at least last an ordinary lifetime, and retain its tone refinement as long as it is used.

This Pianola-roll bears the autographed metrostyle interpretation of Grieg's "Butterfly" by the composer himself.

Metrostyled Rolls are sold to none but bona-fide Pianola owners.

The Pianola Piano stands alone

Nearly any player-piano sounds well when played by an expert demonstrator. But you can't buy the demonstrator. A player action is only useful when it enables you to play exactly as your fancy dictates. Without an authoritative guide, you could not play unfamiliar pieces in a pleasing manner. When you know how to render a composition properly, you can easily introduce your own interpretation. The Pianola Piano is the only instrument which supplies the authoritative guide—and this is done through its exclusive action called the Metrostyle. The Metrostyle, which shows you exactly how some well-known musical authority, or often the composer himself, interprets a composition, is very simple.

A red line on the Pianola roll carries the interpretation, and by following this line with the Metrostyle pointer, you reproduce the exact phrasing of the master. When you have familiarized yourself with this interpretation, you can easily introduce your own ideas.

The Pianola Piano also possesses other vital features which you should investigate before buying any player-piano.

There are more Pianolas in use than all other players combined. The name "Pianola" refers only to instruments manufactured by The Aeolian Company, and should never be confused with "Piano-player," which is a general term.

The genuine Pianola is built into but five pianos,

WHITES' GAIN IS THE GREATER.

Immigration and New Births Exceed Rate of Negro Increase.

Washington, Nov. 11.—That the white population of the United States is increasing at a much greater proportional rate than the negro population is shown by a bulletin just issued by the census bureau. When the census was taken in 1910 the white population was 88.9 per cent of the total population, whereas the negro population was only 10.7 per cent of the total. In 1900 the whites formed 86.5 per cent of the total, and the negroes 13.1 per cent.

Excluding Alaska, Porto Rico and the outlying possessions, the total population of the United States at the last census was 91,972,266, of which 81,732,687 were whites, 9,828,294 negroes, and 411,285 Indians, Chinese, Japanese and other non-Caucasian races.

The increase in the white population since 1900 was 14,923,491, or 22.3 per cent, as compared with an increase of 994,300, or 11.3 per cent in the negr population. The excess in the increase of whites is due in part to immigration. About 5,000,000 white immigrants reached the United States since 1900, and by deducting that number from the total white increase it is found that the natural increase in white population during the decade was not quite 15 per cent.

KANSAS TOWN ALL METHODIST.

Swearing Unheard Of, Drinking Barred and Smoking Uncommon.

Baldwin, Kas., Nov. 11.—This town, the home of Baker university, the big Methodist school of the west, is in a class all by itself. There is no other town in the state like it. Religion forms the warp and woof not only of the college and its attaches and students, but of the business interests as well. Methodists own and run Baldwin. The Presbyterians have a slight toehold in one of the suburbs. Perhaps more superannuated preachers live in Baldwin than in any other city of its size in the world. They flock there to spend their last days, as the spirit of the town just suits them. A person can walk the streets for six months and haunt every public place, even the livery stable, without hearing an oath uttered. Baker university has about 500 students. This makes Baldwin a lively, though solemn town during the school term.

HIGH PRICE FOR SMALL CROPS.

Farmers Are Getting More Money for Their Grains This Season.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The decrease in crops this year as compared with last year is being compensated to the farmers of the country by the larger prices they tre receiving, as shown by figures given out today by the department of agriculture. The aggregate production of crops in 1911, it is estimated, is approximately 7.9 per cent less than the crops of 1910 and about four-tenths of 1 per cent less than the average production for the preceding five years. Corn was worth 12.1 cents more per bushel on November 1 than on the same date last year; wheat, 1 cent; oats, 8.9 cents; barley, 22.6 cents; rye, 11.5 cents; buckwheat, 7.1 cents, and potatoes, 20.6 cents, while the value of hay was $2.66 a ton greater. Flaxseed, the only grain in which an increase was reported this year, is 19 cents cheaper this year than last.

The THEATRE

AT THE MAJESTIC.

This Evening—"The Deep Purple."
Monday Evening—William Faversham in "The Faun."
Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Saturday Matinee—"Polly of the Circus."

"THE DEEP PURPLE" TONIGHT.

Powerful Play Dealing With Life in the New York Underwold.

"The Deep Purple," a powerful and convincing story of the New York underworld, written by Paul Armstrong in collaboration with Wilson Mizner, produced by Liebler & Co., is playing at the Majestic theater today, giving two performances.

The story is founded upon the elopement of a young girl with a man whom she does not know for what he is, a cheap order of crook. She goes to New York with him, and is given to understand that in order to bring about a tardy marriage she must assist in the furtherance of a little scheme to win over certain opposition. Ignorant of the fact that she is lending the charm of her unsophisticated youth and beauty to the development of a "badger scheme" (which is, being interpreted, simply the alluring of an unsuspecting stranger with money into a trap where he must pay to save his life, she aids the plotters. The young woman in question is protected by a reformed thief, in whose house the girl has stopped for a day, because the two crooks have given up to the police, a man, a friend of the woman's, who was also determined to put behind him a heroic if not conventional past. This man, Gordon Laylock by name, with a record of several murders, convinces the woman ('Frisco Kate) that he is sincere, and their common reformation binds them in sympathy. A young mining engineer, William Lake by name, is the man selected for the "badger game," and forewarned and prepared, he turns the tables on his would-be captors and takes home the girl intending to ascertain the truth. After various tests, he is firmly convinced that her story is true and she is soon shown that the man of her premature faith is a criminal. While waiting in the apartment of the young engineer's mother and sister she receives a telephone message to the effect that her father has arrived in New York and will meet her at the boarding house home of Mrs. Fallon, ('Frisco Kate. She goes there, and is a witness to the final unmasking of the villainous Leland, and his death at the hands of the man whom he had sold to the police.

"THE FAUN" MONDAY EVENING.

William Faversham Will Present His New Play in Fort Wayne.

William Faversham will present Edward Knoblauch's comedy, "The Faun" at the Majestic theater Monday evening. The story of "The Faun" is a particularly novel one, and the treatment, while to a certain extent fantastic, is said to be tremendously diverting. In this, uncommon, laughter provoking play, Mr. Faversham will be called upon to impersonate a faun, the son of Pan, the god of the shepherd. The faun, in Mr. Knoblauch's comedy, happens to wander away from the woods and fields and comes to London one night, where, in the garden of a house owned by Lord Stonbury, he finds a convenient bath, where he joyfully disports himself. On the night in question, Lord Stonbury returns from the races at Newmarket, and having lost his entire fortune is about to take his own life. He has borrowed a large sum from a relative of his fiancee, but the amount being insufficient to meet his obligations, he has been tempted to add to it, by resorting to the chances of the turf. But ill fortune has pursued him, and he sees but the one way out; calling his valet, he arranges his affairs, discharges all of his servants, and is just about to raise a pistol to his head, when he hears a curious noise in the garden. He opens the window, and looking out, discovers in the fountain a creature which he takes to be a tramp. Questioned as to his presence in the garden, he satisfies Lord Stonbury that he is what he represents himself to be—a faun, the son of Pan. An ulster is secured which is thrown out of the window, and in this the faun enters the house. The faun knows nothing of the conventionalities of life—everything in the way of clothing and our mode of living is as unknown to him and as foreign as it would be to the veriest Hottentot. There is a mutual asking of questions between the two, and when the faun learns that Lord Stonbury has lost all his money at horseracing, he laughs at him; tells him how foolish he is and says finally that if Lord Stonbury had only asked him, he could easily have discovered the winner of each race, since his spirit lives with the horses—in fact, with all animals. So Lord Stonbury enters into a contract with the faun; he dresses him as a human being, and takes him about in society, as Prince Silvani. He lets him see all the types of human beings that are existent in London, which the faun is anxious to meet. The compact entered into, Lord Stonbury regains his lost fortune. The faun mingles with all classes of people, and they appear to him as very unnatural; he endeavors to reform them, and bring them back to Nature. Of course, he succeeds in getting himself and his friends into all sorts of trouble, and his outspoken and blunt manner of speaking plays havoc in society. He discovers the wrong people are engaged to be married and that the wrong people are already married; he points out the mistakes that others have made to those about to make similar ones, and before he leaves Lord Stonbury to go back to his own life, he manages to bring the right people together in their own circle. There is a delightful and charming love story running through the play, which at the beginning is in a hopeless tangle, but through the efforts of the faun, is happily straightened out. Mr. Faversham, will of course, impersonate the faun and in this role it is said he will reveal to the theater-going public a side of his nature not hitherto known; in short, the gay, the humorous and lovable Faversham. The role is a wide departure for the actor, and certainly a very different one from that of the gruesome Herod, and others in which he has been seen in recent years. Mr. Faversham has a fine company, of which Julie Opp is the principal member. Others in the organization are Daisy Belmore, Elise Oldham, Mabel Crawley, H. Nye Chart, Arthur Elliott, Stanhope Wheatcroft and Regal Robinson.

Miss Georgie Olp as Polly in "Polly of the Circus," at the Majestic, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Saturday Matinee.

POLLY OF THE CIRCUS

At the Majestic Theater for Three Days Starting Thursday. Matinee Saturday.

"Polly of the Circus," a homely little story—a story of two hearts throbbing in the vestment of two souls, two hearts that destiny has appointed one for the other and both in one—coming to the Majestic theater next Friday and Saturday and Saturday matinee, is almost pastoral. It is beautiful in its simplicity and in its lesson and its truth. It has neither passion nor mere haste; simply the gradual awakening of love, perfectly logical in its sequence. The story runs smoothly and gently along from the coming by chance, or fate, of Polly, who has met with an accident in the circus performance, to the home of the young country minister. From the sawdust ring Polly, sweet and winsome child as she is, ignorant of all save her work, is gently led into a knowledge of things of which she little dreamed. She studies hard, she lends herself to every little thing her benefactor would be pleased with, and lives ignorant of the budding love within her for the gentle minister who is himself yet unaware of how necessary the little circus rider is to him. Little Polly comes from her world of glitter and glare, of illusion and tan-bark into another world where she finds peace, love and learns the lesson of righteousness.

"THE GIRL IN THE TRAIN."

Charles Dillingham's New York musical production, "The Girl in the Train," comes to this city at an early date. The book is by Harry B. Smith, from the German of Victor Leon, author of "The Merry Widow," and the music by Leo Fall, composer of "The Dollar Princess."

The original production of the opera was made in Vienna and it quickly became the rage and was translated into many languages and presented in the capitals of Europe.

Mr. Dillingham secured the American rights and produced it at the Globe theater, New York, where it proved a sensation and had an extended run.

C. William Kolb, the inimitable German character comedian, has the leading comedy role and it is said that there is a distinctiveness about his work that stamps him an original and natural delineator of the German.

The supporting company is a very strong one, embracing singers of national repute.

"GRAUSTARK."

"Graustark," or "A Love Behind a Throne," is a theatrical offering worthy the serious consideration of all classes of theater patrons.

It is the production of America's most popular and successful novelist, Geo. Barr McCutcheon, whose works for the past six years have outsold those of any other American author. It is also universally considered the best book he has ever written. The combined sales of his other books, "Brewster's Millions," "Nedra," "Castle Craneycrow," "Beverly," "The Sherrods," "Truxton King," "The Flyers," "The Man From Brodney's and "The Daughter of Anderson Crow," is not so large as the tremendous output of his great work, "Graustark."

THE RUSSIAN DANCERS.

Mikail Mordkin and All Star Russian Ballet Coming to Fort Wayne.

Max Rabinoff, the Russian impresario, will present Mikail Mordkin and his all star imperial Russian ballet at the Majestic theater on Nov. 24th.

Both in numbers and in the ability and renown of its members, this ballet is the greatest ever seen, except on the stages of the two imperially submentioned opera houses in Moscow and St. Petersburg. Besides M. Mordkin the company includes such women co-stars as Miles. Vera Koralli, Katarina Geltzer and Julia Siodlowa. The symphony orchestra, to the strains of which the dancers seem to disprove the laws of gravity, is conducted by Vittorio Podesti, of the Metropolitan Opera house, New York.

It is by special arrangement with the directors of the Metropolitan Opera house that Impresario Rabinoff was able to arrange with the management of the Majestic theater to bring the imperial dancers to Fort Wayne.

The influence of the Metropolitan Opera company was largely responsible for Czar Nicholas' willingness to grant his dancers further leave of absence from Russia. The Mordkin company was engaged for the famous New York opera house for the months of December and January.

Of the three new women stars in the ballet, two are novelties to an English speaking audience, for Miles, Siedlowa and Koralli have never before appeared off the continent of Europe. Mlle. Geltzer, however, danced in the British capital during the past summer. "The Dance Dream" was her vehicle and all London applauded. All three of the new stars hold the rank of prima ballerina assoluta, the highest to which one of the czar's danseuses can attain.

The solo and character dancers in the company, the men and women next in importance to the stars, were recruited from the Imperial Opera houses of St. Petersburg and Moscow.

In the orchestra which Mr. Podesti directs, there are many Russian musicians, brought over with the dancers. A number of the members of the orchestra come, however, from New York, some of them from the Metropolitan Opera house.

The ocular operas and dances are, of course, magnificently staged, in keeping with the name and fame of the company. Paul Peorane, of Moscow, and Edward Siedle, technical director of the Metropolitan Opera house, are responsible for the properties. Paket, Benoist and Karavine, well known Russian painters, and Paquereau, of Paris, and Fox, of the Metropolitan Opera house, designed and created the scenery. The costumes are the work of Jolsie Naiuuktis, of the Imperial Opera house at Moscow; M. C. Alias, of Paris and London, and Mlle. Musaeus, Metropolitan Opera House, New York.

The Temple Theater

Billie Burke's "Foolish Factory," With George Hickman and a Company of Broadway Funmakers Top a Bill Which Has Lots of Good Things.

"The Foolish Factory," Billie Burke's greatest comedy offering, will head the line at the Temple next week. All accounts agree that this is about the funniest thing that has happened in vaudeville and that it will be some time before it is surpassed. It is comedy pure and simple and made for folks who want to laugh and enjoy laughing when they are made to laugh. Nothing else has been attempted in the "Foolish Factory," save to stage it with credit and to gather together a bunch of mighty pretty girls, who can sing and dance, and some comedy gentlemen who are recognized artists in the laugh-making line. George Hickman, Charles Edwards, Paul Hickman and Fred Linton, present the principal comedy parts and they start the fun at once and give no quarter until the act is over. The girls are beauties, handsomely gowned and capable as artists. "The Foolish Factory" will be a treat even at the Temple, where treats are the order.

The Famous Four Nelson comiques are said to be one big scream. This is the last week of the famous Nelson family of acrobats, who for years were the leading features with Barnum and Bailey's circus. The fun is fast and furious and is without a doubt the greatest comedy acrobats on the stage today. Their act has been headlined everywhere.

Andy Amann, the famous German comedian, who comes on the big bill, was a star in this city over thirty years ago. He appeared on the opening bill of the Olympic theater as the headliner in a monologue. A few of the old timers will remember this star, who is now, as then, king of German comedy. He is appearing with Frances Hartley, a celebrated dramatic soprano, in their comedy success, "The German Professor."

Oscar Lewis and Sam Green will appear in their original comedy act entitled, "Engaging a Cook." This act has been one of the big comedy hits of the season and is bound to please, with such capable comedians as Lewis and Green, who have just broke out of musical comedy. In their vaudeville effort they are said to be seen at their best.

Clark and Verde, the famous Italian comedians, who have been a knock-out everywhere, are on next week's big bill. These celebrated fun-makers are one big hit. The coming week's bill was arranged for laughing purposes only and Clark and Verde fit into it to a nicety.

Cerita Day, "the girl who can sing and dance," is a dainty little comedienne who is one of the most charming little girls on the American stage. She will be seen in some of the very latest creations, direct from Paris.

Ted Bailey and company will appear in the "Act Beautiful," which is said to be a distinct novelty.

The motion picture man has some fine pictures and Prof. Dicey has arranged one of the best musical programs so far presented.

URGES DANCING IN SCHOOL HOUSE

Kansas City's Board of Welfare Calls It Beneficial.

PLACES SOME BLAME

Kansas City, Kan., Nov. 11.—"It is the good people of the cities who are in a large measure responsible for the questionable dance halls," says F. F. McClure, the board of public welfare's superintendent of recreation. "Instead of co-operating and lending their influence in maintaining dance halls where the evil features are eliminated, they condemn dancing altogether, and when they shun dances persons who have no interest except to make money open halls and exploit them in any manner that proves to be the most profitable.

"Kansas City, being so largely American, does not as yet have a very serious dance hall problem to contend with, but in Chicago, where the evil influence of dance halls is greater than in any city in the country, hundreds of them flourish in direct connection with saloons and houses of the most vicious character. Kansas City has only a few dance halls. They are all under supervision and we cannot complain about the way most of them are conducted. However, as a larger element of working girls and especially foreigners is infused into our population there will be more and more temptation to conduct the halls as they are conducted in Chicago. There they are so engrafted into politics and are backed by such wealthy interests that the fight to improve conditions is bitter and against heavy odds.

"I believe Kansas City should begin now to offer a form of evening amusement for young people and children which will bring them under a beneficent influence, instead of the bad influences prevailing in so many public dance halls. The school buildings, especially those in the humbler districts, present themselves as the logical places for such amusements and entertainments. Each night at present they stand empty and dark, while countless children, for want of a better place to go, roam the streets and wander into the places which are inviting yet productive of debasing influences. I should like to see them open at night, offering a pleasant, wholesome place for children and even their elders to gather and spend the evening. There should be amusements provided to suit the tastes of all classes, and for the boys and girls between seventeen and twenty years old it would be hard to find a substitute for dancing. However, if the sentiment of Kansas City is against what is known as round dances, a substitute in the way of folk dances could be provided. That would be matter for the board of education or the public to decide."

Dr. Anna L. Strong, who is in charge of the child welfare exhibit, says that in the cities where the schools are opened at night for amusement the results have been astonishingly gratifying.

"In New York city the amount of juvenile delinquency has abated wonderfully and an improvement of the tastes of the children along all lines of recreation is decidedly noticeable," Miss Strong said. "The young people seemed eager to come to the dances in the public schools instead of attending those in the dance halls and many of the public halls lost in patronage so heavily that they were closed. Dancing was tried there as an experiment in a few schools at first, and was so successful that the school board opened all the schools for dancing."

F. D. Thorpe, assistant superintendent of schools, believes it is only a question of time before the schools will be an important factor in the amusement of young children as well as in their education.

"Wherever the plan has been adopted it has been successful far beyond expectations and the educational journals of the country advocate the plan strongly," Mr. Thorpe said. "Not an unimportant feature is the changing of the point of view of the child toward his school. He comes to look at it in a more friendly manner when it enters into the amusement side of his life. I do not see why dancing should not be indulged in, unless there is too strong a sentiment in the city against it. Many persons are coming to believe that a dance, conducted in the wholesome atmosphere of the school, is at least better than those in the public halls."

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

This remedy is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If your hair is losing color or coming out, start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what a change it will make in a few days' time.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Meyer Bros. Co., Four Drug Stores.

DROPS DEAD IN FIELD.

Wabash County Farmer Answers Fnal Call.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 11.—Thomas Crumley, who has resided in this county for several years, died very suddenly, ont very far from his present home in Lafontaine, yesterday forenoon.

Mr. Crumley awoke feeling as well as usual and went to work on the Pete Renneker farm, which is not far from Lafontaine. He seemed to be in the very best of spirits and went out in the field to shuck corn. Everything went along nicely until about nine o'clock, when Mr. Crumley fell over on the ground. As he did not get up his friends who were working with him rushed to him and found him unconscious. A few minutes later he expired before any effort could be made to arouse him.

A Page of Interest to Women

PLAIN TALKS ON SERIOUS SUBJECTS.

WHICH VOCATION SHALL THE GIRL PURSUE?

We have considered some of the qualifications necessary for a girl to possess in order to become a successful business woman. The question that now confronts us is which vocation shall she pursue?

There are many more vocations open to women today than in former years. A girl must think deeply and seriously before deciding upon any one of them. It is not wise simply to drift through circumstances into some occupation and remain there year after year, often though grumbling and dissatisfied. Success is not won in work which is not to our liking.

Every one cannot do the same kind of work equally well; each one has his chosen field of labor. The girl must consider her individual talent and try, if possible, to find an opening in that particular line. She will be far happier and accomplish better results by beginning low down in her own chosen work in which she is deeply interested than by beginning far higher up in some line of work which is distasteful to her. Let her ask herself, "What thing in all the world do I most enjoy doing?" Let her seriously consider this question for some time before deciding upon her life work.

A Stenographer's Position.

Now let us get down to actual facts. What calling shall the young woman pursue? Instantly there comes to our mind that field which woman is fast making her own—stenography. To be sure, this field is becoming more crowded every year with an ever-increasing number of incompetent girls who have neither the natural ability nor the training to make a success of stenography. But there is always room for a competent one and always a chance to rise for the girl whose work merits it. In this, as in other occupations, a girl must be content to begin low down, but by earnest perseverance she can, if she has the ability, become an expert and in time command a fine position.

To make a success of stenograph a girl must be accurate, neat, quick in her movements, a good speller and grammarian and also possess the ability to concentrate; she must also be able to refrain from revealing the secrets of her firm. If a girl does not possess these qualifications there is no chance of advancement for her amid the vast army of stenographers which the business schools are daily pouring in upon our offices. Stenography is often used as a beginning to gain a foothold in the business world. Most of the qualifications necessary for the stenographer are equally essential for all office workers.

Teaching is a large field for young women, and in New York city, where the annual increase is uniform and regular, it is a very desirable vocation. The surroundings are congenial and a great advantage is that a girl is in the company of other women, not men solely, as in many offices. An absolutely essential part of a teacher's equipment is her ability to impart knowledge; equally essential is her ability to discipline a class. Most girls are sufficiently fond of children to render teaching them an agreeable task. Many parents are unable to support their daughters for the long years of preparatory training; if, however, they can do so and the girl is capable of passing the necessary rigid examinations, she will usually find the occupation an exceedingly pleasant one.

Concerning Teaching.

She must, however, be prepared for plenty of good hard work, both mental and physical. To be sure, the vacation is long, but not one whit too long to regain possession of her shattered nerves, for teaching is the most nerve-wearing work in the world. Those who are ignorant of this fact often maintain that the hours are easy. They are short, it is true, but there is always home work. The office girl locks her desk and is done; the teacher carries home innumerable books, reports, records and papers on which she must spend many hours of labor. Let no girl enter upon the profession of teaching with the idea in mind that she is about to have an easy time.

Teaching in New York is a vastly different proposition from teaching in some little country school. If, in addition to her ability to impart knowledge and discipline a class, the teacher does not possess a splendid memory and accuracy and neatness in making out reports and records and keeping books, she does not belong in the New York system, which is run on strictly business-like principles, and in which the clerical duties are legion.

For the girl who must begin to earn her own living at an early age, the position of salesgirl offers many inducements. A girl must not enter a store with the idea in mind that the work is stupid drudgery. If she studies her stock carefully and is agreeable and courteous to customers, the manager will select her when there is an opening higher up. If she can work up to the position of forewoman or buyer she will be able to look back with a feeling of satisfaction to the years of faithful service "behind the counters."

Other vocations open to women are legion, both in ordinary lines and in many unique fields. The space of this article forbids their discussion here. It is for the girl herself to decide which calling she shall pursue. The important question is not, "How much salary will I get?" but "How much will I really enjoy the hours spent working for that salary?"

HINTS TO BEAUTY SEEKERS.

One of the ordinary mistakes on the toilet table of even the most refined of women is scented soap. Understand, first of all, that by scented soap is not meant that pure, delicate cleanser with the faintest and most evanescent of perfumes. There are scented soaps and scented soaps. The difficulty is that some of them are so scented they are evident hours after they have been used, so that any sachet or flower essence is entirely lost in the acrid aroma of the face or hand bath.

To avoid this clashing of perfumes, it is best to choose some excellent unscented soap, or, at most, one with just a suggestion of the odor of the perfumes affected. If the odor of the soap is distasteful, and it should not be if it is pure and is carefully rinsed off after the bath, a dash of toilet water rubbed over the hand will effectually destroy the soapy scent.

Many women prefer a soap jelly to the regular cake variety, especially for the face bath. An agreeable jelly of this kind is made by slicing one cake of pure castile soap into three cups of water to which has been added one teaspoonful of powdered borax. Boil the mixture until it jellies and put away in covered glass jars to use as wanted. The girl who once tries the jelly will never return to the old order of things wherein most of the value of her money went for fancy wrappings and good looking boxes.

The vigorous soap bath should always be followed by an application of a good face cream. Otherwise the skin is shiny and drawn, giving the surface a hard, dry finish, to which powder will not adhere. By gently massaging the face with a greaseless cream, a soft, moist surface is obtained, and the powder will give a velvet tone, the property of youth and a fine textured skin, so desirable and so difficult to acquire.

ERMINE COAT AND MOLESKIN SET

FROM C.C. SHAYNE & CO. FROM MAISON MAURICE.

A superb evening coat in ermine is illustrated and a unique set of moleskin. The coat is a magnificent affair, composed of the finest skins and reaching below the knees of the wearer. The set is a combination of moleskin and the gold brocade and its Oriental note adds a touch of distinction to the set. Hat, scarf and muff complete this costume.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS FOR SELF-IMPROVEMENT.

We discussed a few days ago the necessity of self-improvement for all who would really "live," and not merely "vegetate" during their earthly career.

Even though our spare moments are limited, some wee margin must be found which we can devote to self-improvement.

We must, above all, be careful not to attempt too much. There is great danger in planning too much work in too many different lines, especially if our time is limited. If we attempt too much we are bound to fall and become discouraged, and perhaps in consequence become opposed to all self-improvement and give ourselves up to "stagnation" from that time on. To aim at a reasonable amount in one line of work is the wisest plan. This insures success and hence encourages us to continue the commendable practice of self-improvement.

Let us, then, beware of overestimating our time, strength and ability. Most of us may reasonably expect to live for many years yet, and if we look forward to carrying on our self-improvement during all the years ahead it is certainly not necessary that we attempt to accomplish all there is to be done in the one short year for which we are planning.

Planning Ahead.

Speaking of planning reminds us that we must make very definite plans for our self-improvement. Nothing in this world has ever been accomplished without careful, well laid plans. It may be pleasant to drift, but the well steered bark following the channel marked on the chart is less apt to meet with accidents and always arrives more quickly in port.

The value of planning cannot be overestimated. In the subject under consideration it is especially valuable. If you have in mind some definite line of work to be pursued during the coming winter, get out pencil and paper and plan just what you wish to accomplish as a whole during each month, during each week and during each day of the coming week or two. You are a poor salesman, a poor bookkeeper, a poor clerk, a poor architect, a poor housekeeper, a poor teacher, a poor anything, if you cannot plan carefully, plan definitely and then stick to your plan. In overcoming the tendency to attempt too much the value of planning on paper is self-evident. It introduces the factor of common sense into our plans.

Now then, having decided that one interest carefully pursued and adhered to is better than a dozen half done or well begun and then cast aside for others, having decided to be very definite in our aim and to plan our work carefully so as to strive for definite progress in that one line, let us consider some of the lines open to us. To be sure, the question of a choice of a line of self-improvement is largely one of individual taste. The following are only a few definite and, it is to be hoped, helpful suggestions:

As the first suggestion; do we speak the language correctly? Carelessness of speech has been called one of the besetting sins of our nation. English grammar, in any form, is dry reading, but how about spending half an hour a day pursuing a carefully planned course of reading? Such a course should include the works of the best English and American authors who used the best, purest and most accurate English. Of course, they should be read intelligently and seriously and with a view to gleaning pure English from them and improving our own speech thereby.

If we are fully proficient in English, why not study a foreign language, either by teaching English to a foreigner in exchange for his teaching us his language, or by beginning a correspondence with some German, French or Italian friend in his own language, if we are familiar with its rudiments?

Another suggestion is to attend a course of lectures in some subject in which we are interested. In our city there are interesting courses free on all subjects.

For those who have musical talent a daily half hour of steady practice will accomplish wonders in technique, while from reading musical journals one may gain an acquaintance with the great masters. Concerts are accessible at very reasonable rates, and by buying a subscription ticket one may attend grand opera very reasonably.

Many drawing courses are offered. These may be supplemented by visits to art galleries. Our free libraries will supply one with the stories of the lives of great artists and the history of their paintings.

If one is interested in cooking there are courses open in domestic science.

Correspondence courses can now be taken on any subject, including engineering, electricity, etc.

These are only a few of the many suggestions that come to mind for self-improvement. One's individual taste must decide the field of work. Whatever line of study be taken up, whether alone or with a friend, by lectures or by correspondence, if one adheres to it faithfully all through the winter he will be surprised to see how youthful, zealous and energetic he will feel, how alert his mental faculties will become, how greatly he will improve in every way and, above all, how much he will enjoy the hours spent upon his self-improvement.

SAVED CHILD FROM DEATH.

"After our child had suffered from severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. T. Richardson, of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicine seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy." For coughs, colds, hoarseness, lagrippe, asthma, croup and sore lungs, it's the most infallible remedy that's made. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

By actual tests two horses weighing 1,600 pounds each can pull 3,750 pounds, which is 550 pounds more than their combined weight. One elephant weighing 12,000 pounds can pull 8,750 pounds, which is 3,250 pounds less than its weight. Fifty men, aggregating 7,500 pounds in weight, can pull 8,750 pounds, which is the score of the elephant. It will be observed that the men also pull more than their own weight.

PLAIN TALKS ON SERIOUS SUBJECTS

THE NEED OF SELF-IMPROVEMENT

As the world grows older and wiser, the inhabitants thereof are learning the fallacy of the statement: "He has completed his education." No one's education is ever complete as long as life continues.

The law of the land demands a certain amount of formal education in youth. After that one enters upon a larger education.

We are always in need of self-improvement—a thousand opportunities are daily offered to us to improve ourselves and we do very wrong if we neglect them.

Self-education is the highest type. Contact with the practical affairs of life should give us true wisdom. The study of human nature is the most broadening kind of study that can be pursued. But, in addition to this, we should also carry on all through our maturer years some definite line of mental work for our self-improvement. If we fail to do so we fail to get the most out of life.

Self-education is valuable in many respects. It assists us greatly in raising ourselves from an inferior environment to a higher one. By using it properly and sufficiently we may in time become quite independent of our environment and accomplish remarkable results, in spite of adverse conditions and the drawbacks of poverty and lack of social standing, as hundreds of other ambitious men and women have done before us. "All are architects of fate." To a great extent man has the power of carving his own destiny. Any work which he undertakes for his mental improvement is a large factor in raising him higher and higher and onward and onward, toward that possibility of perfection which stands ever before him as his dearly longed for goal.

A Healthy Mind.

To have a healthy mind, one must keep it active. The fish in Mammoth Cave, living in the dark and thus having no need of eyes, have become blind. Man in a similar way, loses the power of using his muscles, if he neglects to exercise them. He also loses his mental faculties if he fails to keep them active. His mind becomes numbed and dulled through neglecting to use it. On the contrary, it grows and strengthens by constant use. There is no danger that it will wear out if it is used judiciously—not forced to work in one line only and its eight hours of rest not shortened. If we would do our full duty by our mental organism, we must not neglect to exercise it, just as we must not neglect bodily exercise if we would keep our physical organism "in trim." There is no better way to keep the mind energetic, alert, active and original than by pursuing some chosen line of mental work.

One of the great secrets of remaining young is to keep ever learning. When do people begin to grow old quickly? Is it not when they cease to go on with the world, when they no longer take an interest in present affairs, when their enthusiasm wanes, perhaps owing to the failure of some dearly cherished plan? The Fountain of Youth is not where many have sought it, in some far-of-land. It is to be found close at hand. He who will, may drink of its waters freely, for they flow along by his side in the midst of the River of Life, as the Gulf Stream flows through the Atlantic. The secret of youth is to maintain one's ambition, enthusiasm and mental activity, to be ever learning, ever working for self-improvement.

The languid season of summer is over, when, owing to the high temperature, man must necessarily allow himself some indulgence in the matter of idle moments. We are in the midst of cool, autumn weather, so full of life and vigor. No days so fill us with ambition as the bright, brisk, autumn days. Short days, too, when the early fall of evening gives us long hours for pursuing some definite line of work. Autumn is the Season of Beginnings. Are you going to heed its message and begin to follow some line of self-improvement during the coming months or are you going to neglect your golden opportunity and let the best working months of the year slip idly by and leave you no whit more learned than you are now?

"Oh, I would like to take up some work this winter, but I have no time," you complain.

"No time?"

Utilizing Spare Moments.

Volumes have been written on railroad trains. Inventions have been planned in depots. Foreign languages have been mastered on trolley cars. A musical education has been acquired in odd leisure moments. Famous paintings of the world have been completed at odd half-hour periods. Wonders have been accomplished by those who have had the wisdom to take advantage of opportunity, the common sense to plan their work carefully and the strength of will and earnestness of purpose to carry out their plans. What others have done, you can do, too, for you would be highly offended if you were accused of possessing inferior ability to theirs.

The complexity of modern life must be accepted. There are very few people in these days who do not lead "busy lives." But with all our strenuousness, if we cannot find some wee corner in the day, even if only half an hour out of the twenty-four, to devote to our self-improvement, there is something radically wrong with our lives and the more quickly we begin to remedy affairs, the better.

Take an hour next Sunday afternoon or some other unhurried time and consider (preferably on paper) just how you spend your hours. Not one in a hundred of those who give the subject careful consideration will be found who has not at least some small margin of time which he can devote, if he so chooses, to his self-improvement.

Some practical suggestions for self-improvement will be considered in a future article.

Some New Things in Fashions

The fish tail train, which made its appearance on evening gowns last winter, is being repeated again on dresses for the autumn. In its original form the fish train accompanied the dress which cleared the ground and, being made separately from a flowing panel at the back of the waist, it could be adjusted to the dress or not worn at all, just as the wearer desired.

The new fish tail train is fixed to the dress. Made of filmy material, which drapes the satin foundation of the dress it drifts off the ground a yard or so from the hem. Shaped exactly like the tail of a fish, the new train has a bordering line of fringe arranged on net, which has the appearance of the fins from which the train takes its name.

Among the new draperies on dresses for the daytime none are more graceful than the apron or tablier effects with fringed edges. These tabliers promise to be extremely popular in the coming season, and they are shaped in all manner of styles with all kinds of embroideries.

Prominent among the new day dresses there are smart designs in taffetas, ornamented with old lace. A coat and skirt of taffetas is another useful possession, and taffetas is being used for evening dresses in combinations with ninon draperies, Mechlin lace insertions, and trimmings of roses in silk and velvet.

A smart coat and skirt in taffetas of China blue tint elicited much admiration in a Fifth avenue room the other day. The coat had the new adjusted basque, trimmed with crossway folds of cachemire de soie to match, and the shaped fold which formed the collar was embroidered in shades of blue and old silver. Tulle and lace filled in the little opening left at the neck and the skirt in two tier style had folds of cachemire like the coat.

Wild rose taffetas and antique net is a favorite foundation for the evening gown. The net is used in all manner of styles to drape the taffetas. Sometimes the net trails from shoulders to hem and forms the train, and in other cases the net is used like a tunic.

PARTY FROCKS FOR THE KIDDIES.

FASHIONS for little folks during the winter season include not only street frocks and school gowns, but dresses for party wear. Illustrated are three frocks of this character, ranging in size for girls of from ten or twelve to the tiny tot.

For the growing girl there is pictured a sweet dress of filmy embroidered nainsook, this forming panels united by lines of fine Cluny insertion, forming vandykes above a deep hem. A clear line of this lace allies skirt and bodice at the raised waistline, the latter formed of alternate groups of tucks and lace.

A motif of the embroidery occurs only in front, and is cut into a little square at the throat, to which an original finish is afforded by a narrow bar trimming of fine twisted white embroidery braid. It is all so dainty and pretty, and, although eminently dressy, there is a complete absence of that ostentatiousness so frequently apparent in frocks for girls at this trying age, just verging on hobbledehoyism.

For a tiny girl of some two years there is shown a nainsook frock ornamented with fine hand tucking, real Irish and Valenciennes laces. The treatment of this little high waist bodice, scarcely more than a deep yoke, is particularly attractive, the neck again finishing in a square at the base of the throat, where, in lieu of the usual lace tucker, a beautifully executed buttonhole stitch is utilized.

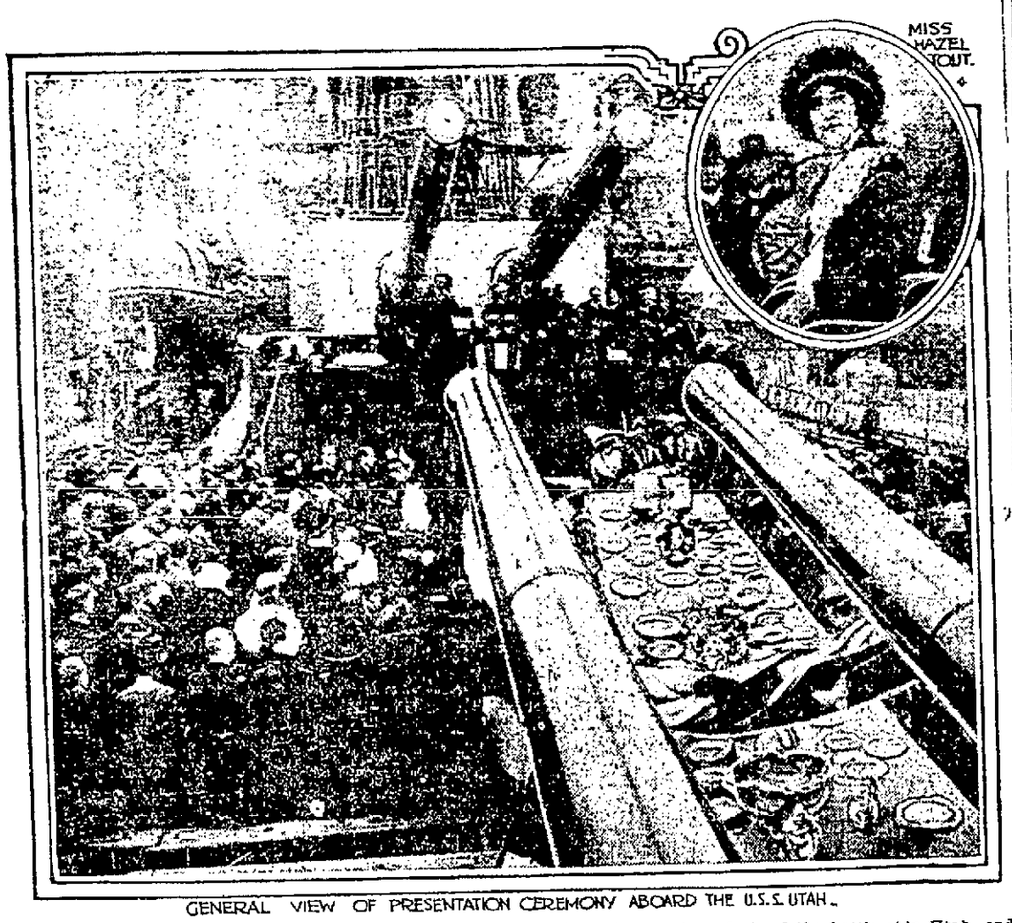
SWAGGER TOGS FOR THE HORSE WOMAN.

FROM DUNLAP. PHOTOS BY JOEL FEDER.

FROM JOHN WANAMAKER. FROM FRANKLIN SIMON AND CO.

THERE is a distinctive difference about all garments built for the horsewoman's rider—one of the reasons why this sport is always an expensive enjoyment. Illustrated is a habit of brown corduroy for country use. This is accompanied by a neat derby, chamois colored gloves and tan calf riding boots. Another picture shows the dress hat of silk beaver for more formal riding in the park or at the horse show. Still another picture shows the full shaped coat which is worn through the street to the park or riding academy. This coat is made of a smart cosmos mixture in green and tan and is mannish in every detail of finish.

UTAH CITIZENS PRESENT SILVER SERVICE TO NEW BATTLE SHIP



GENERAL VIEW OF PRESENTATION CEREMONY ABOARD THE U.S.S. UTAH.

In the presence of more than a thousand persons crowded on the spacious deck of the battle ship Utah, and ensconced at other points of vantage in the New York Navy Yard, Governor William Spry, on behalf of the people of Utah, presented a splendid silver service to the new dreadnought. The gift was unveiled by Miss Hazel Tout, and Captain William S. Benson, commanding the vessel, accepted it for the Navy Department.

ACTRESS IS NOW RAISING DUCKS

Former Member of "Merry Widow" Company Runs Poultry Farm.

MAKES IT A SUCCESS

Newark, Del., Nov. 11.—From actress to proprietor of a large duck farm is quite a step, yet that is the change that Mrs. M. Jane Murray, who three years ago played the part of Natalie in "The Merry Widow," has made. Mrs. Murray is conducting a duck farm about one mile from here, and, according to her own statement, not only finds the work pleasant, but is also making a success of it and expects to market 25,000 ducks during the coming season.

Mrs. Murray came to Newark about a year ago and purchased a seventy-five-acre farm not far from the town. Only a small portion of this is required for her ducks and other poultry, but she also personally looks after the general farm work as carefully as she does her ducks. Her ways and methods have been a revelation to the farmer folk in this vicinity. When she first started to appear in bloomers and a fiddy jacket her neighbors did not know whether to be shocked or not. This is her usual attire, however, while at work on the farm, and visitors have become accustomed to it. As a matter of fact, it would not be surprising if other women should soon adopt the same attire because of the comfort and freedom they cannot fail to see Mrs. Murray enjoys.

It is only necessary to visit Mrs. Murray on her farm to be convinced that she thoroughly enjoys the life. Her duck farm is one of the show places of this section of the country. Hardly a day passes that a number of visitors do not receive a hearty welcome both from Mrs. Murray and her husband, and, if the time can be spared, they are shown over the place.

In speaking about the general farm work Mrs. Murray laughingly remarked: "I keep several cows and can and do milk as well as any man on any farm," holding out two dainty hands apparently quite unfit for that kind of work. Continuing, she said: "When the health of my husband began to fail I knew that behind the footlights was no place for me, so we decided to become farmers, and I have never regretted it, although some day I shall return to it, for I love singing above everything else."

Mrs. Murray advises any woman who has to work for a living and loves animals or fowls to go into farming as a practical business.

"First learn the principles, study all the best methods, then just dig right up to the elbows if necessary," she added. "It is hard work going it from eight in the morning until eight at night, but, then, it is no more difficult than digging at stage work, which must be done by the girl who would make a success of that profession. Of the two, I advise girls to work at farming, but most of all I advise girls who do not have to go into the world to battle for a livelihood to stick at home and help dig for mother."

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 11.—With the northwestern blizzard sweeping as far south as Omaha after having frozen 40,000,000 bushels of wheat in Canada, the market for that cereal today took a sudden upward whirl. December started at 93⅞c to 94¼c and then jumped to 95¼c.

The corn market sluggishly followed the course of wheat. December opened ⅜c to½c off at 63c to 63⅛c and then rose to 63½c.

Several of the larger local speculators actively bought oats. December started ⅛c up and climbed to 47¾c.

There was little support for provisions. Initial sales were 5c to 10c down with May deliveries at $16.70 for pork, $9.50@9.52½ to $9.55 for lard, and $8.57½ to $8.60 for ribs.

OIL.

Toledo Market.

Toledo, O., Nov. 11.—North Lima, 82c bbl; South Lima and Indiana, 77c bbl.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Nov. 11.—A reactionary tendency was apparent in the early trading on the stock exchange today. Heavy selling of the speculative leaders depressed them rapidly and United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, Union Pacific and Reading fell back a point. Lehigh Valley lost 1¾. The Hill stocks and St. Paul were almost the only ones of the standard issues to hold firm.

After the first rush to sell the market became nervous and fitful, but soon rose vigorously under the leadership of the coalers. Toward 11 o'clock profit taking sales on a large scale were again in evidence and Union Pacific was under decided pressure. International Harvester declined 1¼.

The market closed heavy. Observers declared the market acted well in the face of the enormous profit taking sales invited by the sustained rise in prices. There was evidence of manipulation, but the breadth and scope of the trading testified to a marked revival of public interest.

SOUTHSIDE HOMES

The rising popularity of the south side and the rapid enhancement of realty there make it not only a desirable place to live but likewise a desirable place to invest. Those who buy our houses there secure not only fine homes but homes that double in value while they enjoy them.

ON FAIRFIELD AVENUE

We are offering a beautiful modern home on Fairfield avenue that home-seekers should visit. All paving, sewer and sidewalk improvements paid. House of cement plaster construction on fine corner lot with hedge and shade trees. Paved drive in rear. House artistic and cosy with all modern conveniences. Splendidly heated and ventilated, sunny rooms overlooking handsomest residence street in Fort Wayne. The place is a rare bargain for some one.

PLACES ON WILDWOOD

We still have two places on Wildwood avenue left and both are exceptionally attractive. The houses are splendidly built and arranged with a view to the comfort of their occupants. Both are convenient to the car line and the public schools and one is the only residence available in the handsome block between Indiana and Beaver avenues. If interested in a south side home see us in reference to one of these places and you will seek no further. For the homes are complete in every detail and are both of them now ready for occupancy.

CHANGED

THE NAME DANDRO TO DOME DANDRO

As a Scalp and Hair Tonic. Registered at Washington, D. C., May 2, 1911. Manufactured at Fort Wayne, Ind., by Dr. Niswonger, 128 W. Main St. This is without any doubt the best hair grower and hair tonic ever prepared by any one.

NOTICE

By order of the Allen Circuit Court, the name of Jesse Macbeth Smith, Attorney-at-Law, commonly written J. Macbeth Smith, has been shortened into the form of Jesse Macbeth.

Hereafter, said party, will use "Macbeth," the family name of his mother as a surname for himself and family, instead of using the family names of both parents "Macbeth-Smith," as before.

Said Jesse Macbeth and family will greatly appreciate your kind recollection of this change.

SIXTH WARD TO GET BUSY NEXT

South Siders Prepare to Organize for Civic Improvement.

SEVENTH AND TENTH

Preparing to perfect a permanent and effective organization to promote civic improvement work in the Sixth ward, residents of that section of the city held a meeting Friday night at the home of A. A. Ringwalt, selected a general committee and issued a call for a meeting to be held Monday evening at the home of O. N. Guildin, at which time permanent officers will be chosen. The committee is made up of the following south side citizens: A. A. Ringwalt, Harry Fletcher, F. G. Brown, O. N. Guildin, Will Rastetter, Dr. W. M. Enslen, Mr. Grosjean, George Weil, Edward Metcalf, Mr. Vorhees, Chris. Hegerfeldt, F. J. Young, F. W. Miles, A. L. Roggen, George Young, R. E. Ebersole, B. A. Strawn, Fred Thieme, Albert S. Bond, F. M. Price, William Griffin, Judge Robert S. Taylor, F. L. Jones, Edward Wagner, John Morris, Gottlieb Haller, E. M. Young, Clarence Cook, Jesse W. Green, W. S. Barnes, F. E. Harris, Harry Keller, William Lawson, C. A. Dunkelberg, G. Clapsattle, F. J. Rabe, W. S. Palmer, Mr. McKay, Guy Colerick, Scott Bicknell, J. D. Rauch, L. J. Ninde, T. T. King, V. E. Russell, Max Hofmann, G. E. Carter, William Bittner, Lee Johnson, H. D. Stevens, Dr. Henderson, Mariott Price and Frank Randall.

Those present at the preliminary meeting expressed hearty endorsement of the bond issue plan to provide funds for civic improvement work, and steps were taken to have the Sixth ward, the largest in the city, actively identified with the progressive movement.

Talked of Track Elevation.

Track elevation, the proposed bond issue and other civic improvement topics were discussed at a meeting of the Seventh and Tenth Ward Civic Improvement association held last night at the Harmer school. The attendance was not large and definite action was deferred until a subsequent meeting. D. C. Stout presided as chairman of the meeting and among the speakers were Anselm Fuelber and Councilman Henry W. Felger.

Don't Be Bamboozled

More than fifty years in the stove business ought to teach a merchant what good reliable stoves are.

I have sold the Garland line of stoves and ranges continuously for thirty-nine years. I have also handled from time to time numerous other makes in connection with the Garland, but not a single one of these different makes of stoves ever proved up anywhere near as good as the Garland.

New-fangled constructions and old discarded constructions have been made and resurrected and are being placed on the market and are often demonstrated on the street by what are known as street fakers and medicine men who will undertake to deceive the unwary with ridiculous claims about what a good-for-nothing stove will do that is not worth a single cent more than the scrap iron in its construction.

We are not humbugging the good people, but are selling the world's best reliable stoves, the Garland, at very moderate prices. If you are in the market for a stove better look the Garland over.

Alaska has proved to be a bonanza in fisheries and a treasure house of gold, coal and copper. There are agricultural stations within seventy-five miles of the arctic circle. At some points, indeed, vegetables are grown north of the arctic circle, close up to the shores of the Arctic ocean. Stock raising is progressing in Alaska and its islands, while wheat, oats and barley flourish under the icy stars of the north.

BASEBALL IN STATE PRISON

Moving Pictures Also for Kentucky Convicts if They're "Good."

WARDEN MUDD'S PLAN

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 11—Moving pictures for the entertainment of the convicts at the Frankfort penitentiary is the latest innovation. Warden E. E. Mudd has purchased the machine and contracted with a film house for from four to eight rolls each Sunday. The machines will be installed as soon as the chapel is completed, within ten or fifteen days. Religious pictures, comics and romances will be put on, but no holdups, wild west hair-raising escapes from prison, or anything of that sort.

Col. Mudd was the first prison warden in the world to institute baseball for convicts. It is a wonderful sight to see 1,400 convicted criminals, some of them the most dangerous in America, turned loose in the prison yard on Sunday afternoons to root for their "pals." There has been a baseball game between the blacks and whites within the prison walls for weeks, and Col. Mudd has found it a great aid in preserving order. Only first-grade men are permitted to see the game, and this is an incentive to the convicts to be "good."

Col. Mudd, during the four years of his wardenship, has abolished the dungeon, the buck and gag system, the triangle strap, the ball and chain, the bread and water table and the stripes, except as a mark of misbehavior within the prison walls. He has instituted solitary confinement, the grading system, the Bertillon system, knives, forks and chin dishes, separate dining rooms for blacks and whites, base ball and moving picture machines. Flower gardens have beautified the bare places in the prison yards and the walls of the workshops and other buildings glow with paint. He has made a new dining hall, a new kitchen, laid concrete roads, made a new chapel, a new Roman Catholic chapel, installed a new operating room, raised the standard of feeding and has done many other things to make the convicts more comfortable. He now wants a good school in the prison and a new hospital and a farm.

With all this, Col. Mudd has cleared up for the state in four years $171,705.57.

"I do not want the state to give us money to use for the improvement of the prison," he says. "If we are permitted to use the money we make here I will give bond to make the prison the most comfortable for the convicts in the country in a short time, and will make more money for the state. I think the money made by the convicts for the state should be used to better their condition while they are in prison."

Stops a Cough Quickly --Even Whooping Cough

A Whole Pint of the Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy for 50c. Money Refunded If It Fails.

If you have an obstinate, deep-seated cough, which refuses to be cured, get a 50-cent bottle of Pinex, mix it with home-made sugar syrup ad start taking it. Inside of 24 hours your cough will be gone, or very nearly so. Even whooping-cough is quickly conquered in this way.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, when mixed home-made sugar syrup and start taking a pint—a family supply—of the finest cough remedy that money could buy, at a clear saving of $2. Very easy to prepare—full directions in package.

Pinex soothes and heals the inflamed membranes with remarkable rapidity. It stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative, and has a pleasant taste—children take it willingly. Splendid for croup, asthma, bronchitis, throat tickle, chest pains, etc., and a thoroughly successful remedy for incipient lung troubles.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other healing pine elements. It has often been imitated, though never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a pint bottle, and it is ready for use.

Anyone who tries Pinex will quickly understand why it is used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you.

BAND OF FORGERS ARRESTED IN NEW YORK.

ISIDOR WEISS AND WILLIAM I. SCHUTZBERGER. CHARLES CARLISI.

Three men, who, according to the New York police, are leaders of a band of forgers, who in the last five years have swindled New York banks out of more than $500,000, are now under arrest in that city. John Charles Carlesi, one of the men arrested, is the leader of the band. It is charged also that he was the master mind of the Italian kidnappers and Black Hand criminals that terrorized New York recently. William Schutzberger and Isadore Weiss are the other two men arrested.

11-14 JOHN H. VESEY.

With the opening of the oyster season in Paris, the swindler has not been slow to avail himself of the opportunities offered for the perpetration of fraud. A few days ago one M. Langlois was dining in a Paris restaurant, when his attention was drawn to an exclamation of surprise coming from a neighboring table, where two gentlemen were eating oysters. Being of an inquisitive turn, M. Langlois inquired the cause. One of the connoisseurs of oysters showed him a fine pearl which he had discovered in the shell. The novelty was so great that M. Langlois, after some moments' reflection, made an offer to the innocent discoverer of the pearl to purchase it for 100 francs. He knew nothing about pearls, he said, but would accept the offer. The pearl changed hands. Next M. Langlois hied himself to a dealer, who on examination declared that it had been fabricated and was worthless.—London Globe.

INDIGESTION IS ENDED FOREVER

No Heartburn, Gas, Dyspepsia or Sourness Five Minutes Later.

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slighest fear of Indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, Belching, Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and, besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odors from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house. adv
